NEXT CONGRESS MAY TRY TO CUT POSTAL DEFICIT

Discuss Overhauling Rates, Methods.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—A general overhauling of postal rates and the business methods of the postoffice department may be undertaken by the next congress.

The three cent postage rate on letters, which was designed to wipe out the postoffice department deficit, will expire July 1, 1934. The rate will then, unless in the meantime extended, automatically revert to two cents an ounce.

Congress, however, will still be faced with a deficit in the operation of the postal service which in the fiscal year 1933 touched 200 millions of dollars.

To what extent the increased letter and periodical postage rates which went into effect last July will offset the deficit is a matter of speculation. The indications are that there will still be a sizable gap between revenue and expenditure.

Face Decision on Rates.

It therefore will be up to congress to decide whether to continue the three cent letter rate as a means of holding down the deficit or of overhauling and readjusting the rates on all classes of mail and reorganizing the business methods of the department to eliminate waste with a view to putting the service on a paying basis with a letter rate not exceeding two cents.

A number of members of the postoffice committees of both houses are of the opinion that congress will be forced to undertake a general overhauling of the rate structures and business methods of the department in order to avoid continuance of three cents letter postage.

That enormous savings in operation expenses of the postal service can be accomplished has been admitted by the department itself. The rural free delivery service is one of the most fruitful sources of waste. The rural routes were established before the advent of the automobile, and as a result the average rural carrier can now with his car serve two or three of the routes. As it is he serves one route which takes three or four hours of his time. The remainder he can devote to private business.

Rural Routes Prove Costly.

One estimate submitted to the senate committee was that 25 millions alone could be saved by consolidation of rural routes and employment of rural carriers on other postal work in their free time. Postmaster General Brown reported that routes were being consolidated as rapidly as was possible without eliminating any of the carriers from the service.

The last analysis of the deficit available is that for 1931 when the deficit was $146,545,799. In that year revenue on first class letters, other than airmail, exceeded the allocated expenditure thereon by 58 millions. All other classes of mail were carried at a loss, according to the department's cost ascertainment.

Postal Losses Listed.

The losses were:

Airmail	$11,383,065
Publications exempt from zone rates on advertising	17,217,936
Zone rate newspapers other than daily	10,419,846
All other zone rate publications	26,344,734
Publications circulated free within country	8,425,242
Circulars and other third class mail	23,388,804
Parcel post	29,031,699
Foreign mail including ship subsidy	26,626,067
Mail carried for government departments	8,643,306
Free mail matter for the blind	166,932
Registered mail	16,927,199
Insurance of parcels, etc.	3,041,944
C. O. D. service	5,321,838
Special delivery	160,638
Money orders	11,294,374

It is contended that nearly all of the deficit could be wiped out partly by economies in administration and partly by readjustment of rates. For example, it is asserted that the 30 millions of loss chalked up to registry and other special services could be eliminated by readjustment of rates.

Readjustment Advocated.

The loss on handling newspapers and other periodicals which constitute second class matter is estimated by the department to aggregate $96,674,217. Of this amount the metropolitan press is responsible for $34,566,247, ac-

CHICAGO READY FOR LABOR'S BIG HOLIDAY TODAY

Many Ceremonies to Mark Anniversary.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

MAYOR CURLEY.

All Chicago was prepared yesterday for the huge annual frolic of Labor day today, employers as well as employes. Fair weather was promised for the holiday, guaranteeing success for the fêtes scheduled for Soldiers' field, the Century of Progress grounds, and Riverview park, and for the big parade that will wend its way down Michigan boulevard before noon.

The legions of labor stream down the boulevard to Soldiers' field and the Hall of Science. The pageantry will go back to 1882, when the Knights of Labor staged the first such procession in the streets of New York, to be duplicated elsewhere in after years until virtually the whole nation observes the anniversary. It will deal today with the current situation in employment, as banners emphasize the plight of the city's unpaid teachers, and the protests of federated unions against wage cuts, etc.

Teachers To Parade.

Miss Dorothy Weil, head of the Federation of Women High School Teachers, announced yesterday that she hopes to have 1,000 of the organization's membership marching behind a 25 piece band donated by the Chicago Federation of Musicians. Hundreds of teachers, she added, are keeping down expenses by spending the vacation season with their families out of town and cannot afford to return for the demonstration.

The parade will assemble at La Salle street and Wacker drive, the first section starting off at 11 o'clock for Michigan boulevard. This will consist of the 100 piece band of the Federation of Musicians, led by President James C. Petrillo. There will be five sections in all.

At Soldiers' field, John Fitzpatrick, head of the Chicago Federation of Labor, will preside. Mayor James Curley of Boston will be the principal speaker. Others to address the throng will be Reuben Soderstrom, head of the state labor federation, and Congressman Frank R. Reid of Aurora.

Sarah Ann McCabe, singing "The Star Spangled Banner" over a radio network, will inaugurate the afternoon activities in the court of the Hall of Science, where athletic events will be staged. Aquatic sports will follow, concluding with an exhibit of surfboard riding and boat races near sunset.

G. O. P. Rally at Park.

Thousands of Republicans will rally at Riverview park this afternoon and evening as party notables launch their campaigns at a picnic for the benefit of Chicago charities. State's Attorney Swanson, U. S. Senator Otis F. Glenn, former Senator Charles S. Deneen and numerous others will be present. Arthur F. Albert, former alderman, will be master of ceremonies. Ald. Oscar F. Nelson is chairman of the committee in charge.

Miss Frieda Polts will head a "hot dog" committee operating for the charities. She will be assisted by Princess Rostislav, Mrs. Murray Brush, Mrs. Paget Cady, Mrs. Winfield Ellis, Miss Nancy Wolff, and Miss Virginia Postlethwaite. They expect to dispense 25,000 wienies. Evan Evans is chairman and Mrs. Joseph B. Long is treasurer of the charities group.

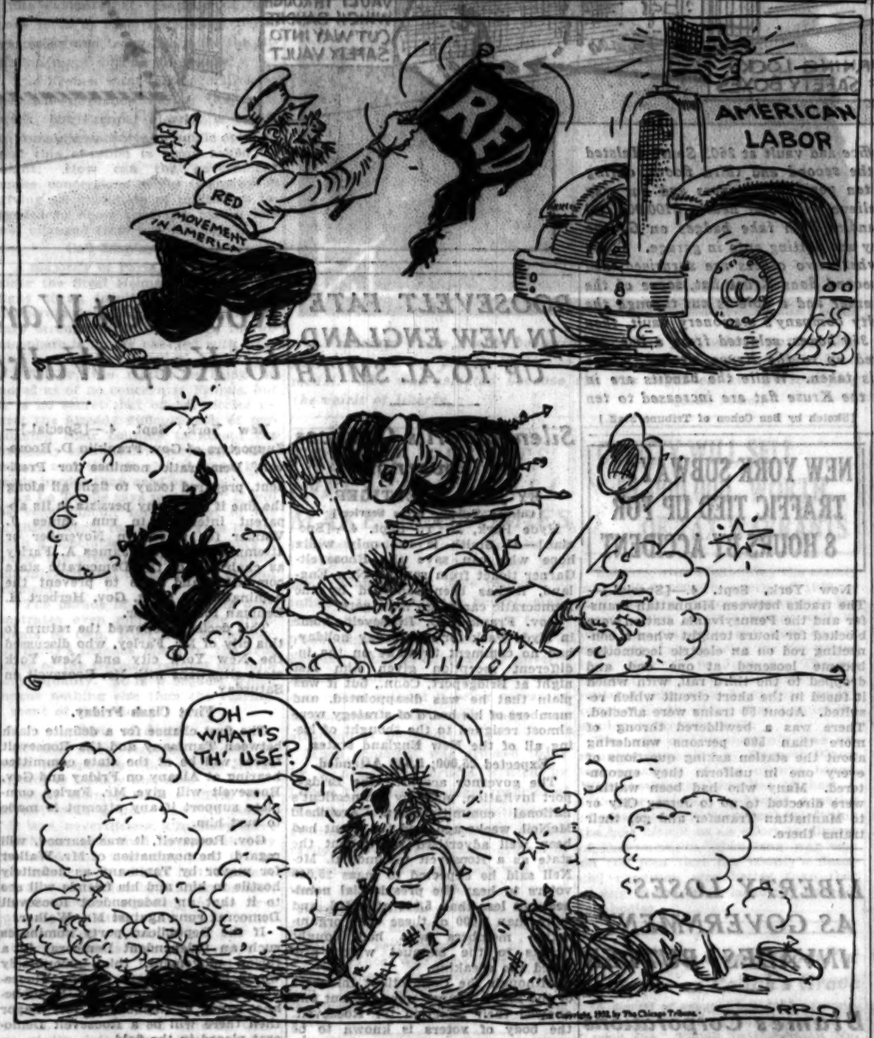
Prepare for Final Crowds.

Lincoln and Jackson parks were prepared to welcome the last great crowds of the summer season, and places of amusement generally anticipate record throngs. Many thousands of out of town visitors were reported spending the week-end holiday in the city, while a corresponding number of Chicagoans had departed for rural scenes.

In preparation for the observance of Constitution week, Sept. 11 to 17, the Constitutional Educational association yesterday issued a special Labor day appeal in behalf of the constitution.

THE FLOP



German Vets Pledge Selves to Kaiser Flag

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—With an enthusiasm unequaled since the days of August, 1914, when Germany went to war, Berlin today cheered 197,000 men in field gray uniforms who paraded on the former kaiser's old parade ground at Tempelhof field and swore allegiance to their Steel Helmet leaders, and Chancellor Franz von Papen and his government.

Hohenzollerns marched in the ranks of the Steel Helmets. As a column from Potsdam passed the chancellor, former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm stepped down and swung into line ahead of them. He "goose stepped" and saluted the heads of the present German government and Steel Helmet leaders.

Friedrich Wilhelm's brothers, Princes Eitel Friedrich and Oscar, and his son, Wilhelm, were cheered wildly by the 200,000 spectators as column after column swept over the field.

Von Mackensen Wins Cheers.

Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, minister of defense, shouted his joy at the military display of a force almost double the size of the reichswehr, which numbers 100,000 men. Former Field Marshal von Mackensen in a black Hussar uniform and other generals of imperial Germany shared the ovations.

After a speech by the Steel Helmet leader, Franz Seldte, the 197,000 uniformed men, acting for a million more German war veterans, took a solemn oath of "obedience to the leaders of the Steel Helmet association, true comradeship as strong as steel and iron against Marxism, pacifism, weakness and fear of sacrifice and of fidelity to the last breath for the glorious colors of black, white, and red"—the old imperial colors.

While the oath was being administered Chancellor von Papen, the princes and cabinet members stood at attention facing 6,000 waving flags.

Steel helmet men from East Prussia and those from the border provinces along the Polish corridor received the warmest ovations. War veterans from the Saar district, which is still under the control of the league of nations and France, arrived in auto buses which were decorated with banners reading, "We refuse to be slaves!"

Crown Princess Greeted.

On the terrace overlooking the field sat the former crown princess and a bevy of other princesses. They graciously received women in severe cornflower blue dresses of the "Queen Louise association," a Steel Helmet organization. Their program calls for a return of women "to their traditional sphere of activity." They devote their zeal to the problems of the nursery, kitchen, and church.

The parade of 197,000 men lasted from noon until almost 10 o'clock tonight. From the field the procession wound its way along Berlin's busiest streets, acclaimed by crowds in the streets and from windows. The streets echoed with old military songs such as "The Watch on the Rhine." Under the emergency decrees demonstrations in the streets are forbidden, but the Von Papen government permitted the procession by identifying itself with the Steel Helmets.

Hitler Strength Wanes.

Today's demonstration is generally regarded as a triumph for Von Papen. Followers of Adolf Hitler, National Socialist (Fascist) leader, were greatly impressed and groups of "storm troopers" tonight are seeking to enlist in the ranks of the Steel Helmeters. Hitler is no longer able to pay subsidies to the "storm troopers" on so lavish a scale as previously, because the industrialists, who supported him for years, are now beginning to swing to Von Papen.

President Paul von Hindenburg today signed an emergency decree enforcing Von Papen's economic program, which calls for an expenditure of $500,000,000 to revive German business. It will be published on Tuesday.

Student Ends Life by Poison in Cemetery

Believed to have been despondent over a love affair with a young Naperville girl, Benjamin Bruning, 19 years old, of Joliet, ended his life yesterday by drinking poison.

Benjamin was the son of A. H. Bruning, wealthy real estate owner and dealer, 100 Whitney avenue, Joliet. He was to have begun his senior year in Joliet High school next week.

Some time yesterday afternoon the youth went to the Woodlawn Memorial cemetery in Joliet, which is owned by his father. In the center of the cemetery is a tower with chimes, built by the elder Bruning in memory of Joliet men who lost their lives in the world war.

A few hours later a telephone repair man, going into the tool room of the tower, found the body of Benjamin Bruning. Beside it was a glass which had contained poison.

The Will county coroner's office said there was no note to explain the supposed suicide. The apparent motive was disclosed by the high school student's father.

"Ben had been in love, I now believe," said Mr. Bruning, "with a girl in Naperville. Her name was Clara Hines. I am not sure about the spelling of the name and I never met her.

"All I know is that he had been brooding over his failure to make the girl love him."

A 'RIDE VICTIM' GIVES HIS PUBLIC A RUDE SHOCK

An awed ring of morbidly curious peered at a man slumped over a shotgun on the curbing at 120th street and Lowe avenue yesterday morning. Deeper in the circle other persons jostled for a view of the still form.

"A gangster," volunteered one of the ring to a late arrival. He added in a dramatic whisper, "Taken for a ride."

"I found him," said another man. "I called the police."

A squad car from the Kensington station rounded the corner. The speaker rushed forward eager to tell his story to the squad leader. "Stand back," ordered a policeman. "Let no one touch the body till the coroner's physician arrives."

Before the command died away the figure stirred. A woman screamed. The man rose to a sitting position, stretched and yawned. He eyed the throng in surprise.

"What's the excitement?" he asked. "I'm Henry Garney of 12105 South Halsted street. I was sitting here waiting for a friend to go hunting. I must have fallen asleep."

Third Mystery Blast Wrecks Store, Home

Another mysterious explosion on the northwest side, the third within 24 hours, wrecked the interior of a two story building at 5258 Bloomingdale road late last night. Early yesterday morning blasts occurred 90 minutes apart at 2915 North Neva avenue and at 2023 La Crosse avenue. All three explosions were in the Cragin police district.

Early this morning a joint investigation into the triple explosions was being conducted by the police and fire departments. Two men were in custody. Police charged that the first blast, which razed the bungalow at 2915 Neva avenue, wrecked two other homes, and injured seven persons, was incendiary. Several empty 5 gallon cans that had contained gasoline and a piece of fuse were found in the wreckage. A gas company official denied that escaping gas was the cause. The explosion at the La Crosse avenue address was not regarded as incendiary, but this morning's explosion, investigators asserted, revealed possible incendiarism.

Grocery and Home Wrecked.

The newest explosion tore out the interior of Frank Amodeo's grocery and ruined his living quarters in the rear. Fire followed, but was soon extinguished. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Neither Amodeo nor his wife, Rose, and their baby, Mary, 4 months old, was at home at the time of the explosion. Joseph Lasala and his wife and two children, who live above the Amodeos, also were away when the blast occurred. Lieut. Thomas O'Hare later found the Amodeos and took them to the station and ordered the Lasalas to be brought in when they returned home. After questioning the Amodeos he released Mrs. Amodeo with her child, but held her husband.

Policemen Michael Daley and James Finnegan reached the scene two minutes after the explosion. They heard six successive minor blasts follow. At the bottom of a barrel in the store they found a bottle they said had contained naphtha. Naphtha is believed by some investigators to have been used in one of the other blasts.

All Families Away from Homes.

Police said that a peculiar circumstance which they want explained is that none of the families of the three places damaged by explosions was at home at the time. Alex Caravetta, a decorator, who lived with his family at the Neva avenue place, is said to be in Michigan for the holidays. The family of John Marino, occupants of the La Crosse avenue home, were also away. They returned last night, however, and Marino was held for questioning.

At the Cragin station it was learned that Marino and Amodeo, victims of the second and third explosions, respectively, were old friends. Lasala is also a friend of theirs. Marino throughout his questioning said he could not explain the explosion at his home. Police plan to question him and Amodeo along with Caravetta when the latter returns to Chicago. Detectives said they want to know if the men have a common enemy and want to know also what mortgages, if any, and what insurance, if any, are on the three homes.

Seven Hurt in Blast.

The blast at the Caravetta home occurred at 3:30 o'clock in the morning. The building was demolished and the fire, spreading north and south, almost completely destroyed the home at 2911 North Neva avenue, owned by Mrs. Marie Carbont, and the home at 2919 North Neva avenue, occupied by Tito Basile and his family.

Carl Thompson, who lived with his family in the Carboni home, his wife, Mrs. Rafaela Thompson, and their son, Robert, 7 months old, were taken to nearby hospitals. Mrs. Gaetana Basile, her sons, Vincent, 8 years old, and Enrico, 7 years old, and her brother, Emil Sarenni, were the others hurt. The Basiles' third son, Rudolph, 5 years old, was uninjured, as were Mrs. Carboni and her four sons.

The blast in the Caravetta home was a terrific one which broke windows and jarred household furnishings within a radius of six blocks in this residential neighborhood. It was heard for miles.

CHIMPANZEE BITES A CHICAGOAN AT FOX LAKE RESORT

William Gloich, 45 years old, 1857 North Fairfield avenue, was seriously injured yesterday when he was bitten by a chimpanzee.

The animal was chained up at the resort of Max Behme on Fox lake, west of Wauconda in Lake county. It sank its teeth in Gloich's left arm when he approached, severing an artery.

Gloich was taken to the emergency hospital in Wauconda, where Dr. J. A. Ross took twelve stitches in his wound.

BANDITS HOLD TEN CAPTIVE AS THEY ROB BOXES

Police last night sought a gang of specialized criminals, adept at cutting through steel and masonry walls, who early yesterday rifled the safe deposit vault of Koch & Co., 2603 South Halsted street. Examination of the looted vault, and the stories of two families who were held prisoners in the building for 14 hours while an oxy-acetylene torchman burned his way to the valuables, made it evident that the job was done by specialists in that sort of crime.

Although the police in their early investigations estimated that the loot might run as high as $1,000,000, later reports indicated that it probably would not total more than $100,000. The police received one report that Frank J. Koch, president of the real estate concern which also operates the safety deposit vault, had lost $30,000 of his own funds, but last night Koch's son, Franklin, said he doubted if his father had lost that much.

"Mostly Small Depositors."

Most of the depositors, the younger Koch said, were small store owners and wage earners. Many of these had withdrawn their savings from banks and put them in the vault, it was said.

"A lot of box holders we talked to said they had no more than 50 or 60 dollars," said Franklin Koch. "There are a few whose losses may run into the thousands, but a figure which places the total higher than $100,000 will not stand up."

The younger Koch said a list of the box holders would be made public this morning. It was said that it would be impossible to make known definitely the amount of the loss until tomorrow morning, when the time lock on the vault is set to open.

Returns to Chicago.

The elder Koch, who lives at 5417 South Racine avenue, was notified of the robbery at Lake Geneva, where he had gone to spend the Labor day holiday. He returned to Chicago at once.

Koch said that his company carried burglary insurance, which, however, does not apply on the property of those who rented boxes in the deposit vault. It will take some days to determine how many of the individual box holders were insured against burglary, police said.

Cash was virtually the only thing taken by the robbers, who cast aside considerable amounts of jewelry and securities.

Pose as Federal Agents.

The capture of Laschetzke, a street car man, was the initial move of the robbers. Two of them approached him as he was putting his automobile in the garage behind the building at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. With him at the time was his nephew, Robert Kruse, 20 years old. Young Kruse is also a nephew of Koch, and is caretaker of the building.

"We're government men," one of the pair who stopped Laschetzke said. "We're looking for an escaped convict named Brown, and we want to search the building."

Robbers Led to Flat.

Impressed by the gold stars which the two men flashed, Laschetzke led them to his apartment on the third floor. His wife, Mary, was there, as was her mother, Mrs. Anna Doody. Once inside the flat, the burglars dropped their pose as federal agents, drew revolvers, and forced their four prisoners to go to the flat on the second floor.

Young Kruse and his mother, Mrs. Gussie Kruse, a sister of Laschetzke, occupy that flat. She was present, and she and the other four were ordered into the bathroom, where the two gunmen guarded them. These two gunmen were the only members of the gang whom any of the prisoners saw. The fact that they made little effort to conceal their faces led police to believe that they, and perhaps all of the others of the gang, were from some other city.

Laschetzke complained shortly that he was hungry. He asked if he and the other prisoners could not go to the third floor flat and eat the meal which Mrs. Laschetzke had been preparing. The robbers agreed, and the two guards took the prisoners upstairs.

They sat down at the dining room table and ate, the guards refusing an invitation to join them. Later the party was augmented by the families of two of Mrs. Kruse's daughters, who came to pay her a Saturday evening visit. The first to arrive was Mrs. Louella Edmiston, 8213 Cottage Grove avenue. Her sister, Mrs. Grace Laughlin of Maywood, arrived later with her children, Adeline, 13 years old, and Mary Sue, 7 months old. Still later Mrs. Edmiston's husband, Lee, arrived. All were stopped by the bandits as they came up the stairs, warned to make no outcry and to keep away from the windows.

Joke with Their Prisoners.

The two guards joked occasionally throughout the night with their prisoners. Members of the Laschetzke and Kruse families gathered about the dining room table and played cards, or sought sleep in armchairs. When Mrs. Laughlin's baby became fretful, she was given permission to go to bed with the child, one of the gunmen watching her through the bedroom door.

Meanwhile, other members of the gang were busy in the second floor flat. They narrowly escaped detection as they started work, when Robert Bauer, 2528 South Halsted street, saw them unloading boxes which contained their tools and oxygen and acetylene tanks from a truck behind the building. He remarked on the fact to Casimer Pelecki, a newsstand proprietor at 26th and Halsted streets.

"I told Bauer they were probably bootleggers, and that we'd just get in trouble if we called the police," Pelecki explained later.

In Mrs. Kruse's flat, the burglars first used augers and saws to cut through the hardwood floor and underflooring, 2½ inches thick. Then they sawed away the joists below to get at a layer of brick, 18 inches thick, over the steel wall of the vault. On the brick, it is believed, they used the oxy-acetylene torch to break down the mortar.

This obstacle removed, the torch operator, known in underworld circles as the "machine man," got down to real work. The "machine man" is the technical expert of safecracking gang, having generally received training in the use of the torch in some legitimate industry.

Trained in Leavenworth.

Police yesterday recalled, however, that one such expert cracksman got his training while a prisoner in Leavenworth penitentiary, where he was assigned to help a torch operator on a building project. As was the case yesterday, where none of the prisoners was permitted to see him, the identity of the "machine man" is carefully guarded by other members of the gang.

First the torch operator cut through the steel ceiling of a vault located on a mezzanine floor in the first floor office of the real estate company. This first vault, containing books and papers of the company, was not the objective of the gang.

To reach the safe deposit vault containing the cash, the "machine man" had to descend through the hole, three feet square, which he had cut in the roof of the first vault, burn his way through its steel floor, smash out an intervening layer of concrete, and then cut into the roof of the lower vault. This last wall contained layers of copper mingled with the steel. The copper is designed to absorb the shock of explosives in case cracksmen attempt to enter in the old fashioned way by the use of nitroglycerin blasts, but it was not protection against the cutting flame of the oxy-acetylene torch.

When they made young Kruse a prisoner, the gunmen forced him to unlock the front office of the company, to which he had a key. There he was instructed to turn on the light regularly left burning before the locked door of the vault, and was also forced to show the burglars where a card index to the safe deposit box renters was kept.

Take Cash from Boxes.

The gang used this in selecting the boxes to be opened. The locks were swiftly cut away with the torch flame. Members of the gang working with the torchman in orderly fashion placed the contents of each box—after discarding the jewelry—in a basket, which was pulled up to the second floor through the hole. There other members of the gang swiftly sorted through the papers, abstracting the cash. The rest of the papers, including thousands of dollars worth of stocks and bonds with which the gang apparently refused to be bothered, made a huge heap on the floor of Mrs. Kruse's kitchen.

The burglars finished their work at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. They abandoned three oxygen tanks in the Kruse flat, but carried off the rest of their tools. All of the gang apparently wore gloves while they worked, since police were unable to find any fingerprints.

The tanks bore the labels of the National Oxygen company, 5811 West 66th street. Since they were also numbered, police sought officials of the company to determine, if possible, to whom they had been sold. They believe, however, that the tanks were stolen.

Before they left the two guards warned their prisoners to remain in their flat for half an hour and tore the telephone fro mthe wall. Laschetzke left immediately, however, and notified the police.

Suspect New York Gang.

Lieut. Joseph Ronan, assigned to the investigation, expressed belief that the gang had come from out of town. One of his squad, Detective Arthur Katz, said that reports from underworld sources had been that such a gang, coming from New York, had been operating in the middle west and had robbed several Wisconsin postoffices recently.

Laschetzke's radio has a short wave attachment which will receive police calls. Members of the gang carried it to the second floor flat and connected it up, that they might be warned of the approach of any squads sent to the address.

The robbery yesterday in many respects resembled the work of the gang which last September looted the vault of the Wicker Park Safe Deposit and Vault company, 1564 Milwaukee avenue, taking more than $100,000 in cash, jewels and securities. That burglary also was perpetrated over a week-end. It is usual for professional vault robbers to choose a week-end, or, better still, a double holiday, such as the present, for their work, police said.

The most famous vault robbery in Chicago was that of the Werner Brothers warehouse in 1923, in which the loot exceeded $1,000,000. Dr. Spencer Brown, the "master mind" of that crime, went to Joliet about a month ago to serve a sentence imposed for his part in the robbery, having previously served six years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth.

At right in alley two bandits flash fake badges on George Laschetzke and Robert Kruse as they are putting auto in garage. These two are taken to third floor flat, where two others are surprised, and then the four are herded down to second floor Kruse flat, scene of the bandits' operations. More bandits enter and a hole is cut through the floor of the Kruse flat into the realty company's stationery vault, then into the safety vault itself. About 350 boxes, selected from a list, are burned open and the contents passed up to the Kruse kitchen, where loot is sorted. Nothing but cash is taken. While the bandits are in action the original five prisoners in the Kruse flat are increased to ten by the arrival of other relatives. [Sketch by Ben Cohen of Tribune Staff.]

All of Illinois Visited by Candidate.

Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for the governorship, returned to Chicago yesterday from what was pronounced the longest tour of the state—from the mileage standpoint—ever made by any candidate for public office.

There was no record of the mileage kept, but with modern transportation facilities called on for their utmost, it was said Judge Horner had covered more territory in his good will canvass of Illinois than most candidates cover in an entire campaign, and he intends next week to start out on a speaking tour that will give him the record beyond question.

At his residence, 1226 Madison park, Judge Horner rested yesterday and, although not inclined to emphasize the extent of his traveling, expressed himself as entirely satisfied with the results of his "get acquainted" experiences.

He Visits 98 Counties.

"It was six months ago," he said, "that I began my tour of the state. Since then I have visited 98 counties and have had personal contact with probably as many as 100,000 voters.

"In this way I have had an excellent opportunity of learning what the voters of the state are thinking and what they are saying. I find they are thoroughly aroused to the issues of the campaign and are going to pass upon those issues and upon the candidates regardless of party politics.

"The one thing in which they are most interested is in obtaining relief from the burden of taxation. They have seen the expenses of the state grow from less than 28 million dollars under Frank O. Lowden to more than 123 million under his successor who is now my opponent. They also have seen the state debt grow from nothing under Lowden to more than 150 million under his successor.

Pledges Reduced Expenses.

"They have this record before them and they know what they may expect if my opponent is elected. They have my pledges that I will reduce state expenses and they know by my record that my pledge is good.

"Of course efforts are being made to raise false issues and to create prejudices; but I do not believe they can succeed. About all there is to my opponent's campaign is an effort to convince downstate that he has strength in Chicago and to deceive Chicago into believing that he is popular downstate.

"What actually will happen is that Cook county will swell the majority I shall receive downstate."

Judge Horner intends to spend this week in conference with the party managers and other leaders, going over organization matters before starting his downstate speaking tour at Sycamore and Rockford next Monday.

Unidentified Man Found Unconscious on Train

A well dressed man about 45 years old was found unconscious on a North Western railroad train entering Chicago last night. Des Plaines street police were notified and met the train at the station. They took the man to the county hospital. In his pockets police found a box containing several tablets. These will be analyzed. The only marks of identification were the initials "H. H. N." on the man's shirt. He boarded the train at Janesville, Wis. He is 6 feet tall and weighs about 250 pounds.

Save 2 Men Storm Tossed in a Boat for 30 Hours

Erie, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Tossed about in a small boat for more than 30 hours by high winds which swept Lake Erie over the weekend, Ivan Thomas, 35, and Alfred Wolfe, 36, both of Conneaut, O., were rescued and brought here today. They left Conneaut Saturday in a small tug to set fish nets. Their engine failed and they were left at the mercy of Saturday's storm. Rescue was effected by the crew of a canal boat owned by the Erie-St. Lawrence corporation.

FALLS FROM CAR; DIES.

Simon Haller, 71 years old, 5009 Lake Park avenue, died last night in the county hospital of a fracture of the skull incurred July 22 when he fell while attempting to get on a Wabash avenue street car at 12th street.

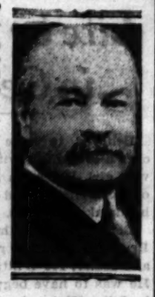
NEW YORK SUBWAY TRAFFIC TIED UP FOR 8 HOURS BY ACCIDENT

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The tracks between Manhattan Transfer and the Pennsylvania station were blocked for hours tonight when a connecting rod on an electric locomotive became loosened at one end and dropped to the third rail, with which it fused in the short circuit which resulted. About 50 trains were affected. There was a bewildered throng of more than 500 persons wandering about the station asking questions of every one in uniform they encountered. Many who had been waiting were directed to go to Jersey City or to Manhattan Transfer and get their trains there.

LIBERTY LOSES AS GOVERNMENT INVADES: BUTLER

Blames Corporations for Greed.

Southampton, L. I., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The growing encroachment of government into the field of liberty constitutes a serious threat to this country, and if we are to keep government within its proper limits we must prevent conditions arising which give government a temptation for further invasion. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, said tonight in an address here.



DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER. [Moffett Photo.]

The widespread feeling that industry had failed in the management of its own affairs and that business has exploited the public at large, said Dr. Butler, makes for such a temptation.

Corporations Invite Trouble.

If the great corporations do not conduct their affairs as a public trust, he said, "then they must not be surprised if the heavy hand of government is reached out to grasp them, or if the socialist continues to point to them as arguments in support of the policy of economic reorganization which he so earnestly advocates."

Government in this country Dr. Butler found no longer truly representative, but the prey of special interests and of a bureaucracy which is constantly pushing the government into fields of activity, at the tax payer's great expense, where it has no business being at all.

The concept of liberty has been more clearly grasped by the English speaking peoples than by any others, said Dr. Butler, and he defined the sphere of liberty as "that vast area of reserved rights which free people retain for themselves," while the sphere of government is "that assemblage of definite and circumscribed powers which those same free people delegate to officials whom they select to discharge them."

Defines Field of Liberty.

"It [liberty] must include freedom of religious faith and worship, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, the right of free assemblage, and the right honestly to acquire and hold property," he said. "Not until one grasps the fact that the sphere of government is not the whole state, but the state includes both the sphere of government and the sphere of liberty, is it possible to have straight and clear thinking in the fundamental principles of political and economic theory and practice."

ROOSEVELT FATE IN NEW ENGLAND UP TO AL SMITH

Silence Perils Chances of Governor.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Al Smith is the only white hope who can save the Roosevelt-Garner ticket from rout in New England, it has been conceded by the Democratic campaign managers.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, home in Hyde Park for a two day holiday, had no comment to make on the indifferent reception given him last night at Bridgeport, Conn., but it was plain that he was disappointed, and members of his board of strategy were almost resigned to the thought of losing all of the New England states.

Expected 25,000; 5,000 Attended.

The governor accepted the Bridgeport invitation, made by Connecticut's national committeeeman, Archibald McNeil, weeks ago, and the event had been well advertised throughout the state as a Roosevelt testimonial. McNeil said he expected to mass 25,000 voters to hear the presidential nominee, but less than 5,000 attended, and more than 2,000 of these were organization members who had bought tickets to the banquet which preceded the speaking.

Although the Connecticut followers of the Smith banner were present and avowed their affection for Roosevelt, the body of voters is known to be waiting for words direct from Smith.

Roosevelt expects to sweep the entire country outside New England and he and James A. Farley, Democratic chairman, do not concede a single outside state to President Hoover. The governor has been making overtures to his one time pal, former Gov. Smith, in the hope that Smith would give aid in the otherwise desolately Republican area of New England.

Smith Help Needed.

The Smith leaders in the New England states have announced their support of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket, but their reports have shown a helplessness in putting it over as the Happy Warrior sulks in the lofty recesses of his Empire State building.

Some of the least sanguine of the Roosevelt leaders are doubtful that even Al can deliver New England. They are convinced that Smith would have to go stumping through the states, sounding off rip roaring eulogies of Roosevelt and Garner, and showing his sincerity in doing it, and few observers believe Smith will go that far.

The former governor is expected to make several campaign speeches, one in Massachusetts supporting his friend, Gov. Joseph Ely, candidate for reelection, and another in New Jersey boosting the stock of state candidates supported by another Smith pal, Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City. In these speeches, if Smith neglected to indorse Roosevelt by name, it would be considered tantamount to a recommendation from him not to vote for Roosevelt.

Roosevelt Plans Vermont Visit.

Gov. Roosevelt is expected to keep working for harmony with Smith, and to keep plugging away at the cold New England coast. Wednesday he is scheduled to motor to Rutland, Vt., to attend a county fair. On Tuesday the governor is to visit a county fair at Syracuse, N. Y.

The governor was the first purchaser of one of many bronze medallions, carrying profile likenesses of Roosevelt and Garner designed by Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor. They will be sold by the Democratic organizations throughout the country in various sizes, from buttonhole size to larger ones intended for attachment to automobiles, and priced at $1, $5 and $10. The governor gave up a dollar for his medallion, presented by Sculptor Borglum himself.

Roosevelt Wars on Tammany to Keep Walker Out of Race

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Supporters of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for President, prepared today to fight all along the line if Tammany persists in its apparent intention to run James J. Walker for mayor in November or attempts to displace James A. Farley as chairman of the Democratic state committee and tries to prevent the nomination of Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for governor.

This decision followed the return to this city of Mr. Farley, who discussed the New York city and New York state situations with Mr. Roosevelt on Saturday.

First Clash Friday.

The first chance for a definite clash between Tammany and the Roosevelt forces will be at the state committee hearing at Albany on Friday and Gov. Roosevelt will give Mr. Farley complete support if any attempt is made to oust him.

Gov. Roosevelt, it was learned, will regard the nomination of Mr. Walker for mayor by Tammany as definitely hostile to him and his friends will see to it that an independent Roosevelt Democrat runs against Mr. Walker.

If the Republican party nominates such an independent Democrat in a fusion movement, this undoubtedly would be satisfactory to Gov. Roosevelt's friends. Should the Republicans name a Republican for mayor then there will be a Roosevelt Democrat placed in the field.

Farley to See McCooey.

Samuel Seabury, counsel of the Hofstadter legislative committee, an anti-Tammany Democrat, may be asked to run as a fusion candidate if Walker should make the race.

Mr. McCooey, who is on vacation, will return before Friday. It is expected that Mr. Farley will make a personal appeal to him to use his influence with Mr. Curry to abandon the idea of running Mr. Walker in the interest of party harmony. It is said Mr. Farley will urge the desirability of the selection of some other candidate, not necessarily Acting Mayor McKee, if there is to be an election for mayor in November, of which there is legal doubt.

Gov. Roosevelt, Mr. Farley, and the Roosevelt forces will support Lehman for nomination for governor and expect to win that fight. Roosevelt supporters have learned that some of the Tammany and Brooklyn district leaders, who favor Lehman, have declared the turning down of Lehman by Tammany would make it impossible to elect Mayor Walker, so great would be the resentment in some of the strongest Democratic districts in the city.

Mr. Farley, who was elected chairman last April for a term of two and a half years, not only will not resign but will resist any attempt to oust him. Should a resolution declaring the position of chairman vacant be offered, Mr. Farley will rule that such a motion is out of order; if not sustained in this ruling by a majority of the committee, he then will insist upon a roll call thus putting every member of the committee on record as for or against him and therefore for or against Gov. Roosevelt.

Not Pleasing to Some.

This would hardly be pleasing to some of the upstate members of the Tammany faction who by being recorded against Mr. Farley hardly could expect to be recognized by him as national chairman in the distribution of federal patronage if Gov. Roosevelt should be elected President.

Should the resolution be passed and M. William Bray of Utica or Edward J. O'Connell of Albany be elected by a majority of the committee to succeed him, Mr. Farley will declare against the passage of an ouster resolution and the election of a successor to him and carry the dispute to the courts.

If ousted from the state chairmanship and beaten in the courts, Mr. Farley with the approval of Gov. Roosevelt, will not entrust the campaign in this state to any Tammany chosen state chairman, but will set up a Roosevelt state organization for the conduct of the Presidential race. Gov. Roosevelt's friends have no confidence that Mr. Bray or Mr. O'Connell would do much for the national ticket and they regard the 47 electoral votes of New York as of too much importance to be lost by default.

Another attempt at the restoration of party harmony, which seemingly can be accomplished only by Mr. Walker abandoning his plan to seek popular vindication at the polls, was seen in an editorial by William Randolph Hearst. Mr. Hearst in an editorial criticized Mr. Walker for his attack of Gov. Roosevelt. He said the Hearst newspapers are supporters of Gov. Roosevelt and that whether they should be supporters of Mr. Walker depended in great degree upon Mr. Walker's attitude toward the governor and the party.

World Peace Congress Opens Session in Vienna

VIENNA, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The 29th international peace congress opened a five day session here today in the former plenary hall of the parliament building. The congress was to have met here in 1914, but the delegates were unable to attend on account of the outbreak of the world war. This time they heard peace orations echo in the same hall which resounded to cheers at the declaration of war in 1914.

Pacific Schooner Strikes Jetty; All Aboard Rescued

DEMOCRATIC DRY WOMAN REFUSES TO BACK HOOVER

Tells Poling President Is on Wet Platform.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement league, made public today a letter to Dr. Daniel A. Poling, chairman of the Allied Forces for Prohibition, protesting against a request she said had been made for a contribution to help reelect President Hoover.

MRS. J. W. NICHOLSON. [Acme Photo.]

"Your letter," Mrs. Nicholson wrote, "asking me, a constitutional Democrat, to assist the Allied Forces, of which you are chairman, in making a contribution in the campaign for the reelection of President Hoover and a dry congress when the President is running on a dripping wet platform seems to me an insult to my intelligence, when you know better than any one else the decided stand I took in 1928 against my own party for the very selfsame program now proposed by the Republican candidate."

A Wet Republican.

Mrs. Nicholson expressed "regret that you, of all people, should thrown your support to a wet Republican candidate now, when you fought so persistently in 1928 against a Democratic candidate whose position was identical with that of the candidate you are now supporting."

"It is unfair," she continued, "to the millions of constitutional Democrats throughout the country who have contributed the thousands of dollars which has enabled you to build up an organization that you are now asking for more funds trying to deceive the contributors into believing that you are still working for a dry congress—at the same time working for a wet political party whose platform declares for repeal or worse.

Asks for List of Indorser.

"You further state that 187 of the 205 members of your executive committee indorsed the position you are taking. This prompts me to ask you to please make public the list of 187, as I must confess with others I have my doubts about this."

PERSIAN BANDITS KIDNAP CONSULS; ALL ARE RESCUED

Chicago Man Among U. S. Officials Seized.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The state department today reported the kidnaping by Persian brigands of three American consuls who were subsequently rescued by imperial Persian troops.

The Americans are Cyril L. F. Thiel of Chicago, consul at Jerusalem; Robert B. Streeper of Columbus, O., consul and third secretary of legation at Teheran and Thomas A. Hickok of Rochester, Pa., vice consul at Jerusalem.

American Minister Charles C. Hart reported from Teheran that the American consuls were captured on the night of Sept. 1 near Kermanssah, Persia, while en route from Bagdad. Also captured was Hussein Agha Hatemi, a courier well known to American tourists. Seven motor cars and two postal vans were looted and the mails burned.

"The reason for the capture," said the department, "is said to be to hold American officers as hostages for the release of several members of the Lur tribe who are imprisoned by the Persian government in Teheran. Other recent reports confirm the existence of serious unrest among this powerful nomadic western Persian tribe.

"The capture was reported to have taken place at Bitsorkh pass between Kermanssah and Hamadan on the main Bagdad-Teheran road, the security of which has for years been guaranteed by the Persian government."

Mrs. Streeper was a guest at the legation when word came of her husband's capture, but she was not informed thereof until word came that he had been released.

Consul Thiel was born in Chicago in 1903. He was educated at Loyola Preparatory school, Holy Cross college and Georgetown university.

PAY PROSPECT DIM AS SCHOOL OPENING NEARS

Board Is Five Months in Arrears on Salaries.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

There is little prospect of a pay day for the 20,000 employes of the board of education before the schools reopen next Monday, Sept. 12. When it will arrive after that date is uncertain.

The board is now five months in arrears on its pay rolls. In salaries and wages it owes more than $12,750,000, distributed by months as follows:

April	$ 4,678,920.67
May	4,628,197.86
June	3,497,850.11
July	493,658.29
August*	455,000.00
Total	$13,793,624.93

*Estimated by school auditor.

Judging from the remarks of teachers encountered at the board rooms on Friday and Saturday, who were accepting the board's paper in place of cash, the educators will not start school in a happy frame of mind. They believe they have been treated with injustice.

Scrip Payments Recalled.

The board quit paying salaries regularly on April 15 of last year. In June of that year it started paying its employes in scrip and handed this out for the last half of April and for May, June, July and August. For the next three months of 1931, September, October and November, the teachers and other school employes were paid in cash. Compensation for December was handed out in tax anticipation warrants.

Payment for January, February and March of this year was in cash. For those three months the teachers and other school employes collected $13,561,643.

There are several reasons why the school employes have not been paid, but it is said that the chief one is the excessive expenditures of the board. The board has little credit, according to bankers, because it is spending more money than it can reasonably hope to collect in taxes. For two years the board has been unable to sell tax anticipation warrants up to 75 per cent of its tax levy, as the statutes permit, because banks do not believe that the board will be able to collect 75 per cent of the taxes levied.

Tax Collections Going Down.

On 1929 taxes, collected last year, the board was able to gather in only 68.5 per cent of the assessment. Only 53 per cent of the 1930 taxes in collection this year, have been paid so far. It is both the popular and expert opinion that most of the delinquents have not the cash with which to pay their taxes, although that view is not shared by the educators in the public school system.

The educators have said they believe that the property owners generally have the cash, or can get it, and should be forced to pay their taxes. They urged the school board to large appropriations when the 1932 budget was made; and the board authorized the expenditure of much more money than the D. F. Kelly committee, the Joint Tax commission and other tax specialists said the board can reasonably hope to obtain.

These experts told the board it could not finance the budget it approved, and the board has not been able to borrow a dollar, in the open market, on that budget so far. All the cash it has obtained has been from the city's aggregate of funds.

N. S. F. Checks Another Obstacle.

But some of the teachers took the attitude last week that part of the school taxes will be collected, and therefore the board should be able to borrow some money. No financier has denied this, but the 1932 educational fund tax anticipation warrants of the school board are not marketable, in the opinion of the bankers, because of the N. S. F. check law.

It has been charged that teachers of Chicago and of downstate got that law passed at the special session of the legislature last spring without the knowledge of the Chicago school board. That law permits the payment of taxes with N. S. F. checks.

This, in the opinion of Chapman & Cutler—security experts—makes it possible that there will not be enough taxes collected in cash to pay off the tax anticipation warrants which may be issued. Therefore Chapman & Cutler have declined to approve the tax warrants, and without that approval the warrants are not marketable.

So far the leaders of the Chicago teachers' organizations have either opposed repeal of the tax payment of the N. S. F. check law, or have assumed a noncommittal attitude.

Teachers' Action Doubtful.

The special session of the legislature which assembles this week is privileged under the call of Gov. Emmerson to consider a repeal, but action along that line is considered problematical unless supported by the teachers' organizations.

So far neither the board of education nor any other agency, so far as could be learned yesterday, has urged the teachers' organizations to support a repeal.

The board on July 27 said in a resolution that the law should be repealed, and Vice President James A. Hemingway sent a telegram to Gov. Emmerson last Thursday asking that the call for the special session be broad enough to permit consideration of the N. S. F. check law. That is the closest approach to action the board has taken.

Draft a Repeal Bill.

In addition, however, Assistant School Attorneys Frank Righeimer and Ralph Condee were busy yesterday drafting a bill to eliminate the objectionable part of the N. S. F. check law.

If that part of the law is repealed, it is said that Chapman & Cutler will give a favorable opinion on the 1932 educational fund tax warrants. It is then generally supposed that the board will be able to borrow some money, although no one has suggested it can get enough cash to meet its pay rolls for the remainder of the year.

3 INJURED FIGHTING $130,000 FIRE.

Kane, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Six warehouses, a garage, and the Pennsylvania cattle pens were burned today in a fire of unknown origin which did damage estimated by merchants at $130,000. Three volunteer firemen were injured.

SOCIETY GIRL SLAIN IN ALPS

[Acme Photo.]

Tells of Search

BRIG, Switzerland, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Helen Ibershoff of Cleveland, O., disclosed today she had spent all of last Thursday night hunting for her sister, Jerane, 21 year old Smith college student, who was found slain at the foot of Zermatt mountain.

Miss Ibershoff is waiting at Viege for the arrival of her mother from the United States. Her sister's body will be cremated. An unidentified itinerant still is being sought in connection with the crime.

Thursday morning, Miss Ibershoff recounted, her sister started on a bicycle excursion from Zermatt to Viege. Helen stopped to pick up a bicycle which was being repaired and they promised to meet that afternoon at their destination.

When Jerane did not appear at the stated time Helen started back on foot to find her sister. She must have passed the scene of the killing, but she saw nothing suspicious. She walked throughout the night and did not learn of her sister's death until she was informed at dawn by gendarmes on the road.

She was conducted to the spot and fainted at the sight of her sister's body. She was taken to a farmhouse temporarily and later to Viege, in the Rhone valley.

HIGH TAXES KILL 500 MILLION OF COUNTY REALTY

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

High taxes have driven an estimated $500,000,000 of taxable Cook county real estate out of taxation altogether in the last two years. The tax eaters have killed the goose that lays the golden egg.

The owners of this half billion dollars' worth of property could not pay their taxes. They even lacked the fee to file a retarding court proceeding, which would have delayed summary action against them. They permitted their property to be forfeited to the state. Therefore it is now out of taxation. It will probably be many years before all of it pays taxes again.

Under present rates these properties would have paid an aggregate of $12,027,000 in taxes last year on the 1929 assessment. This year they would have paid $13,229,000 on the 1930 assessment. That prospective income for the tax spenders has been lost because taxes are so high the owners could not, or felt they could not, pay them.

Last year high taxation resulted in forfeiting to the state real estate which had been valued by the assessors' appraisers at $408,700,000. The year before the property forfeited was valued at $91,300,000. In both instances these forfeitures were in addition to the accumulated forfeitures were in addition to the accumulated forfeitures.

This 500 million dollars of real estate out of taxation does not represent the total by any means, but the county records were not kept in shape to make a trustworthy estimate until County Treasurer McDonough segregated the items for the 1929 taxes.

The $12,027,497 of taxes against these "dead" properties for 1929 are more than the total assessed against 35 Illinois counties for 1931 for all state, county, municipal, and other purposes. Compare the $12,027,000 of unpaid and unpayable taxes on the "dead" real estate of Cook county with the 1931 taxes assessed against these 35 counties, which are shown in the following table:

County.	1931 taxes.	County.	1931 taxes.
Bond	$ 371,428	Brown	$ 218,178
Cass	592,201	Clay	323,362
Clinton	447,582	Calhoun	147,295
Cumberland	287,872	Clark	483,362
Edwards	227,464	Effingham	449,399
Fayette	451,404	Gallatin	223,264
Henderson	486,993	Hamilton	198,344
Hardin	115,053	Jasper	248,275
Jersey	353,711	Johnson	227,889
Kendall	453,906	Marshall	554,724
Menard	414,538	Massac	314,424
Monroe	311,678	Pope	119,869
Pulaski	282,619	Putnam	179,636
Richland	294,384	Stark	419,436
Schuyler	294,825	Scott	283,635
Union	401,301	Wabash	358,859
Washington	343,015	Wayne	375,390
White	427,863
	Total ..$11,588,335

This table shows that the real estate forfeited to the state in the last two years in Cook county was assessed $439,164 more in taxes last year than was assessed against these 35 counties. That excess is enough to pay all of Hardin county's taxes for more than three and a half years.

The assessment against this "dead" real estate in Cook county is enough to pay all the taxes of Peoria, Kane, Lake, St. Clair or Winnebago county for two to two and a half years. These are the largest tax-paying counties of the state outside Cook county.

The "lost taxes" are three times those assessed against Sangamon county, in which the state capital is situated. If McLean county, in which Bloomington is situated, had the "lost taxes" on forfeited real estate of Cook county in the last two years, that county would not have to pay taxes for more than four years.

The lost taxes on forfeited local real estate are nearly two-thirds of all of the taxes levied for cities and villages in the entire state outside of Cook county. They are approximately a fifth of all of the taxes spent on schools downstate.

Situation Called Serious.

Aside from the enormity of the tax loss for one year, the probable consequence of real estate forfeiture is regarded as far reaching and serious.

The owners of the $500,000,000 worth of lands, lots and buildings forfeited in Cook county were not members of any of the organizations protesting against high taxes. They were unable to pay, and did not pay.

These forfeitures have been added to the taxes for 1930. Interest has been piled on the heap. It is much more difficult to pay the taxes, penalties and interest now than it was last year.

Next year it will be still worse for the owners, with the result that a large percentage of this forfeited property will remain out of taxation for a number of years.

FRANCE NERVOUS OVER GERMANY'S WARLIKE DISPLAY

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—Although all of France's cabinet members were out of town today and nothing definite happened here regarding Germany's demand for equality in armaments, it is quite evident that the show of military force by Steel Helmets in Berlin yesterday and today has made the situation more difficult to handle.

The French want to be conciliatory, as shown plainly during the past week; but Premier Herriot is forced to remain responsive to public opinion, and this question is being asked tonight: How can the government make concessions while Germany is giving an exhibition of militarism intended to show that the nation has not changed from pre-war days?

Call Display Insult.

A majority of Paris newspapers consider the Steel Helmet parade in the light of an insult to France, and a deliberate flaunting of extralegal military strength at a time when the atmosphere is highly charged with trouble.

Officially, the matter is being ignored as of no concern to France, but it is no secret that official circles regret the already difficult task of persuading their country to accept the necessity of a relatively stronger Germany, and that it should have been made harder than need be.

As Le Temps says tonight: "It will be very difficult for the rest of the civilized world to close its eyes before such a spectacle and try to ignore it under the pretext of not aggravating the international unrest of the present moment.

"The parade of Steel Helmets demonstrates even more than the statements of Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, Germany's defense minister, the true sense of the German request for military equality. It is a request which means nothing else than the rearmament of the reich."

Note of Alarm.

Of the news versions carried by most newspapers that of the Havas Agency is frankly alarmist.

"Steel Helmet leaders affirm they do not wish a new war," it states. "It was, nevertheless, a military force which was acclaimed this morning by thousands of Germans, and if the reichswehr took no part in the parade it was represented by its commander, Von Schleicher, standing in the first row of spectators, and many other officers in full uniform."

Correspondents also made much of the attendance of former Field Marshal von Mackensen and members of the former royal family.

However, there was one dissenting opinion. It came from editorial writers of the left organ, Volonte, who ask plaintively why France did not accept the Hoover arms proposition during the Geneva conference. Had all countries joined in doing that, Volonte remarks that Germany would not have been in position to make her request.

BRAZIL TO PRINT $21,000,000 WORTH OF PAPER MONEY

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The federal government of Brazil today contracted for the printing of 505,000 contos of paper money, which is equivalent to $21,000,000 at the official rate of exchange.

The beginning of the ninth week of the war between the Rio de Janeiro government and the constitutionalists of Sao Paulo state today found the federals with a foothold on the important Mogyana railroad.

The drive in this section is the most serious facing the rebels, because the communications to the rich Ribera Preto section have been placed in difficulty.

FRANCE REJECTS INFLATION; WILL MAKE ECONOMIES

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—Whatever happens, France won't have recourse to inflation to balance the budget, Maurice Palmade said in a speech today. The budget director asserted that a balance would be obtained by governmental economies and proposed rentes conversion without it being necessary to abandon public works under construction or planned.

Much comment was aroused today by a newspaper article written by Lucien Lamoureux, budget reporter of the chamber's finance committee, suggesting that France should temporarily revive an emergency system of governing by decrees which was used under Poincare in 1926.

General opinion, however, is that the present situation does not approach in seriousness that of 1926. Then France was rocketing toward worthlessness after tremendous inflation. Now French money is one of the most strongly supported in the world.

Raid Beer Flat, Seize Woman After Shooting

The Gresham police yesterday raided the flat of Mrs. Antoinette Kweder, 40 years old, 8129 Vincennes avenue, after they had been informed a shooting affray occurred there during the early morning. In the flat a large quantity of beer, some wine and whisky, and a still were seized. Mrs. Kweder said there had been a celebrating crowd in her place and that at about 2 a. m. five men who were refused admittance fired into her windows. She denied that any one had been hit. She was held while a further investigation was carried on by Lieut. Walter Healy and Sergt. James Ryan.

COUNTY WILL SELL $1,000,000 WORTH OF TAX WARRANTS

Tomorrow or Wednesday the county will sell $1,000,000 worth of 1930 or 1931 tax anticipation warrants to the banks. Half of this money will be used immediately to pay 4,000 county employes their salaries for the period from May 15 to June 1. The remainder will be used to defray accumulated obligations to various county pension funds, which almost equal the semi-monthly pay rolls.

The sale of the warrants was announced yesterday by Emmett Wheelan, president of the county board. With Assistant Controller Michael J. O'Connor he has conducted a series of meetings with loop bankers during the last month in an effort to dispose of the warrants. The loan was won on the plea that the county's financial condition was better than that of any of the other large tax expending bodies.

Crowd Sees Gun Widow Put Flowers on Pollak's Grave

A crowd of several hundred persons, thronged the vicinity of the grave of "poor Joe" Pollak in Bohemian National cemetery yesterday, hoping for a glimpse of Mrs. Dorothy Pollak, the young widow, who had announced her intention of decorating his last resting place. Mrs. Pollak, who was acquitted last Thursday by Judge Harry Fisher of slaying the middleaged alky dealer, arrived about 3 o'clock with her blonde cousin, Mrs. Victoria Schultz. Clad in a new black velvet dress and a tiny black hat with a white bow, she deposited a large bouquet of gladioli and other flowers, touched her handkerchief to her eyes, and departed.

FOUR VETERAN THIEVES ATTEND POLICE SHOWUP

Four veteran pickpockets, with page long records of many arrests and few punishments, were placed on exhibition at the detective bureau showup yesterday by Deputy Chief Walter Storms, who made them hang their heads by calling them the lowest specimens of humanity.

They are John O'Keefe, 55 years old, whose record, extending from New York to Texas, began in 1891; Henry Marsh, 60 years old, whose criminal career began officially in 1882; Michael Murphy, 40 years old, who started out in 1910; and Edward Crawley, 50 years old, who has a 20 year record.

Each of the "cannons," as the police call them, declared the records were "bum raps." As none was identified by their victims, the pickpockets, who were arrested Friday while watching the animals in the Lincoln park zoo, will be charged with disorderly conduct.

CERMAK RETURNS TO LONDON FROM VISIT IN IRELAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Mayor Cermak of Chicago returned to London this morning after a two day visit in Ireland during which he strove to induce the Irish Free State to exhibit at Chicago's Century of Progress exposition in 1933. He spent a quiet Sunday, making a short trip around London. He received no callers at the Mayfair hotel.

Irish Consulate for Chicago.

NEXT CONGRESS MAY TRY TO CUT POSTAL DEFICIT

Overhauling of Methods, Rates Discussed.

cording to the department's cost accounting. Some metropolitan papers are strongly advocating readjustments which will wipe out the deficit attributable to the handling of periodicals, asserting that the newspapers should pay their way.

While it is indisputable that the newspapers circulated free within a county are carried at a loss there is much controversy as to whether other newspapers are handled at a loss and as to what rate changes would produce more revenue for this class of mail matter.

Brown Describes Methods.

The method by which the department establishes the cost of handling the various classes of mail is thus described by Postmaster General Brown:

"The cost ascertainment assumes to arrive at a cost of handling and transporting each class of mail and performing special service by allocating to each class, where the classes are handled separately, and to each service the direct cost for labor and transportation. Where two or more classes are handled jointly a division of such cost is made by processes of apportionment based upon ratios established by elaborate tests involving time, number of pieces, weight, volume, and average haul of the mail.

"The cost ascertainment does not take into account the different treatment given to the various classes which cannot be measured in terms of weight, volume, count, or dollars. Consequently there is no differential introduced to reflect the elements of preferred or deferred treatment."

Cost Basis Attacked.

This system of cost ascertainment which shows a large part of the deficit attributable to the handling of periodicals has been frequently attacked by the publishers as inaccurate and unfair. According to the publishers, the loss attributed to handling second class matter is largely the loss resulting from the operation of rural free delivery service, which costs one-seventh of the postal budget and handles one-sixtieth of the entire volume of mail.

"Today the cost of rural free delivery service is approximately 116 millions a year," said Elisha Hanson, Washington representative of the American Newspaper Publishers' association. "The revenues derived, however, from all mail emanating from and going on rural routes are less than a quarter of that enormous sum. More than 90 per cent of the circulation of newspapers which goes through the mails is distributed on the rural free delivery routes.

Fixed by Number of Pieces.

"Under the department's theory of cost accounting, the cost of the service rendered to the patron is fixed by the number of pieces of mail he receives. In other words, if one patron gets one first class letter, one newspaper, one piece of direct by mail advertising and a 50 pound brooder stove to raise his baby chicks the department figures the cost of delivering each one of these pieces of mail as identical. This is perfectly silly, particularly when one goes a step further and realizes that rural carriers are not paid by the hour, or by the weight, volume or value of the mail they carry, but solely by the number of miles they travel, and in addition to the compensation which they receive from the government they are given an allowance for the purchase and upkeep of vehicles."

Mr. Hanson said that it has been established that "the average cost to the postoffice department for railway transportation is about 12½ cents per hundred pounds and that the average receipts of the department for newspapers and periodicals are above $1.75 per hundred pounds."

Called "Policy Expenditures."

Rural free delivery Mr. Hanson classed among "policy expenditures" for which congress never expected reimbursement.

"All business users of the mails," he said, "should pay the government enough to handle their business as a business proposition, without a loss. But on the other hand, I do not believe they should pay enough to cover all the purely policy expenditures saddled on the department by congress."

TURATI, FORMER MUSSOLINI AID, IN MENTAL CLINIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 4.—Augusto Turati, who until two years ago was secretary of the Fascist party and the second most powerful man in the Italian régime, is a patient in a psychopathic hospital in Rome, it was announced in the newspapers today.

Turati has been associated with the Fascist movement since its beginning and directed the party as secretary for five years. When he left the secretaryship two years ago he was appointed director of the Turin newspaper Stampa, from which he was suddenly deposed about a month ago.

Several days ago the newspaper Impero, organ of violent Fascism, published an editorial inveighing against giving "too much exaltation to important personages in the Fascist régime, who might be suddenly changed and pass from high positions into disgrace." The edition containing the editorial was suppressed by police, who said that "the article contained insinuations likely to stir up strife."

TRAIL OF DEATH IN WAKE AS RIO FLOOD ROLLS ON Fear More Loss of Life on Lower River.

Laredo, Tex., Sept. 4.— (AP) —The raging Rio Grande carried its threat to life and property south of here today after causing possibly 10 or 15 deaths and enormous damage.

As the river receded at Laredo, where 15 or 20 persons were plunged into the flood in the collapse of part of the Missouri Pacific bridge, the crest moved slowly down stream.

Meanwhile, the U. S. weather bureau issued flood warnings for the territory near the river between Laredo and Brownsville, and residents began fleeing to higher ground.

Record Flood Predicted.

Reports from Brownsville were that all previous rises on the Rio Grande would be surpassed when the crest of the flood waters arrived in the lower Rio Grande valley.

A bulletin issued by the United States weather bureau predicted a stage of 35 feet would obtain at Rio Grande City by noon tomorrow or shortly thereafter, a stage one foot higher than that of the June, 1922, flood.

Three Mexican customs and immigration inspectors, who went down with the bridge and clung to driftwood 16 hours, were rescued from a raft and taken to Neuvo Laredo, a Mexican city opposite Laredo. Officials believed the others perished.

Early reports that many persons were drowned in Nuevo Laredo were denied after water covering the International footbridge had receded enough to permit precarious passage over great mounds of drift.

Property Damage Great.

No known loss of life in Nuevo Laredo was reported. The property damage in the Mexican city, however, was large. Foundations were washed from beneath many buildings within four blocks of the International bridge.

Several small residences near the river front were destroyed, others were badly damaged. The country on the Mexican side, both up and down the river, suffered heavy losses to live stock and poultry.

Railroad passengers from Mexico to Laredo and passengers from the opposite direction were forced to cross the bridge afoot to continue their journeys. All highways from Laredo were reopened after being closed by high water in creeks about the city.

POLICE RAID AND TONG BATTLE HIT CHINESE IN CUBA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 4.—A police raid and a tong battle today caused an uproar among the 150,000 inhabitants of Havana's Chinatown. Five hundred police swarmed into the district, comprising two square miles, with gambling and opium dens as their objectives. More than 100 arrests were made.

With the arrival of the police, Chinese fled in all directions, screaming incoherent Chinese curses. Police fired volleys in the air and proceeded with their arresting.

The tong warfare broke out when one faction accused another of betraying Yuan Shakai-liong, their leader, to the police. Fifteen Chinese were injured in the resulting clashes in which knives, stones and hatchets served as weapons. Police reserves ended the battle. Yuan Shakai-liong, the self-appointed wealthy "ruler of Havana's Mongolian empire," had been sought in connection with a murder.

IRISH FARMERS WIN $10 PRICE ON BARREL OF FLOUR

DUBLIN, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Irish Free State farmers can expect a price of $10 per barrel for flour as a result of government subsidies, Dr. James Ryan, minister for agriculture, told a meeting of farmers at Cashel today.

Millers will be compelled to take a stated percentage each year of wheat grown in the Free State, said Dr. Ryan. Over and above the price paid to the farmers the government will provide a subsidy, which, along with the millers' "average price," will make up the "guaranteed price." The latter will be increased from $9.40 per barrel to $10 as the season progresses, added Dr. Ryan.

In regard to barley and meats, the farmer would be provided with a "guaranteed market," the minister said. The government was endeavoring to protect and enlarge the home market for meats and other agricultural produce, he asserted, and would arrange for alternative foreign markets.

BOLIVIA REJECTS TRUCE PLEA OF NEUTRAL NATIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 4.—Bolivia today rejected a plea of neutral nations for a truce in connection with the Gran Chaco dispute with Paraguay, according to dispatches from La Paz, the capital. Suspension of mobilization "would leave us at the mercy of Paraguay," the government was reported as declaring.

Paraguay Predicts War.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Sept. 4.—Bolivia's refusal to suspend mobilization was generally interpreted here to mean that Bolivia wants war. This is now considered to be virtually inevitable unless some drastic action is taken by neutral nations. Paraguay, however, has little faith in such action, government leaders indicate.

Except for active organization of food supplies for the Gran Chaco area, there is little indication of unusual military activity here.

FALL FROM SWING CAUSES DEATH.

Injuries suffered on Aug. 7 when she fell out of a swing in Benton Harbor, Mich., caused the death of Mrs. Mary Reed, 77 years old, 5550 Cedar avenue, in the county hospital last night.

HEADS SPEAKERS

[Acme Photo.]

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Representative John W. Tilson, director of the speakers' bureau of the eastern Republican headquarters, announced today the appointment of Miss Helen Varick Boswell of New York to head the women's speakers' bureau. Among the speakers Miss Boswell has selected tentatively are Mrs. Ruth Baker Pratt, congresswoman and national committeewoman from New York; Mrs. Worthington Scranton, national committeewoman from Pennsylvania; Mrs. George A. Wyeth, president of the Women's National Republican club; Mrs. Edna B. Conklin, national committeewoman from New Jersey, and Miss Etta Leighton, secretary of the American Defense society.

AUTOIST KILLED IN CRASH; FIVE WOMEN INJURED

County Fatality Toll Mounts to 782.

An automobile containing five young women overturned at Racine avenue and Monroe street last night in a collision with another car. The driver of the other car was killed. He was Paul Kalafut, 24 years old, 4359 Honore street.

The women were taken to the Jefferson Park hospital where it was found that none of them had been seriously hurt. They are Miss Carrie Smet, 24 years old, of 1157 North Keeler avenue; Miss Mary McGinty, 21, of 1119 North Keeler avenue, and three sisters, Edith, Helen, and Evelyn Noble, of 1145 North Keeler avenue. They are 29, 21, and 16 years old respectively.

The five, with Miss Smet at the wheel, were on their way home from the Indiana dunes and were traveling west in Monroe street when the other car, going north in Racine avenue, crashed into them.

County Toll Reaches 782.

This death and two others increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 782. The other victims:

Harry Ketcham, 4 years old, 11140 Esmond street. Died in the Roseland Community hospital of injuries he received on Saturday when he was run down near his home by an automobile driven by A. E. Corse, 5641 South Francisco avenue.

James Boland, 42 years old, 5921 Morgan street, an electrician. Injured on Aug. 21 at 59th and Morgan streets and died yesterday in the county hospital. Mrs. Lena McDonough, colored, 608 West 47th street, was the driver of the car.

Miss Lucille Marsh, 28 years old, Detroit, was killed, and five other persons were injured in a headon collision between two speeding automobiles in the Lincoln highway, 8 miles southeast of Aurora, last night. The injured, all taken to the St. Charles hospital in Aurora, are Miss Helen Nihill, 24 years old, of Detroit, who was with Miss Marsh; Mr. and Mrs. William Swanson of Gelph, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Laird of Brantford, Ont. Miss Marsh and Miss Nihill were bound for a South Dakota vacation.

New Yorker Dies of Injuries.

The body of William H. Berger of New York City, was brought to Chicago yesterday from Newcastle, Ind., where he died Saturday in a hospital. Berger was fatally burned and his daughter, June, 7 years old, was instantly killed when his automobile overturned and caught fire Wednesday on a road near Newcastle. His wife, Addie, was injured.

The Bergers had been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berger, 4751 North Troy street, and were driving back to New York at the time of the accident. Funeral services for father and daughter will be held at 11 o'clock today in the chapel at 3021 Fullerton avenue, followed by burial in Jewish Waldheim cemetery.

Persia Closes Airports to European Air Mail Lines

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Sept. 4.—British, French, and Dutch air mail services between Europe and Asia probably will cease after October, because of the attitude of the Persian government, which has prohibited the future use of Persian airports. It is believed that Russia has influenced Persia to take this action. The Dutch minister is making representations to the government at Teheran.

JAPAN DECREES $39,600,000 FOR 'LITTLE FELLOWS'

Diet Votes Aid to Farmers in Special Session.

TOKIO, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The third special session of the Japanese diet this year ended late tonight after appropriations of about $39,600,000 had been made for the relief of farmers, fishermen and small merchants.

[Special sessions of the Japanese parliament were called in March and June to vote funds for the Manchurian and Shanghai military campaigns. Meanwhile the tremendous decline in silk and rice prices has caused distress at home that has forced rural families in many instances to subsist on cattle feed and soy bean fertilizer. Peasant delegations of late have focussed the government's attention on the domestic situation, and the diet session just ended was the answer.]

Conflict Prolongs Session.

The session lasted four days overtime owing to the conflict between the majority Seiyukai party in the house and the government.

A major political crisis probably was averted when the house of peers came to the support of the cabinet and enabled it to ride out the storm and achieve a compromise program. The situation was so serious several times, however, that the resignation of the cabinet or dissolution of parliament appeared imminent.

The Seiyukai party criticized the government program as inadequate to alleviate appreciably the dangerous rural discontent and distress.

End Manchurian Quiz.

PEIPING, China, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Working through the night, the league of nations commission today completed its report on the Japanese military adventure in Manchuria and disbanded. Its findings were forwarded to Geneva by air mail.

Questioned as to the tenor of the document and as to whether Japan's intention to recognize the state of Manchukuo would have any effect on its usefulness, Lord Lytton, chairman of the commission, replied:

"It is permissible to ask that question, but not permissible to answer it. I and the commission are now defunct. The report is unanimous and will be sent to Geneva by the quickest possible air route. It will be published simultaneously in Geneva, Tokio, and Nanking. More than that I cannot tell you."

The report was compiled over a period of six months after thousands of miles of travel.

The completed report is expected to be released Sept. 25.

Orders Japanese Studied.

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The new Manchukuo government of Manchuria has made the study of the Japanese language compulsory in all the schools within its jurisdiction.

200 Chinese Die In Battle.

KIRIN, Manchuria, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The Japanese troops operating in this section of northeastern Manchuria were reported to day to have killed 200 Chinese irregulars at Tunhua near here. A battle for the control of that town was reported still in progress.

SPAIN PREPARES TO TAKE NOBLES TO AFRICAN EXILE

MADRID, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Increased activity around the military prison here today was taken to indicate that a large number of prisoners, including many of the ranking nobility of Spain, were being taken to Africa. Reports were that three trucks were taking prisoners to Alcazar De San Juan, where a special train was ready to take them to Cadiz.

At the port city, the Espana V. was reported taking on stores. The transport can accommodate more than 200 persons, and it was to sail for Villa Cisneros, Africa. Officials were most secretive, but the prisoners from most reports were believed to be some of those arrested after the recent monarchist revolt, which was put down and three of its leaders sent to prison for long terms.

Meanwhile dispatches from Santander said the police at the nearby town of Cabreces had arrested a priest, Father Elias Alvarez, and charged him with complicity in the recent monarchist plot. At Malaga police seized 44,000 pounds of candy wrappers printed in the old monarchist color and allegedly intended as monarchist propaganda. The factory from which they were issued was closed.

200,000 RUSSIAN YOUTHS PARADE BEFORE DICTATOR

MOSCOW, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Approximately 200,000 shouting and cheering youths paraded in Red square this evening before Director Josef Stalin and other government and communist party leaders in celebration of the 18th annual international Youth day and the 15th anniversary of the young communists' Internationale.

Bands blared the "Internationale" and banners, posters and effigies were hoisted high as the youngsters representing every branch of industry, school, and sports organization marched gaily through the ancient square for two hours and a half. They were greeted by smiles and waves from Stalin.

The newspapers today called upon the younger generation in foreign countries to follow the lead of soviet youth in the battle against capitalists and imperialists.

Machado to Make New Changes in Cuban Cabinet

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 4.—There will be further cabinet changes after the Nov. 1 elections, President Gerardo Machado announced today. It is known that Dr. Ramiro Guerra will be the next secretary of public instruction and that Orestes Ferrara, secretary of state, will become secretary of the treasury. In that capacity the president will depend on him to solve Cuba's tangled financial and economic problems.

VOLSTEAD NOTE: UNCLE SAM THIRD LARGEST BREWER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—America is pressing England hard for second place among the beer brewing nations of the earth. Germany, of course, holds first place. Statistics of the German Hops association for the year 1931-'32 period credited Germany with 816,000,000 gallons brewed; England, 589,000,000, and United States, 550,000,000.

The Hops association statisticians took care to point out that the total attributed to the United States is not "official"—just an estimate made in accordance with the known consumption of hops. Americans used more hops than did the Germans in their brewing, and almost as much as the English. Germans make beer with less hops than the English, while the Volstead variety is heavily supplied with this fruit of the vine. Roughly, the Americans used 20 million pounds of hops last year.

But, German consumption continues to dwindle under the parching influences of the economic crisis. German hops are protected by prohibitive tariffs—$19 a hundredweight—and three-fourths of all hops used must be home grown. Then there is the beer tax. All of which works into a beer and hops surplus. Now the suds drinkers are clamoring for the government to reduce the tax and protection, thus automatically increasing the consumption. To date the pleas are ignored, and the government continues to devise costly means of "saving the hops."

PEASANTS CAN'T HAVE LAND BACK, SOVIET DECIDES

Moves to Hold Collective Farms Intact.

MOSCOW, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The soviet government moved to consolidate its collectivization gains today by decreeing that peasants leaving collective farms cannot regain the land they contributed to the communal enterprise.

While members of collective farms were not in fact forbidden to reassume their individualities as peasants, strong pressure against such action was exerted by provisions restricting them to free state areas and forbidding the alteration of collective farm boundaries with a view to regaining their original plots.

The fact that free state land would likely be a great distance removed from a given collective farm probably will act as a deterrent on those who otherwise might consider returning to individual farming.

"To Create Stable Ownership."

The decree was issued by the central executive committee of the communist party and the council of people's commissars and was designed to "create a stable land ownership in collective farms."

It declared that instances had been noted where peasants had abandoned the communal farms and had been given back their original land, resulting in a reduction in the size of the projects.

The decree gave no indication of the extent of the movement, but its very issuance suggested the trend might have assumed proportions which the government considered harmful to the collectivization program.

Offer Purchase Rights.

One of the main inducements offered to peasants to join the farms is a privileged status to purchase such manufactured articles as clothing, shoes and household goods. But the government's inability so far to provide these in sufficient quantities for rural needs is responsible for some dissatisfaction in the peasantry.

The measure also pointed out many cases in which part of collective farms arbitrarily had been taken over by state farms and stronger collective farms had been encroached on by weaker ones.

Such infringement of the borders of the farms in the future was prohibited except with special permission, and an increase in their sizes by the addition of new members was forbidden without a three fourths vote of the membership.

8 Year Old Girl Is Killed by Locomotive in Suburb

Patricia Skidmore, 8 years old, 428 East Maple street, La Grange, was fatally injured yesterday when she was struck by the engine of a freight train on the Indiana Harbor Belt line tracks at Maple street. She and another child were crossing the tracks to view a baseball game. Policeman George Zahora of Brookfield, who was passing, took the injured girl to her home where she died soon afterward.

RECORDS SHOW CITY SUICIDES ARE DECLINING

A decline in the number of suicides in Chicago was shown in a statement made public yesterday by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. The statement compares the suicide records of the first seven months of this year and the corresponding period of 1931. The number of suicides in each period, respectively, was 359 and 399, a decrease of 40 in this year's period.

"Whether this reflects a material improvement in economic conditions or not," said Dr. Bundesen, "it is at least a continuation of the improvement noted last year as compared with 1930. During 1930 there were 643 suicides, and in 1931 only 618, a decrease of 24."

In the first seven months of 1931 there were 313 men who committed suicide and 86 women. In 1932 the figures are 299 men and 60 women.

AT 74 CUTS NEW TOOTH.

Pana, Ill., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—D. L. Cearlock, seventy-four, old time Pana resident, toothless for several years, discovered today that he was cutting a wisdom tooth in his upper right side gum. It alarmed him for a time, but is giving him no pain, he said.

TIME DOES FLY AT TIMES WHEN BIRDS TAKE HAND

Elkader, Ia., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Two of Elkader's pigeons whose roosting was on too well regulated schedule are hunting a new perch and the town clock is now keeping good time.

The village fathers had been puzzled as to why the clock would gain time the first half of each hour and lose time the second half.

They found that the pigeons would hop onto the clock's big hand when it was about ten minutes after the hour. Their weight speeded up the machinery and the clock gained time until the hand pointed downward at such an angle that they lost their perch.

The birds would return when the hand neared the last quarter hour and ride upward for several minutes, causing the clock to run slower.

Graf Zeppelin Passes Cape Verde Isles. on Home Trip

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin, homeward bound from South America, passed the Cape Verde islands at 4 p. m. [10 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time].

Soldier of Fortune Here on Way to Legion Meet

Dan Edwards, world war veteran and soldier of fortune, stopped yesterday at the Palmer house on his way to the American Legion convention at Portland, Ore. Gen. Edwards—he held that rank in foreign armies after the war—was a sergeant in the A. E. F. and is one of the few soldiers to hold both of the United States' highest military decorations, the Distinguished Service Cross and the Congressional Medal of Honor.

30 YEARS BEFORE THE FIRST LABOR DAY

SARGENT'S

WAS SERVING CHICAGO

In 1882, Labor Day was first celebrated. It was not the auspicious event it is today—but it had its adherents, and Sargent's was one of them. In 50 years Labor Day has grown to take its place as a national holiday along with Christmas, the Fourth of July and those other days dear to all Americans.

In 1882, Sargent's Drug Store was 30 years old. For thirty years, therefore, it had been serving laborers and clerks, tradesmen and tycoon in the manner in which E. H. Sargent, the founder, approved. It was strictly a drug store. Filling prescriptions was then, as it is now, its only business. Highly trained pharmacists were employed to give their trained intelligence to the compounding of prescriptions as doctors write them.

1932 finds Sargent's recognized everywhere as one of the leading drug stores of the world. Eighteen of the finest pharmacists in the country are in its laboratories, filling the prescriptions of physicians from all over the civilized world. Under the leadership of Mr. Edward Merz and Mr. L. Breckwoldt, who have continued the business as Mr. Sargent began it, Sargent's has won the respect of every doctor and patient with whom it has had business dealings.

On this great day—devoted significantly to the men and women who win their daily bread by physical toil—Sargent's Drug Store pauses in its service to say "thank you" to its many fine customers in this great industrial group.

MRS. O'DONNELL WINS WOMEN'S OPEN AIR RACE

Speeds 185 M. P. H. as Rain Cuts Visibility.

BY HUGH SEXTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Cal., won the Aerol trophy, emblematic of the women's free for all speed championship of the nation, today after a driving rain which rendered visibility almost zero had caused race officials to call the race at the end of four ten mile laps. She won the same race in 1930.

In first place at the end of the eight laps, which the women racers finished—ignoring the red flags waved at them at the end of the fourth lap—was Mrs. Mae Haislip of St. Louis, but she was officially placed second, her position at the end of the fourth lap. She has finished in second place in every previous running of the classic. Miss Florence Klingensmith of Minneapolis was third and Mrs. Betty Lund of Troy, O., fourth.

Speed of 185 Miles an Hour.

Mrs. O'Donnell drove Ben Howard's Menasco powered racer, Mike, at a speed of 185.476 miles an hour for the forty miles that officially constituted the race. Mrs. Haislip in her husband's Wedell Williams racer, powered by a Wasp junior motor, in which he won the Bendix race and set a new coast to coast record last week, raced at a speed of 183.126 miles an hour. Miss Klingensmith raced John Livingston's Warner powered monocoupé at a speed of 173.959 miles an hour. Betty Lund flew Art Davis' Waco, powered by a Wright J-69 motor.

Mrs. Maud Tait Moriarity, who won the race last year with an average speed of 187.574 miles an hour, qualified her Gee Bee racer this morning at a speed of 214.014 miles an hour, but her motor developed carbueretor trouble and she was unable to start in the race. Her test speed was four miles per hour faster than the women's world speed record for land planes, 210.636 miles per hour, held by Ruth Nichols. To break the record officially she would have had to fly 4.87 miles an hour faster than the old mark.

Rain Hampers Women Racers.

Hurtling around the ten mile course at a speed of more than 200 miles an hour, four women pilots were almost hidden by a driving rain that swept across the airport on the fourth of eight laps.

At the end of the first lap, Mrs. Haislip flashed past the home pylon first. Miss Klingensmith was in second place, and Mrs. O'Donnell in third place and Mrs. Lund fourth.

On the next lap Mrs. O'Donnell was in first place, after passing both Mrs. Haislip, who fell to third place, and Miss Klingensmith. It was presumed that Mrs. Haislip had missed a pylon and circled it in order to avoid being disqualified. Mrs. Lund remained in fourth place throughout the race.

Mrs. Haislip passed Miss Klingensmith, going into second place, at the home pylon on the third lap and took first place from Mrs. O'Donell before the end of the fourth lap at the home pylon. Miss Klingensmith remained in third place, and Mrs. Lund in fourth place. This lap officially ended the race, but the contestants had been started 15 seconds apart, Mrs. Haislip starting ahead of Mrs. O'Donnell and having less than 15 seconds' lead at the finish.

Fly Last Laps Blind.

As the four racers roared past the stands, heavy rain swept over the airport. A dark cloud inclosed the north end of the field and two radio towers disappeared in the murk. The women were flying blind. Spectators, driven from their seats by a downpour once before this afternoon, were electrified by the danger to the four women in their fast planes, who stayed in their ships, oblivious to the rain.

Flagmen took red flags out to the finish line. One at a time as the four planes appeared out of the heavy cloud and roared over the line, they waved frantically, calling the racers down. But the small planes roared on, disappearing again in the gray mist.

Mrs. Charles Hays, mother of Mrs. Haislip, who was sitting in the press stand, watched the sky to the north with anxious eyes while her daughter remained out of sight and hearing.

Mrs. O'Donnell in the tiny white Mike flashed out of the mist around the home pylon and was gone again into the cloud. Miss Klingensmith sped past in the yellow monocoupe. Suddenly, with a roar of the motor and a high whine of the propeller, Mrs. Haislip flew out of the mist to the north over the finish line and off into the mist again. Mrs. Hayes breathed a sigh of relief and laughed nervously.

Surprised at Winning.

The racing women went around two more laps, finishing the eight laps that constituted the race.

When they landed Mrs. O'Donnell, veteran of many transcontinental Derbies, was surprised to hear that she had won the race.

"Why, I flew the entire eight laps," she said. "I didn't see them flag us down. In fact, I could see very little. I sort of flew the course by instinct. I couldn't even see the pylons for a while. I am saturated."

"Wasn't that a terrible landing?" she said. "You know, I have never flown that ship before. It is so small and sensitive that I thought I'd not be quite used to it before the race ended. I've never flown through such terrible weather in all my life."

Mrs. Haislip called the rain "horrible."

"I bumped around so much I didn't know whether I was upside down or not. I could not see the pylons half the time, especially along the north end of the course," she said.

McCray Wins Stinson Cup.

Neil R. McCray of Fair View, Pa., won the twenty-four mile race for the Edward A. Stinson memorial cup and a $450 first prize this afternoon with an elapsed time of 16 minutes 3.08 seconds. He flew a Stinson Jr. [Lycoming motor]. Second prize of $250 was taken by Jack Morris of Pittsburgh, Pa., and third prize of $150 by John C. Barstow, both of whom flew Stinson Jr. planes powered by Lycoming motors.

Al Wilson, the Hollywood stunt pilot who was critically injured in the crash of his 1910 model Curtis pusher biplane when it was drawn into the vortex of an autogiro's blades yesterday, suffered five broken ribs and a fractured skull, physicians at the Berea hospital said. He has a chance of living, they said.

Paul Bloom, of Davenport, Iowa and William A. Warrick Jr. of Cleveland, injured in a crash during a sportsmen's pilot's race, on Friday, are recovering at the Berea hospital.

KILLS HIMSELF IN HOME.

RITES TO HONOR AIR MAIL PILOTS KILLED ON DUTY

Mark Anniversary of Pioneer Flight.

On Sept. 6, 1918, the first plane of the United States air mail service landed in Grant park from New York. Tomorrow morning memorial services for air mail pilots killed in the line of duty since the inauguration of the service will be held on the spot where the plane landed. The services will be held under the auspices of the events committee of the American Legion air meet, the Chicago Historical society and the Cook county council of the American Legion. The air meet will be held at Sky Harbor airport next Sunday.

The ceremonies tomorrow will start at 11 a. m. and will be in charge of Capt. B. B. Lipsner, first superintendent and "father" of the air mail service. Capt. Lipsner is executive chairman of the legion's air meet committee.

Recall Pioneer Flights.

"The air mail service today is so much a part of our daily lives that little thought is given to the men who started the service," Capt. Lipsner said. "The ceremonies will commemorate the pioneer flights made against tremendous odds, so that the United States might establish the first regularly operated air mail service in the world."

Edward V. Gardner was the first air mail pilot to land in Grant park—just north of Monroe street—after taking off from Belmont race track on Long Island, Capt. Lipsner said. The flight required 23 hours and 47 minutes. Gardner carried 400 pounds of mail. Gardner and two others of the first pilots were later killed.

Will Attend Ceremonies.

Besides Capt. Lipsner, others who took an active part in the planning and arrival of the first mail plane are William B. Carlisle, postmaster in Chicago at the time of the plane's arrival; Judge K. M. Landis, B. E. Sunny, Charles H. Dickinson, and John T. McGrath. All are expected to attend the ceremonies.

Others who will attend are Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder, Dr. Otto Schmidt, past president of the Chicago Historical society; Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, and Benjamin F. Meyers, present assistant superintendent of the air mail.

Ruler Pays $1,000,000 for Vast Estate in Austria

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Sept. 4.—The prince of Liechtenstein, ruler of one of the smallest principalities in Europe, has just purchased a huge estate near Kalwang. He purchased it from Baron Rudolph Guttmann, Austrian coal magnate. The price was $1,000,000.

The prince calculates that the properties he now owns in Austria are double the size of his little principality.

GERMAN ROUND WORLD FLYERS REACH TOKIO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 4.—Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, German 'round the world flyer, arrived in Tokio at 9 o'clock tonight by train for a week's visit before continuing his flight.

The captain with his three companions in the Groen land-Wal flying boat landed the seaplane at Kasumigaura naval airport, near Tokio, at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon to the cheers of several hundred Germans and Japanese, including representatives of the government's ministers, who were unable to be present because of a session of the diet.

Hold Brief Reception.

Von Gronau and his companions were conducted to a tent at the airport, where a brief reception was held. The flight commander responded to the welcome in a few words. He said that he was overjoyed with the "uneventful flight" on the 800 mile hop from Namuro over the dangerous Kuriles islands. The aviator attributed the success of the flight to ideal weather. The flyers covered the distance in 5 hours 22 minutes.

He said that he will fly next to Kagoshima, in the Philippines at the southern end of Kyushu island, and then afterward to Manila.

Log of Flight.

July 22—Left island of Sylt, Germany, arrived Seydisfjoerdur, Iceland.
July 23—Arrived Reykjavik, Iceland.
July 26—Arrived Montreal, Canada.
July 29—Arrived Ottawa.
July 30—Arrived Detroit, Mich.
Aug. 2—Arrived Chicago, Ill.
Aug. 11—Arrived Lac du Donnet, Manitoba.
Aug. 14—Arrived Lake Cormorant, Manitoba.
Aug. 19—Arrived Prince Rupert, B. C.
Aug. 25—Arrived Dutch Harbor, Alaska.
Aug. 13—Arrived Kanara island, Aleutian archipelago.
Sept. 1—Arrived Attu island, Aleutians.
Sept. 2—Arrived Paramushiru island, Kuriles, Japan.
Sept. 3—Arrived Nemuro, Japan.
Sept. 4—Arrived Tokio.

Tonight the flyers are resting at the German embassy. Their ship will be overhauled in preparation for the next hop about Sept. 13.

One Killed, Four Injured in Pair of Auto Accidents

Lincoln, Ill., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Automobile crashes claimed one life and four other persons were injured here. Gordon West, 35, of Mount Pulaski was killed and Ben Duff, 30, also of Mount Pulaski, was severely injured when their car crashed into a bridge near Mount Pulaski early today. Edward Luckhart, 32, of Lincoln, sustained a severe skull fracture while Earl Pinney of Chicago and Mrs. William Bender of Mount Pulaski received minor injuries when a truck and a car crashed in Lincoln last night. Luckhart may die.

MEXICO ELECTS GEN. RODRIGUEZ TO PRESIDENCY

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Gen. Abelardo L. Rodrigues, minister of war and a powerful military figure for many years, was elected and inaugurated president of Mexico today shortly after congress had accepted the resignation of Pascual Ortiz Rubio on account of "ill health."

In the interval between the acceptance of his resignation and the installation of his successor, retiring President Ortiz Rubio left for the United States on a special train to spend several months at Hot Springs, Ark. He is traveling via Juarez and El Paso, Tex., because of the destruction of the international bridge at Laredo.

Planes Circle Overhead.

A joint session of congress elected Gen. Rodriguez to fill out the unexpired term of his predecessor and a commission was dispatched to bring him to the chamber. Accompanied by most of the retiring cabinet ministers, he entered and took the oath of office while two squadrons of airplanes circled overhead.

Going immediately to the palace, President Rodriguez issued a statement in which he said:

"Naturally, I will continue the same friendly, cordial relations with the United States that have existed.

"I have been highly honored by congress by appointment as substitute constitutional president of Mexico to complete the term. I will do all possible that is necessary to comply with my duties.

Pledges Unity and Action.

"I will form a serious national government which will be characterized by unity and action and which will carry confidence and tranquility to the republic in order that all sections of the country will be able to dedicate themselves to work, thus gaining the reconstruction and economic development of the nation.

"I will proceed to carry out the postulates of the revolution and the party program, adjusting my acts to the mandates of the law and the limitations and specifications of the constitution."

His first official act was to name Francisco Javier Gaxiola as his private secretary and Gen. Juan F. Azcarate as chief of the presidential staff. It was rumored that he would name Gen. Joaquin Amaro to his former post of minister of war, but he himself gave no indication as to the composition of his cabinet.

Ortiz Rubio's train later stopped at a suburb of Mexico City, to await Gen. Amaro and others who will accompany him as far as the border.

Motor Cars Crowd Highways; Congestion Is Promise Today

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—THE TRIBUNE roadster was in the motorists' exodus from Chicago this morning—and the use of the word exodus is not an exaggeration. If all roads were as busy as those leading to Wisconsin—and there's every reason to believe they were—there were half a million automobiles on the highways of Chicagoland today.

A blue sky free of clouds drew city dwellers into the country for the double holiday. If this weather continues, it will be futile to advise Chicagoans to return home before the late afternoon and evening traffic jams tomorrow. The forecast is generally fair.

THE TRIBUNE roadster left Chicago at 9 o'clock this morning on the Milwaukee road and found the pavement crowded with picnickers and excursionists. Hand baggage and lunch baskets were strapped to many running boards and bumpers. There were trucks carrying parties to forest preserves. Fishing poles were tied to a few sedans, and there were golf clubs in many tonneaus.

Orderly on This Road.

On the forty foot section of Milwaukee, extending as far north as Half Day, the heavy traffic was moving with orderliness and dispatch. The rough, old concrete in the two center lanes was keeping cars to the outside except when passing. There were only a few automobiles blocking traffic by loafing in the center lanes. One of these carried a star over its license, IH. 607,275.

North of Half Day, on the two lane pavement, there was a slow parade all the way to Libertyville. Able automobiles were held to the slow pace of the occasional truck or creeping junk. The hills and curves through the rich farmland prohibited passing in heavy traffic without considerable risk.

Milwaukee road, for the narrow stretch between Libertyville and Half Day, is carrying the Waukegan road detour markers, while Waukegan road is being widened west of Lake Forest. It's a place to be avoided if possible, between 3 p. m. and 10 p. m. tomorrow.

Fifty-Five Miles from Loop.

The traffic was still dense through Antioch and into Wisconsin, 55 miles from the loop. White knickers and colored sweaters dotted the green golf courses along the route. Blue and yellow wild flowers are blooming in the roadside.

The main street of Lake Geneva was packed solid with parked cars, a large portion of them bearing the Chicago windshield stickers. This is the last week-end for many of the summer residents. They are closing their lakeside cottages to return to Chicago for the children to enter school.

Continuing north, foloiwng the U. S. 12 markers, there were still a large number of Chicago cars headed for the resorts on the Wisconsin river around The Dells or for the fishing streams and lakes in the timber country on both sides of the Wisconsin-Michigan line. With cooler weather the fishing is expected to improve.

A Few Returning Early.

There were a few, but very few, south-bound Chicago motorists on the roads hereabout today who apparently were vacationists returning to the city before tomorrow's rush. One man was seen bringing back his canoe strapped to the top of his car. Three or four sedans were loaded with summer camp paraphernalia.

The summer vacation reason is at its peak today. Tomorrow night it will virtually have ended. This Labor day finale in other years has been attended by the heaviest traffic movement of the year. Precedent forecasts congestion for tomorrow.

U. S. PRIESTS TO HEAD NEW JESUIT BAGDAD SCHOOL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BAGDAD, Iraq, Sept. 4.—An American Jesuit secondary school will be opened next month in Bagdad. The head master of the school, the Rev. William Rice, S. J., and its administrator, the Rev. Edward F. Madaras, S. J., arrived recently to complete arrangements.

Father Rice was until recently rector of the scholasticate at Shadowbrook, West Stockbridge, Mass., and Father Madaras was connected with Loyola university, Chicago. Faculty members have also been recruited from American states.

The institution was undertaken at the express invitation of Pope Pius XI. It will open under the direction of a holding association incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia. The English language will predominate as the instrument of instruction, but courses will be adapted to the cultural and vocational need of the students. Stress will be laid upon the Arabic language and the history of ancient and modern Iraq.

CZECHS OPPOSE 'KISS THE HAND, MADAME,' HABIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 4.—The Czechs have had about enough of bowing low and kissing the hand. It was an Austrian custom, anyway, they say. And the Czechs and Austrians never did get along, within the old empire or after its breakup. So a society has been formed. Its purpose is to remove from the Czech vocabulary and manner the habit of saying, "Kiss the hand, madame."

In German, which all Czechs speak more or less, one says, "Kuesse die hand, gnaedige frau." This term "gnaedige frau," Czech society doesn't like either. Literally it means "gracious lady," but the Austrians use it as a term of address as the French use "madame." One says, "good morning, gnaedige frau. How are you, gnaedige frau?" and so on.

Czech society urges the suppression of these expressions, arguing that they have no place in the virile life of the north slavs. Even the musical hit, "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame," which was popular a few seasons ago comes under the Czech ban.

People have always sought the largest market where there are more opportunities to make a more satisfactory selection quickly, and with least effort.

The larger the market the more prospects it attracts, and the more numerous are the chances for rental advertisers who enter it to rent apartments.

The Tribune not only printed more rental advertising during the first seven months of this year than any other Chicago newspaper, but it has carried more want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper during each of the past twenty years.

The Tribune also reaches far more families in Chicago and suburbs, daily and Sunday, than any other Chicago newspaper.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE PROBLEM BEFORE THE SPECIAL SESSION.

The governor has issued his call for a special session of the legislature to convene Wednesday. The session is to be devoted largely to measures of relief, direct and indirect.

The legislature is asked to pass laws which will enable Illinois to benefit from the funds voted by congress at its last session for home loan banks, housing and other reproductive investments. These matters should be comparatively simple.

The most difficult problem is the raising of money for direct relief of the destitute. Congress appropriated $300,000,000 for this purpose, to be administered by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. That agency has already advanced $9,000,000 to Illinois and has said that no more money will be forthcoming until Illinois taps its own resources more thoroughly than it has.

We have no quarrel with this decision. Direct relief of the distressed is not and ought not to be a function of the federal government under any except the most extraordinary circumstances and certainly not before the state and local governments have made every effort to care for their own unfortunates. But it is one thing to admit the principle and quite another to employ it. If Illinois is to find additional funds for the unemployed, the question of where and how the money is to be raised has to be faced.

How difficult this problem is in Illinois will be recognized by any one familiar with the tax situation in the state and particularly in Cook county. General property taxation is already a year and a half behind schedule and is destined to be almost two full years in arrears before the next tax collection is started. In spite of that respite, property owners in Cook county have produced hardly more than half of the money demanded of them in their last tax bills, those for the year 1930.

As Mr. Hewitt has shown, taxes are delinquent for 1930 on close to five billion dollars of property, which is 47 per cent of all the property found in Cook county by the assessors. In terms of the amounts billed to the taxpayers, Cook county has collected only 153 million dollars of the 290 million dollars which it demanded from its citizens. The delinquencies for 1928 and 1929 are smaller, but still substantially larger than in previous years.

These figures can mean only one thing: that the people of Cook county are unable to produce the amounts of money which their state and local governments have been levying. To be sure, some taxpayers may be escaping their fair share of the burden, but, by and large, the community is not dodging, but simply unable to find the money demanded of it. Under these circumstances any new type of taxation is more than likely to add to the existing difficulties. Any collections from some new form of tax will result in still greater delinquencies in the existing taxes.

Practically speaking, the only way that money can be found for direct relief is by reducing the costs of existing government. A step has already been taken in that direction by transferring the county's share of the receipts from gasoline taxes to relief. That means that the county's road program has been sacrificed. The alternative of an increase in gasoline taxes may well result in a counterbalancing loss in revenues from this source as a result of decreased purchases of gasoline. In any event, the amount taken in the form of gasoline taxes will mean that much less money in the hands of the people of Illinois with which to pay their existing property taxes.

The notion that the added millions needed to prevent suffering this winter can be found without difficulty will not stand examination. The incomes that must be tapped, if relief is to be granted, must be the incomes of the governments, not those of the citizens. If the legislature commands all the state and local tax spenders to reduce their outlays, perhaps by some fixed percentage, the amounts so saved might be devoted to poor relief. All other schemes must inevitably fail to produce revenue and must add substantially to our tax caused depression.

BRITISH CRIME GOES AMERICAN.

A dispatch from London reports that 2,000 policemen were mobilized Wednesday for the biggest drive against crime the city has ever known. All highways leading to London are being watched by the police. Detachments were stationed at 100 yard intervals at the main entrances and at all the bridges and every motorist was halted and questioned.

To the American public this is what was called in the Victorian metaphor a bolt from the blue. We have been told for years and believed that crime in England was almost like snakes in Ireland. The British criminal we had supposed existed chiefly for the benefit of the funny papers. He never went armed and submitted to arrest with a certain sturdy British pride in the efficacy of British law and the majesty of the British constitution.

Of late, it is true, we have read temperate reference from time to time to an increase of violent crimes in London, with the inevitable suggestion that it was another manifestation of Americanization, not perhaps so deplorable as the deterioration of "standard English" through the invasion of Americanisms or the popularity of American films, but still a matter to be looked to presently. The amiable British criminal who guilelessly ventured to America to practice has returned or been returned to the mother country, but alas, how changed! He has discovered the automobile and the automatic. He has become a "gunman," infected with the disrespect for the law and the constitution which no jolly burglar or highwayman in merry England ever revealed before. Worst of all, he is importing the most deplorable Americanisms into the sacred precincts of the king's English. High time, say we, for a police cordon.

KANSAS AND WHAT OTHERS?

And now the primaries in California have added their evidence of the nation-wide demand for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. The victors in both primaries for the senatorship are committed to repeal.

It is difficult to say which party's action is the more striking. The Republicans defeated Senator Shortridge, who had been a dry but had advanced to the point of indorsing the Republican national platform. With all the machine support which a senator can command, Mr. Shortridge was still unable to defeat a relatively unknown candidate, Mr. Tallant Tubbs, whose campaign consisted largely of a strident demand for repeal at the first moment possible. The drys were left far behind. Among them was the Rev. Bob Shuler, the sort of fanatic who was riding high only a few years ago, a man who has enjoyed the enormous political advantage of a private radio station with which to broadcast his name throughout the state. He came in third.

On the Democratic side the result is scarcely less startling. There the winner was William G. McAdoo, but he won only after he had repudiated his dry past and announced his unqualified support of the Democratic platform with its demand for repeal and beer. His opponent was no less wet.

California, which until recently was regarded as among the dry states, gave, in the two primaries, close to 800,000 votes to wets and considerably less than 500,000 to drys, if Mr. Shortridge is to be regarded as a wet. If he is a dry there was still a clear wet majority in the state.

It will require thirteen states to keep the eighteenth amendment in the constitution. A few years, even a few months, ago political observers even among the wets were doubtful if the amendment would ever go. They said thirteen states could always be found to support the amendment. Now even the drys are wondering where their thirteen states are to be found. North Carolina and Virginia are lost. California has left the fold. Kansas looks like the only sure thing.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN.

Gov. Roosevelt has referred on numerous occasions to the forgotten man. It is not always clear what he means, but he seems to be saying that the forgotten man is an individual in distress for whom the government is doing nothing. The forgetting has been done by the government. A more precise word than forgotten for what the governor seems to have in mind would be neglected.

Because a good deal is likely to be heard in the campaign about this forgotten man, it is well to remember that the phrase was first used in 1883 by Prof. William Graham Sumner in an address which he called "The Forgotten Man." (It can be found in the collected works of Prof. Sumner, published in 1918 by the Yale Press.) Prof. Sumner would have been indignant at the use to which Mr. Roosevelt has put the phrase. Prof. Sumner's forgotten man is the antithesis of Mr. Roosevelt's. When Mr. Roosevelt's forgotten man is helped by the government Prof. Sumner's forgotten man foots the bill.

No one pays much attention to Prof. Sumner's man "because he is independent, self-supporting, and asks no favors. He does not appeal to the emotions or excite the sentiments." But there he is; and Gov. Roosevelt can help his forgotten man only by sacrificing Prof. Sumner's man.

Two utterly diverse theories of government are here presented. Prof. Sumner holds that it is the first duty of government to protect the citizen in his civil liberty, which he defines as "the status of the man who is guaranteed by law and civil institutions the exclusive employment of all his own powers for his own welfare." Gov. Roosevelt seems to say that a primary duty of government is to provide for the weak and unfortunate. Prof. Sumner's government is a government of free men; Gov. Roosevelt's government is a government of paternalism in which the governors get the credit for humanitarianism and the votes which go with it, but Prof. Sumner's men foot the bills.

Editorial of the Day

LABOR'S RECORD.

[Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald.]

"The most eloquent sermon ever delivered might be written about the unselfish and coöperative spirit shown by employés in their willingness to split up the available work among themselves and to share their loaf with one another." This is perhaps the most striking passage in Myron C. Taylor's interview on the rotation system of the United States Steel corporation appearing in Monday's Age-Herald. Mr. Taylor tells the story of how his company has sought to distribute employment as widely as possible and to supply the needs of workers while "the steel family has been kept intact."

Very properly he gives special emphasis to the spirit shown by employés. In that applause he will be joined by other industrialists who have observed the same fine attitude among their men. Almost everywhere labor has exhibited a self-restraint, a sense of proportion, a depth of understanding, a loyalty to order, and a ready generosity which together make up the most hopeful development of the depression.

We do not have to go far afield to realize what this has meant. In the Birmingham district, though workers have been on the ragged edge for many months, they have refused to resort to violence or to strikes, and so have permitted staggering industry to proceed without any additional handicap. When you come to think of it, nowhere in this district has any major trouble occurred as an expression of labor's resentment toward methods used by employers under the stress of an economic collapse. That is a pregnant fact.

Workers and management were all in the same boat. Nothing was to be gained by overreaching on either side. So employers have done everything in their power to give their employés a chance to make ends meet. By the same token workers have refused to hedevil the situation with arbitrary demands, while at the same time they have shared their loaf with one another. The social significance of the peace and goodwill which have prevailed despite all the irritations of painful experience cannot be overestimated.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the gaffs fall where they may.

TAMMANY ought to send a letter to the "My Most Embarrassing Moment" department. Something like this: "Now, here we are. If we come out strong for our Democratic candidate for President we give our own Tammany chosen Jimmie Walker a swift kick in the pants. If we stand by Jimmie Walker and try to hoist him back to his old job we're throwing an awful big monkey wrench into Gov. Roosevelt's chances (if any) for election. Talk about standing between the devil and the deep blue sea. Goodness, we feel just as though poor old Tammany had one foot on a banana peel and the other way deep into an open grave. Goodness, we're so embarrassed, you can't imagine!"

"MR. SKINNER" was the name used by the mysterious Montagu Norman when he visited the U. S. A. incognito last week. We don't know whether Mr. Norman did anything about declaring null and void the war debts Great Britain owes us or not, but we distinctly hate his pseudonym of "Mr. Skinner," it's so suggestive.

COMMENT.

Nothing old is beautiful
As youth, youth only,
Heedless, angular and hurt,
Blundering and lonely.

Crying after loveliness,
Dreaming last and first,
Youth believes its hunger;
Youth obeys its thirst.

Never think the old are wiser;
All they have of truth,
All they hope of heaven
They would give for youth.

"THE FACT that they differ with me," says Mr. Hoover, in restoring to his job the postal clerk at Gary, Ind., who was fired for advocating the soldiers' bonus, "does not necessarily constitute 'political activity,' which is forbidden by law." But, Mr. Hoover, may we not point out that the postal clerk did not differ with you. He could not agree with you, but he differs from you. Only the Democrats differ with, by, at, and to you.

THE JAPANESE rise right up and in a loud tone of voice demand to know why the United States fleet has been suddenly concentrated in the Pacific. Of course, it is the place of our w. k. Sec. of State to tell 'em, but as he says nothing we will have to do so. The United States fleet, Japanese, has been concentrated in the Pacific to hunt for elephants and tigers and bring them back alive to the Smithsonian institution in Washington.

THEY BRAKE THA NEWS TO THA DUKE.

Dick, While you was gallavantin around Washington with tha Hooey-Polloi, I'm going thru a helova ordeal. Twice, tha doctors gave me up. (Seems they didn't figger I had any dough.) Enyway, here's what happens, lass Wednesday at 5 in tha morning tha B. an' C. drops my shoes in my face an' tells me to get dressed as we're going pell-mell to tha hospital. First of all there aint a pell-mell left in that jalloppy of mine and there's only one gal. of gas in her altho tha night before when I was 2 bucks short I had tole tha Mama I spent it havin' tha tank filled. I gotta hunch she doubted this 'cause she asks if it was my tank or tha one on tha car, then she wants to know why I didn' bring home tha set of dishes that there givin' this week. Well, we arrive O. K. an after tha night clerk rubs tha goo out of his lamps he says hello Duke are youse guys checkin out and I says no we is checkin in an he says it seems like you just got here 2 weeks ago an I hadda explain that he was thinkin of last year when Mary was born. I always get a laff outa watchin the new expectant fathers doing tha linoleum marathon. One guy this year lit a cigarette, shoved tha burnt match in his snoot an threw tha cigarrette away. After stretchin out an gettin a cupple hours of chair sleepin tha nurse tells me it's another girl. Did I bawl out tha Mama? I tells her I expected a plumber or a brick-layer an she tries to soft-soap me by saying maybe tha kid will turn out to be a school-teacher (aint that sumpin) now I gotta go an buy a barrel to put tha tax warrants in. This here going down to tha storeroom every year draggin up tha tin bath tub an a lodda other junk is out, from now on they stay in tha flat. Tha B. an' C. an her nut girl frens are havin a helova time picking out a new name fer tha infant, ya see they don't invent new monickers as fast as we bring on tha material. Leah suggests Shirley Ann, Madeline says Constance Viola, Blanche prefers Cynthia Nell, an Irene wants it called Irene (she would). Seems tha beautiful romantic names like Tilda, Sophie, or Martha aint being used so much any more. When I gets to tha office tha hand-out gang is all laying fer me figgering I'm going to pass the cigars but you can't guess what I'm passing this year fer certain reasons.

AND NOT ONLY does the racket thing include hip likker and white mule; now the racketeers are muscling in on the ginger ale drinkers. In the interests of health we wish the racketeers would tackle spinach. Then, if spinach were made hard to get and costly, people would be tumbling over themselves trying to get it and spinach bootleggers would pop up all over the place. Oh, how we would all eat spinach! EPIDEMIC BOILS.

THERE is no disease that superintendents and nurses in baby hospitals dread more than impetigo. Those who are disposed to object will cool down when they know that the impetigo referred to is epidemics of boils in babies. This disease is contagious—not as much so as measles but on a par with, say, scarlet fever. The measles microbe is in the blood and it causes fever and results in pneumonia in many cases.

The impetigo microbe is in the skin, and the blood and lungs usually escape, but the skin is full of nerves and the pain and shock is very great. A case of measles is quickly ended and, if pneumonia is avoided, recovery is to be expected. Impetigo drags on and wears the child down. Recovery is to be expected but there are a fair number of fatalities, especially when we add those usually charged against complications.

In the treatment of impetigo we are prone to make certain mistakes. The microbe causing it is generally a staphylococcus, though a few cases are said to be due to chain cocci and, possibly, some are due to other organisms. The infecting microbe is right near the surface and, shortly after it has broken through, is flourishing on the skin as well as in it. It soils the clothing, as well as the skin, and wash water, soap and towels are badly infested.

The first mistake we make is in not recognising the infectiousness of impetigo. Related to that is our neglect of the vehicles by which it is spread. These are flies, towels, cloths, clothes, wash basins, soap, spoons, cups, plates, and saucers. We force our milkman to make milk safe when it comes to typhoid, but we neglect the homely channels by which impetigo is spread.

When it comes to treatment, our mistake is in the opposite direction. We overtreat the eruption. The common remedy is ammoniated ointment. This is a fine ointment. If the family medicine chest is to contain a jar of one salve to be used for skin eruptions as they come along, this is probably the best one for the purpose. Most skin eruptions are as sluggish as a snake in cold weather. They need to be kicked a good deal. Ammoniated mercury ointment is a kicker.

Boils in babies are not in need of being kicked. The microbes are on the skin. They get in through the pores, the openings of sweat and grease glands, and down hair shafts as well as through rubbed and scratched areas. Cleanliness is first in importance. There are good bacteria killing soaps now available and probably no other microbe killer need be used. Alcohol sponging is sometimes used. It does not take the place of bathing with soap and water.

As a rule it is best to protect the boils as much as possible and leave them to heal. If any dusting powders or salves are used they should be soothing rather than stimulating. Tanning is of service but it must be done cautiously. If redness is produced exposure to light does more harm than good.

EGGS TO REGAIN STRENGTH.

J. W. writes: Is there any advantage in eating three to four eggs a day for a rundown condition? I have been advised this would be beneficial in regaining strength.

REPLY.

Raw eggs are slightly less digestible and slightly less safe than cooked eggs. The difference is small. Egg is a valuable food, especially the yellow. It is rich in vitamins, minerals, including iron, fats, proteids, and calories. Some people put too much salt and pepper on eggs. For some, three or four eggs a day supply too much protein. This can be remedied by not eating the whites. In some, urticaria results from eating eggs. What is the rundown condition due to and what is meant by regaining strength?

PROTRUDING SHOULDER BLADES.

M. B. writes: Could you prescribe an exercise or particular treatment for protruding shoulder blades? I will be 17 in October. My height is 5 feet 9¼ inches, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I pick up weight I tend to put it in unnecessary places and leave out the shoulders. My shoulder bones are very high and there are no beads I can wear to cover them sufficiently.

REPLY.

Your chest is narrow, deep, and round rather than broad and flat. You need to develop your back and neck muscles. If you will work at this long enough and persistently enough you may make your shoulder blades lay down. There is no short cut.

OUSTING WORMS.

G. W. B. writes: My 5 year old child is terribly bothered at bedtime with seat worms. What is the cause and the cure?

REPLY.

Seat worms hatch from eggs. Infestation results from soiled fingers, food, and lack of bodily cleanliness. Ninety per cent of the treatment consists in repeated enemas of quassia tea or strong salt solution. An ordinary enema is used just before the worm enema is injected. The enemas are repeated at weekly intervals in order to get worms that hatch after preceding enemas. Great personal cleanliness is necessary. The use of worm medicines by mouth as an aid to the use of enemas is sometimes necessary.

FIRST CHILD AT 41.

J. E. B. writes: Do you consider it safe for a woman of 41 years, in perfect health, so far as is known, to become pregnant for the first time?

REPLY.

Reasonably so. Women 41 years old, bearing the first child, have a hazard rate but a few points higher than that of women aged 25.

FIREARMS.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there an Illinois law permitting uniformed night watchmen to carry revolvers? 2. If a watchman sees burglars breaking into a place he does not watch, can he shoot at them if necessary to halt their escape? 3. Would this also apply as to men stripping autos? 4. Is there any municipal ordinance [Chicago] that is in conflict with Illinois state law, and, if so, which law takes precedence? J. A.

1. An act relating to deadly weapons contains in section 4 the following: "No person shall carry concealed on or about his person a pistol, revolver or other firearm. This provision does not apply, however, to the following employés or agents while engaged in the discharge of the duties of their employment: Conductors, baggagemen, messengers, drivers, watchmen, special agents and policemen employed by railroads or express companies."
2. Yes.
3. Yes.
4. State law.

TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1926 my father died, leaving everything to my mother. There were four children, myself being the youngest. In 1929 I was 23 years old, still unmarried. At this time I underwent a serious operation and my mother paid the expense. I noticed my sister has kept all the checks which my mother issued for this operation. Is it possible when my mother dies and the estate is settled that the money spent on my operation will be deducted from my share or quarter of the estate? R. S.

Your mother is in a position to discriminate as she chooses between the children by making a will. If she makes no will, then the question might arise whether her payment of the operation expenses was regarded as an outright gift to you or as an advance against your share in her estate. In view of your sister's actions, we would suggest that you have your mother write you a letter stating the exact understanding on which she made these payments.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PRACTICE DISCONTINUED.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—[Friend of the People.]—Across the street is a fruit and vegetable store. When they have fruit that has become spoiled they throw all the old, rotten fruit across the street in front of an unoccupied store. This causes an awful odor and the flies are always numerous. We would appreciate anything that can be done to eliminate this practice. J. M.

Report is made that the merchant was in the habit of placing empty boxes in the parkway space for boys for kindling wood. These were broken in order to take away and some debris was the result. Practice of giving boxes away will be discontinued in view of complaint.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 5, 1916.

LONDON.—Attacks by the French on a seventeen mile front, from south of Combles to Chilly, gained eight miles of German first line trenches, besides making insecure the other nine miles of enemy positions. The official communication also stated that the French have captured more than 5,000 Germans north and south of the Somme, while in the region of Fleury [Verdun sector], where terrific fighting also is in progress, 500 Teutons have fallen into the hands of Gen. Joffre's men. The trenches won by the French are four miles on the road from Barleux to Deniecourt and four miles from Varmandovilliers to Chilly, south of the Somme.

LONDON.—The British night report from the western front, as forwarded by Gen. Haig, describes the defeat of a German counter attack against the recently won English position northwest of Mouquet farm. North of Falfemont farm the British gained further ground, and the fighting in this sector is continuing with unabated fury.

PETROGRAD.—The Russians have broken across the Thenlovka river, a western tributary of the Zlota Lipa, and seized a position of the Austro-German troops, the war office announced. In the vicinity of Vladimir-Volynski, in Volhynia, fierce battles are in progress near Sheltuvov and Korytniza.

BUCHAREST.—The Rumanian war office announces that Rumanian troops have occupied Borszek and Sekeli, in Transylvania. The Teutonic-Bulgarian allies have been repulsed at Basardjik, in Dobrudja, but elsewhere continue their attack along the whole frontier between Dobrudja and Bulgaria.

ROME.—About 450,000 Austrians have been killed, captured, or so seriously wounded that they cannot return to the front, in engagements with the Italians since the Austro-Italian declaration of war fifteen months ago. It is estimated that 150,000 Austrians have been killed.

CHICAGO.—Leo Sebastian, an attorney in the First National Bank building, was found near Lincoln park so viciously mutilated by knife wounds that it was with difficulty he was removed to the emergency ward of Passavant hospital. Sebastian gave his address as 3500 Greenview avenue, but refused to discuss the stabbing.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate for President, faced a tumultuous audience here. With cheers for Woodrow Wilson ringing again and again in his ears, heckled by questioners and halted often by Democratic sympathizers, Mr. Hughes criticized the administration for its policies, argued for a protective tariff, and, in reference to the recent railway crisis, asserted that he stood firmly for arbitration of all industrial disputes. In the end the audience applauded the speaker.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Lewis K. Torbet, regent of the Gen. Henry Dearborn chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, died at her old family home at Fosters, O. She had been ill two weeks. Until a month ago she and Mr. Torbet, an attorney prominent in Republican politics, had lived at the Metropole hotel. Mrs. Torbet was long identified with women's club and charitable activities in Chicago, and was founder of the Hospital Day association, which inaugurated the "tag day" idea in Chicago.

ST. LOUIS.—Richard C. Kerens, former ambassador to Austria, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hamilton Colket, at Merion, a suburb of Philadelphia.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—One second after Referee Billy Roche had raised the hand of Freddie Welsh skyward, indicating that he was winner on a decision over Charley White of Chicago, after twenty rounds of battling in the arena of the Hundred Million Dollar club, a scene of tumult was enacted that came as close as anything possibly could come to a riot and bloodshed. Perhaps never in any ring has a referee given a decision so palpably unfair. Immediately after the decision Roche was made the target of hundreds of flying pop bottles and cushions hurled by angry fans. He was saved from injury by police who escorted him from the arena. Seventy-five persons were hurt when 200 feet of an upper tier of the bleachers collapsed an hour before the fight, precipitating 1,200 occupants, many of them women, to the ground, a drop of 18 feet.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

IN REPLY TO DR. SCHUMAN.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—This communication is required by certain statements made in Dr. Schuman's letter of Aug. 27, published in the Voice of the People on Aug. 31.

In my previous communication published in your column I used no names. My first object was to correct the false impression some readers had gained that "faculty advisers" of the persons immediately concerned in the expedition to the coal mines in some way represented the faculties or the educational institutions with which they were connected. The publicity had not been handled with sufficient care to make it clear to all that the "faculty advisers" were a very few individuals acting in their individual capacities.

Why Dr. Schuman says that "it is difficult for a mere political scientist to . . . see why" the fact that "only a tiny fraction of American undergraduates are interested in labor disputes or in other social and political questions" "should be a source of satisfaction to a professor of labor problems" I am unable to understand. In the first place, there is widespread interest. In the second place, I should like to see much more interest than there is, but a scientific interest, accompanied by a desire to be helpful with sufficient knowledge to be so, and the exercise of common sense when taking up concrete situations. Insofar as I have been able to ascertain few of those concerned in the "expedition" have ever shown any scientific interest in the subject. I know that a number of well informed and interested students declined to have anything to do with the "expedition." They saw in it only, or largely, a desire to engage in propaganda, not an opportunity to study problems first hand. It is not usual for investigators or dispensers of food and clothing to give out handbills stating that on a certain day at nine o'clock they will congregate on the Midway, where they will be addressed by members of the faculty and others, and ending with an appeal to give them a good send off. Even the students' organization for miners' relief did not sponsor the "expedition."

Nor do I understand why Dr. Schuman should say "the implication of his [my] letter is that if students take sides in the present conflict they ought to side with the owners, the gunmen, and the bankrupt leadership of the U. M. W. A. rather than with the strikers." I said nothing involving such an implication. I must hasten to explain that I do not assert or deny that there are facts in the situation warranting the language Dr. Schuman has incidentally used in this quotation. The language is his, not mine. And speaking of implications, do Dr. Schuman and the others concerned assume that one must always take sides, even before he investigates and becomes informed? Is it not conceivable that one will stand by the right thing when it means that he must say this group is right in this respect, the other right in another respect?

My main purpose has been accurately stated by Dr. Schuman when he says, "His purpose, no doubt, was to allay the absurd alarms of those who have erroneously assumed that the university or its faculty or its student body as a whole are represented by the committee." I may add in closing that I had become somewhat tired of certain individuals who had never been connected with the University of Chicago in any capacity whatever being reported as of the university, of the careless use of the expressions "faculty advisers" and committee," and of the rather misleading posters displayed. Who was responsible for the character of the posters and the publicity, I do not know. What I refer to in connection with the posters, these connected with the "expedition" will readily understand.

H. A. MILLIS,
Department of Economics,
University of Chicago.

NOT TOO SERIOUSLY.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 31.—In his polite apology [not in the classic sense] which Prof. Millis of the U. of C. wrote for his colleague, Prof. Schuman, and the university students who went on a crusading expedition into the southern Illinois coal fields, Prof. Millis asked that the students should not be "taken seriously." Now if he had only included the faculty drum majors with the students, we think he would have stated the case a little more appropriately.

If the "political science" dispensed in Prof. Schuman's sanctum is as warped as his view of the real situation in the southern Illinois coal field, it is not surprising if society is asked to take the students not too seriously. H. S. W.

WHISPERINGS.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—I wish some one would please enlighten me and many thousands of other loyal Cub fans who firmly believe their team to be playing clean, heads-up baseball just why the whispered rumor is prevalent in Chicago that the Cubs are buying their games. I think this most unfair to the fine group of young men playing A1 baseball under the Cub banner and the splendid leadership of Charlie Grimm.

I wish the Cub management or Commissioner Landis would issue a statement assuring certain sarcastic Chicagoans that we have not another baseball scandal in Chicago today.

The Athletics won seventeen games straight last year, so I cannot see the utter impossibility of the Cubs winning eleven straight to date this year. I have seen the Cubs when the breaks were against them lose many a game by such errors and bad breaks as have thrown a few of the games their way during the present home series. D. I.

A RETRACTION.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—In a recent article I wrote to the Voice of the People, so kindly published yesterday, I stated incorrectly that "students of Crane Junior college (particularly those displaying communistic tendencies) are raising a cry of protest against the charging of a tuition fee of $100 a year at Crane."

I regret exceedingly that I was misinformed. I have been recently informed and am now satisfied that the Crane no-tuition committee is an organization by no means given to communistic tendencies. Through personal investigation I have found that it is a representative group composed of students who are class officers, scholars, members of the clubs, and publications, and debating teams, and in other ways well qualified to show the opinion of the student body. This group is endeavoring to keep Crane open as a free public school.

I therefore desire to retract the statement branding as communistic the activities of the Crane no-tuition committee. This group is not attempting to make political propaganda of the issue, but is doing its utmost for the sake of the students of Chicago. SARAH BAYLEN.

A PIECE OF HIS MIND.

Robinson, Ill., Aug. 30.—The majority of the population of both Clark county and Crawford county feel that the death penalty should be inflicted against Moore, but that a metropolitan newspaper printed in a county whose law enforcement officers are as rotten as those of Cook county and whose back yard is strewn with the filth of crime should at least think before they write.

The last records of handling the very few major crimes in our two communities are beyond reproach. We at least do not contribute to the delinquency of our school teachers by not paying them their just salaries and diverting these funds for protection of gangland crime; consequently we give our teachers no motive for committing mercenary murders that they may keep body fed and clothed. PAUL B. NORRIS.

TO DETERMINE THE CELLAR CHAMPION.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Why not have all the teams in the two major leagues matched in order of their finish? In doing so the relative strength of the leagues could be determined, the bona fide [or whatever title it would be] cellar champion crowned, and one game could be played for charity. M. L. W.

GERMANS LEAD LIST OF NEW U. S. CITIZENS HERE

Poles and British Next; Applications Drop.

Aliens of German descent headed the list of 14,442 citizens naturalized in the Chicago district during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1932, according to a report made public yesterday by Fred D. Schlotfeldt, district director of naturalization. The next two largest groups were Poles and British.

The year was the lowest in the number of naturalizations and in applicants for citizenship in the last seven, due mainly to restrictive immigration and economic conditions throughout the world. The depression had but little direct effect locally upon the filing of naturalization papers, according to Director Schlotfeldt. Because so many jobs are open only to American citizens most aliens will obtain the money for the filing of their papers, even if they have to deprive themselves in other ways.

Origins of Applicants.

Of the total number naturalized in 1932 in the Chicago district, 16,628 were naturalized in Chicago and 3,814 in the remainder of the area. The following table shows the comparative number of successful applicants, listed by the nationalities represented:

Nationality	Applicants.	Nationality	Applicants.
Germany	2,741	Netherlands	106
Poland	2,126	Belgium	77
Great Britain	2,018	Turkey	66
Italy	1,708	France	59
Czechoslovakia	934	Bulgaria	52
Sweden	880	Finland	51
Russia	740	Latvia	42
Serbs, Croats, Slovenes	635	Luxembourg	40
Lithuania	455	Persia	33
Norway	393	Arabia	20
Greece	308	Palestine	16
Rumania	305	Mexico	15
Austria	284	Danzig	13
Denmark	237	Brazil	12
Hungary	210	Syria	10
Switzerland	150	Spain	5

A decrease of more than 50 per cent in the applications for citizenship is noted in the past year, as compared with the average of 27,232 for the years ending 1925 to 1929. With total applicants of 11,724 the fiscal year ending June 30, 1932, was the lowest since 1925. In 1930 applications dropped to 13,026 and in 1931 rose to 17,086. The decrease in the last three years is mainly attributed to restrictive immigration during the past ten years, the return of aliens to their native country, and the current depression. The effect of restrictive immigration is not felt for five years after the passing of the new law, as that length of time must pass before papers can be filed.

148 Women Repatriated.

There were 148 women repatriated as American citizens who had lost their citizenship as a result of marrying aliens. Of the 14,585 cases disposed of during the year by the department only 443 were denied their final papers. Of this number 109 were denied for bad character.

John Alden Carpenter Song Will Be Crooned

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Crooning has been elevated to the Worcester musical festival. Instructions to the festival chorus to learn to croon have been given by Albert Stroessel, director. The crooning will be used in the "Song of Faith," written by John Alden Carpenter for the Washington bicentennial.

NAVAL BOILERMAKER KILLED.

Laguna Beach, Cal., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Fred Geisler, 35, of Lawrence, Mass., chief boilermaker on the U. S. S. Vestal, was killed and three of his shipmates were injured slightly early today when his motor car left the coast highway and crashed down a 100 foot embankment three miles south of here.

EDISON'S MEMORY HONORED ON SPOT OF OLD ELECTRIC PLANT

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—In a narrow, almost deserted street on Lower Manhattan, 100 persons gathered in front of the old Edison station today to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its opening and to praise the memory of Thomas A. Edison.

A bronze plaque on the old building records the fact it was the first commercial electric lighting and generating system in the world. When it opened Sept. 4, 1882, it boasted 59 subscribers using 400 electric lamps.

Charles Edison, the inventor's son, Frank W. Smith, president of the New York Edison company, and H. A. Campbell, who worked with Edison in designing the generating plant, the speakers, stood on a sidewalk platform beneath the tablet.

"Let us remember," said Mr. Smith, "that Edison and his associates had no precedent to go by. There were boats before steamships, wagons and trucks before automobiles, and kites and balloons before airplanes, but there was no forerunner of the Edison electric system. Everything had to be designed and built for it, from the bottom up."

Thomas A. Edison Jr., also represented the inventor's family. His widow, Mrs. Edison, is on a vacation in New England, but sent a telegraphed message to the meeting.

OFFICIAL FORCED OUT BY PINCHOT IS DEAD AT 69

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—William D. B. Ainey, 69, who served for 17 years as chairman of the Pennsylvania public service commission until his recent resignation after charges sponsored by Gov. Pinchot, died tonight of an ailment which had left him a semi-invalid for a decade.

A parliamentarian with an international reputation, a lawyer and former president of the Young Men's Christian Association of Pennsylvania, Mr. Ainey had been regarded as one of the nation's leading authorities on public utility regulation. After successfully fighting previous attacks by Gov. Pinchot against the public service commission, he was charged during a recent special session of the legislature with receiving $150,000 in favors from the late Thomas E. Mitten, Philadelphia transit operator.

Mr. Ainey resigned from the commission on Aug. 2 in a letter denying the charge and stating that because of broken health and slender financial resources he felt he could not wage a fight to clear his name.

KILLED BY STEP-SON.

Joseph Simmons, 38 years old, a Negro, died yesterday in the county hospital of knife wounds inflicted on Wednesday by his step-son, Osie, in a fight in their home at 1151 Larrabee street.

JOHN S. FEARIS, COMPOSER, DIES; FUNERAL TODAY

Known for "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

Funeral services for John S. Fearis, 65 years old, music composer, will be held in Rosehill cemetery chapel at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Fearis died of a heart attack in his summer home at Lake Geneva on Friday. His Chicago home was at 2204 Ainslie street.

Composer of hundreds of church cantatas and hymns as well as several school operettas, Mr. Fearis was best known for the "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." He wrote this music shortly before the close of the last century, and it immediately found favor in homes and churches. It was sung at the funeral of President McKinley.

Mr. Fearis was born in Richland, Ia., and came to Chicago in 1893. He was in his early 20s when he started to write music. It became his life work, and at the time of his death a new school operetta, "Romany Maid," was in the publisher's office.

Apart from his creative work, Mr. Fearis was active in choir circles. His death ended thirteen years of service as choir master of the Unity English Lutheran church, Balmoral and Magnolia avenues. He was conductor of the Ravenswood Men's chorus for 20 years before the chorus was disbanded during the war.

Surviving Mr. Fearis are a brother, Walter E. Fearis, of Cheyenne, Wyo., and two nieces and a nephew, Mrs. Jessie Blackman, Miss Merle D. Fearis and Otto L. Fearis.

EX-OFFICIAL OF SIEGEL-COOPER DIES IN NEW YORK

Deal, N. J., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Nelson W. Greenhut of New York, vice president and secretary of the American Safety Razor corporation and formerly assistant general manager of the Greenhut-Siegel-Cooper company, died here today at his summer home in his 42d year. His death, which occurred during the early hours of the morning during his sleep, was due to heart disease, from which he had suffered intermittently for the last three years.

Mr. Greenhut was a son of the late Capt. Joseph B. Greenhut, a Gettysburg hero, who was the second man in Chicago to answer President Lincoln's call for volunteers. He was educated in the public and private schools of Peoria, Ill., his birthplace, and at the Sach Collegiate Institute in New York City.

Mrs. M. A. Field, Former Chicago Woman, Dies at 87

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary Alexander Field, honorary president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, died this morning at her home in Greenwich, Conn., at the age of 87. Mrs. Field was the widow of Henry Philip Field. They came originally from Dixon Springs, Tenn., later lived in Louisville and Chicago, and settled in Greenwich in 1912.

Leader of First Gold Star Pilgrimage to France Dies

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Sarah G. Thompson, 60, of New York and Nashville, Tenn., leader of the first contingent of Gold Star Mothers of the world war who went to France in 1930 to visit the graves of their sons, died here today.

MINE LEADER LEWIS PRAISES LABOR FOR ITS SELF-RESTRAINT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, in a Labor day statement today, congratulated "the members of labor's ranks upon their coolness and their adherence to the aims, the purposes and the principles of the labor movement which they have exercised throughout the past year."

"We marvel sometimes," he said, "at the splendid degree of self-restraint that has characterized the life of the workers during the past hectic year.

"Those who adhere so loyally to the fundamental principles of the organized labor movement have refused to listen to the false preachings of demagogues and dangerous prophets. They have turned a deaf ear to those who would either destroy or turn our great organization from its true purpose and make it a means for their own personal profit and advantage. They have refused to heed the advice of those who would destroy us. . . .

"Let us continue along that safe and sane pathway in the year that lies ahead, hoping, praying and believing that better times and better things are in store for us."

SOUTH CHICAGO'S COAST GUARDS TO GET NEW STATION

U. S. Also Will Build Another Lighthouse.

The federal government is planning to spend $100,000 on a coast guard station and lighthouse at the foot of 99th street in Calumet park. This was revealed yesterday by George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the south park system. Excavation has already begun for the station.

G. T. DONOGHUE.

The new location of the beacon and station will be more advantageous for the protection of shipping and life with the coming of the Calumet harbor development, according to authorities.

Lighthouse Site Asked.

Mr. Donoghue has received a letter from C. H. Hubbard of Milwaukee, superintendent of lighthouse service in this district, asking for a site from the south park commissioners on the shore next to the new coast guard station. The new lighthouse, for which appropriations will be asked from the next congress, will cost approximately $40,000. It will provide living quarters for four keepers and their families.

The government has already set aside $60,000 for the new coast guard station. According to plans, the old South Chicago station on the Calumet river near the 92d street bridge will be abandoned.

Crew to Be Transferred.

The crew of ten men, two power boats and other life saving gear will be taken from the South Chicago station and installed at the new building, which is expected to be completed by Dec. 1. This force will probably divide the shore line to the north with the Jackson park coast guard. Since the coast guard is a federal service the boats will also patrol the Indiana shore line.

First Woman Head of U. S. Library Association Dies

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Henry L. Elmendorf, former vice librarian of the Buffalo public library, and first woman president of the American Library association, died here today. She was 77 years old. Mrs. Elmendorf was born in Pardeeville, Wis., and was educated in Milwaukee.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR MAN HANGED IN CELL

Body Kept for Quiz as Sheriff Is Accused.

Pekin, Ill., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Funeral services for Martin Virant, 36, of East Peoria, who was found hanged in his cell in the Tazewell county jail were held today. On orders of Coroner A. E. Allen, the body was not buried after the services in Peoria, but was returned here to be held until after the inquest. This investigation will be held Wednesday or Thursday.

Hundreds viewed the body this afternoon. A sister of the man, Mrs. Agnes Franks, of Peoria, hysterically denounced the sheriff's force, repeating over and over again that Martin did not hang himself but that her brother had been slain.

Second Autopsy Performed.

A second autopsy was performed by Dr. L. F. Teter under the coroner's orders and the contents of Virant's stomach are being analyzed to see if poison could have been responsible for the death. The first autopsy disclosed injuries to the head and body, including a concussion of the brain, and an internal hemorrhage.

Virant had been held for questioning as a witness in connection with the murder of Lewis Newlan, 64, of East Peoria, whose body was found in the railroad yards there last Sunday morning. He had been murdered and his body placed on the tracks.

Newlan's hat was found later near a speakeasy run by John Petji in East Peoria. Petji, Frank Keayes Jr., and Edward Hufeld were arrested. Hufeld and Keayes confessed, telling of a fight in which Petji struck Newlan over the head with the iron bar. The three men believing Newlan dead then carried the body to the railroad track.

Accused Sheriffs.

At the inquest Virant said that he knew nothing of the fight and did not know of Newlan's death until the next morning. He told the coroner's jury that he had been knocked down, kicked and beaten by the sheriff's force. The autopsy later revealed one broken rib.

Sheriff J. J. Crosby later agreed to release Virant. A deputy was sent over to the jail to free the man, and said he found him hanging to the top of the cell. His leather belt had been used for a noose.

Charles Silverstein Offers Proof That He Isn't Dead

Charles Silverstein, 24 years old, 1348 South Springfield avenue, appeared yesterday at the detective bureau to deny the report of his death which was made to the police on Aug. 29. The report was based on a letter received by Miss Edith Springer, 1438 South Homan avenue, stating that Silverstein, who was "bumming" his way to the Pacific coast, had been killed by a train near Denver. Silverstein explained that his diary, which contained Miss Springer's address, had been lost on the trip and said he believed some hobo had found it and was falsely identified by it after being killed.

Five Thousand Attend Grant Park Band Concert

More than 5,000 persons attended the request concert given by Peter Cavello's symphonic band, featuring Miss Olga Kargau, formerly of the Chicago Civic opera, in the Grant park band shell last evening. Mr. Cavello said that because of the great number of requests only that music most frequently requested could be included on the program.

Paul Green Is Grand Success in First Novel

Personality of Dramatist Shows in Work.

PAUL GREEN is one of the finest products of the new southern renaissance. Up to now his artistic mediums have been the drama and poetry and occasionally short stories whose brilliance is conclusively proved in a book called "Wide Fields." The play which won him national fame was "In Abraham's Bosom," and it also won the thoughtful praise of all those who are interested in fine literature and the future of the American stage.

PAUL GREEN.

His latest play to be produced was "The House of Connelley," which had a Broadway run last year. Paul Green teaches philosophy at the University of North Carolina. The qualities of his personality, his sincerity, his intenseness, his thoughtfulness are unmistakably revealed in "The Laughing Pioneer," his first novel.

Danny Lawton, a merry eyed, curly haired youth of 19, wanders away from his home with a guitar strapped to his back, singing and winning his way through the world by the charm of his shining personality. He is "po' white trash" with the power of song and tears within him, "and then the pioneer and tramper of the roads turned over on his face and began to sob." He is the dream of mankind in its rapturous moments, young, gay, carefree, beautiful, sad, touched by the wand of genius.

He comes to the old plantation house of the Longs. Here decadence, both physical and spiritual, reigns, out of which in a last desperate flowering Alice Long appears, a spinster of 30, beautiful, queenly, with a strange sterility, with powers of love and life and laughter in her, unknown and untried. Their drawing together is as inevitable as the trees, the storms of nature, the soil.

Alice Long, with the knowledge of her passion uncommunicated, lives for a brief moment in the madness and ecstasy of a love that was long denied her. Then comes the reckoning. She must answer the lies of bitter, feverish, malicious tongues and she must answer her own stinging inquiry. What she has to face and how she faces it make up the dark tragedy called "The Laughing Pioneer."

The writing in this book may be called prose-poetry of the highest order. It is simple, with no self-conscious artistry; pure, lyrical, beautiful, and powerful and rich. The brilliant and true metaphors and similes are never forced, never artificial, always fresh and natural and flowing. The author's descriptions of nature make the reader more sensitive to the tones and colors of the English language. For instance, he writes: "The moonlight lay like a glistening spider web over the land," and "the summer evening was coming to a close, the skies of the west were red as the meat of a ripe watermelon with little, seedy, black clouds in it . . ." and "the next day the world was clear as a bell, and a fairyland of tinkling glass stood up in the shape of icy limbed trees and shrubs," and again, "along the river the sycamores glistened as if dipped in melted grease," and, finally, "the blue fields, murmurless and shadow banked, lay wide around him and lonely on every side—lonely and humanless everywhere. The swamp owls uttered their strangling screams at him, and the peapods ticked their death watch in the dried hedge. . . ." Paul Green uses natural phenomena as accompaniments to his theme in much the same manner that Emily Bronte used them in "Wuthering Heights."

The similarity to "Wuthering Heights" does not end here. The technical method is as puzzling and as awkward as that of the less, if possible, technically minded Emily Bronte. Yet the distortion resulting from the chosen method seems as curiously fitting to "The Laughing Pioneer" as it did in "Wuthering Heights." The narrator of "The Laughing Pioneer" is a boy who yearns for the life of Danny Lawton. The reader from time to time wonders just how the author is going to explain the fact that the narrator, who lives on an adjoining farm, can possibly know what he knows, even if he were Asmodeus himself.

But Paul Green at the end of the book, in a naive, disarming, and, of course, utterly unconvincing manner, explains it. Nevertheless, this technical fault, and it is serious as far as technique itself is concerned, does not once detract from the power and the beauty of the book. It seems as if Paul Green felt the intense personal need of giving expression to this story. It might even be said that this unsure hand presses even more firmly on the tragedy, that it enhances the eeriness, the starkness, the grandness, and the black glamour of this book that seems to have flowed from the very source of life.

Most readers at the end of "The Laughing Pioneer" will want to take the time to read it over again. There are overtones of thoughtfulness, of intimations, of symbolism, of beauty and tragedy, of subtleties touching on scene and atmosphere and character, and on social implications, of reality and richness that cannot be heard the first time by even the most listening ear.

Tricky Little Aluminum Clips Restore Wave to Your Locks

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The business of reviving a drooping coiffure isn't what it was when Mamma was a girl. She had to drag out the waving iron, or to go back a bit further, do the hair up in curl papers to corral the escaping strands.

Today, all you need are a pair of clever hands, a few clips and a few minutes and you're ready for the eleventh hour invitation. Those new long aluminum clips for recovering curls for the hair at the back of the neck are worth looking into. And the little round clips for the sides, too. In fact, there are on the market today all manner of clips to insert in the hair, so that one may hold to the freshly waved look as long as one wants.

You can get a permanent wave of almost any kind you could want today. You can have one without the discomfort of being strung up to the chandelier arrangement of coils and ropes. You can have the sides of your hair done without the back being touched. Or the back ends done without the sides, if you choose. Or, you can get an allover permanent that each year, each season, in fact, shows advance in craftmanship and wide loose, natural looking wave.

Looking over the latest and smartest fashion magazine cuts, also over the latest periodicals that direct the hairdressing trade in coiffure trend, one notes in almost every hairdress a smoothness of hair over the top of the head, the curling left to the ends almost exclusively. That top smoothness does two things. It gives a caplike fitting of hair to the skull and it gives a younger touch to the face. And this effect, of course, you can get with your permanent if you just inform your operator that it is what you want.

Another thing I notice is that where there is curled hair on the neck the sides are left an inch or more shorter to give a graceful and shapely line to head, neck, and face. And the hair is thinned out in back to add to this tapered line. That thinning business goes on more heartily, if anything—all in the interest of better and better shaped heads.

Two Sons of Former German Crown Prince Will Meet in City

Princes Frederick Wilhelm and Louis Ferdinand of Germany, sons of the former crown prince, will be guests on Friday at a noon luncheon given at the Bismarck hotel by Karl Eitel. Prince Louis Ferdinand will come from Detroit, where he is employed in the Ford plant, to meet his brother, who is returning from a motor trip to the west coast and is expected to arrive Wednesday evening. Both will be guests of Mr. Eitel for three or four days in which they will visit places of interest in Chicago. About forty persons will be guests for the Friday luncheon.

New Materials for Dresses to Revive Sewing

Thin Wools Are Ideal for the Beginner.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SO MANY carping critics will be obliged to change their minds this winter about women. So many remarks have been exchanged by male and female alike, concerning our apparent ignorance of what the well domesticated woman used to do, and how we can't be compared to the versatile females of a decade or so ago that, when the news reaches the old guard, that the smart woman today "makes her own" clothes, the loquacious broadcasters will settle back in the complete silence of defeat.

All you need is just a small bit of your great grandmother's pioneer spirit, a pair of shears as sharp as the grand dame's sarcasm, one of the fool-proof patterns and some of the new materials and in less than the time you used to waste in deciding what kind of a dress you wanted to buy, you'll have a creation that will fool your dearest friend.

The new fabrics are so good looking that even a lazy set of fingers will twitch with the desire to sew a seam or two. Thin wools are particularly ideal for the beginner . . . they are thin enough and supple enough to be fashioned into tricky little street clothes in record time.

New "sheers" are thin enough to pass for chiffon—you will find them in new crêpes, crinkles and flattened cords and pebbled, nubby stuff. The colors are gorgeous, all the grape, cerise, garnet and ruby reds, lovely greens and golden browns that remind you of all the frost bitten autumn foliage that tops the October hillside.

Plain colors are used for street and daytime wear—but you can introduce color contrast with all the subtlity of a genius, with new thin wools as designed by famous French weavers. For instance, you can use a thin wool that looks exactly like natural toned linen crash, only looser, that has a nippy Scotch plaid border with dark plain tones of red, blue or brown. Or a thin, filmy wool in chartreuse green will accent the new ruby red shades. And again deep warm brown is quite the newest and most unusual contrast for dove gray.

Rodier, that wizard of weavers, sends yards of unbelievably thin wool with huge flamboyant flowers in spectacular shades of magenta, citron yellow, burnt orange, hard blue, and jade green. And broadcloth has been recalled from past glory to shimmer in yardage for the newest fall and winter costumes—broadcloth almost as thin as chiffon and as smooth and suave as satin.

You are going to see much broadcloth in deep inky blacks, and blues and dark browns and old fashioned tones of dove gray. Swanky, form fitting evening gowns of this irresistible and feminine fabric will startle a lot of the evening audience.

New blouse materials will encourage the seaming and scheming shopper to fashion a blouse or two for her winter wardrobe. Thin filmy diagonal velvet is ideal for such an ambition—sleek, diagonal, flat, ribs of velvet alternate with matching ribs of chiffon, the ribs are about three eighths of an inch wide.

This diagonal velvet comes in black and brown and white—you can also buy some new metallic effects for blouses of white, or cream colored chiffons accented with delicate traceries of either silver or gold thread. Blouses of these materials will contrast richly and beautifully with your afternoon suits of fine velvet or broadcloth.

Good Morning!

"Speak Easily" is a wild, haphazard farce adapted from Clarence Budington Kelland's story "Footlights." The title has to do with one Prof. Post's correction of a lady's English. Later, "Speak Easily" becomes the name of a show "angeled" by the professor.

Buster Keaton gives a characteristic performance. If you are one of the many who enjoy his frozen faced, wooden headed portrayals you will find him as you desire him in this number. To me, Jimmie Durante is much more comical. When a man has a schnozzle like Jimmie's he doesn't have to work to be famous—he was born that way.

But Jimmie's popularity isn't dependent on what made all the neighbors say behind his mother's back—"O, what a homely baby!" No. The lad has a great sense of comedy, an engaging personality and he can also dance, play the piano and sing, besides putting over ones like the following in a fashion to slay you:

"A man was walking along the street with his ten children. A policeman comes up and says, 'Hey, there, wot you done?' The man says, 'I ain't done nothing.' The policeman says, 'Sure you done something or you wouldn't have all these people following yuh.'"

To my mind, the main drawback of "Speak Easily" is that the lion's share of the writing wasn't done for young Mr. Durante.

The film isn't, but might have been, based on Priestley's "The Good Companions," relating, as it does, the adventures of a tyro who comes to the aid of a stranded theatrical troupe. For this down at heel company, James D. is manager, leading man, and one man orchestra—meaning he plays the piano before acts, in between 'em and for such numbers as require musical accompaniment.

Busy as a bee!
Active as a flea!

Thelma Todd burlesques merrily and cleverly her rôle of vamp. Ruth Selwyn plays the ingénue pallidly. Henry Armetta is amusing as a temperamental stage hand and other rôles are put over in good shape.

The piece is cumbersome at times, but has some spells that are mirth provoking. It would have been a heap funnier silent. The dialogue is p. p.

Horseplay, "Speak Easily," but horseplay that's making them laugh. Friday the Oriental rang with the guffaws of satisfied customers.

Pleas for Free Ice Continue; Gifts Needed

Parents Seek Help for Their Children.

Contributions to THE TRIBUNE free ice fund have been falling off, but needy parents, desperate because their children's health is endangered, continue with their letters appealing for free ice.

"This is the first time I have had to do a thing of this kind, but dire necessity makes me write." The author of this letter was a father. "We are receiving aid from the Catholic charities, but we have no way to keep our food from spoiling. We have been without an ice box all summer and just the other day were given one. But there is no way to obtain ice.

"We have two small children. I have diabetes, which means a double hardship. If you would be kind enough to furnish me with the means of getting ice you would relieve a lot of distress from us and it would be greatly appreciated."

Out in La Grange the other day a sextet of boys earned $8 for the ice fund by giving a carnival on the F. F. Fisher Jr. lawn on South Brainard avenue. The price of admission was two and three cents. There were prizes, lemonade, popcorn, and games, such as "hooping" stakes, and when the neighborhood children ran out of pennies they ran home for more. Those taking part were Frank Habich, Charles Roberts, Edward Pisco, Buddy Fisher, Buddy Meisner, Donald Williamson, and Johnny Fisher. Other gifts came from:

$5.00—J. C. Earles.
$1.00—Tena Kocner, Anonymous, A Friend, Stamps.

Total.....$ 20.50
Previously acknowledged.....7,192.20

Grand total.....$7,212.70

The Camp Algonquin fund was the recipient of $4.50 from Mrs. Florence R. Winter, making a total of $5,043.30 in the fund. Gifts to both funds may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

Three Weddings Solemnized Without Advance Notices

Ceremonies Are Held in Geneva, Washington and Evanston; Margaret Castle Married.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THREE interesting weddings, regarding which there had been no preliminary announcements, were solemnized last Saturday, one in Geneva, one in Washington, D. C., and one in Evanston.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Castle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney L. Castle of Geneva, and Benjamin Dodson Crissey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Crissey, also of Geneva, took place last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents.

The Rev. John E. Kuhns of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Geneva, read the service in the presence of members of the two families. The bride, who wore her mother's wedding gown of white satin and lace, was attended by her younger sister, Miss Janet Castle, and Frank Renwick of Geneva acted as best man for Mr. Crissey.

The bride attended the University School for Girls in Chicago and Miss Madeira's school in Washington, D. C., and Mr. Crissey prepared for college at Mercersburg and then entered Brown.

Miss Edith Caroline Nesbit, daughter of Mrs. Harrison Nesbit of Warrenton, Va., became the bride of Jerome P. Bowes Jr. of Highland Park on Saturday afternoon in Washington. Mrs. James H. Channon, mother of the late Mrs. Bowes [Katherine Channon] was among the Chicagoans at the nuptials.

The marriage of Miss Elisabeth Bass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perkins B. Bass of Evanston, to Frank E. Corliss of Evanston was solemnized quietly at the bride's parents' residence. The bride, who had no attendants, wore a French blue chiffon gown with a short lace jacket and a corsage of gardenias.

The former Miss Bass has been active in the Evanston Junior league since her graduation a few years ago from Goucher college. After a honeymoon in the north woods the couple will reside in Evanston.

Crowds at Country Clubs.

Most town dwellers packed their golf bags and bathing suits last Friday night and departed to spend the long Labor day week-end either in nearby fashionable suburbs or at resorts within overnight distance from Chicago. The country clubs drew heavy attendance on Saturday and yesterday and will have large crowds again today. The Barrington Hills, the Chicago Golf club in Wheaton, Indian Hill in Winnetka, and most of the other clubs west and north of Chicago held festive dinner dances on Saturday night. Today there will be special golf events for the men with regular Labor day trophies as prizes. Yesterday there were special exhibition tennis matches at Onwentsia in Lake Forest.

The Onwentsia Hunt club at Millburn will ride to hounds for the first hunt of the season at 9:30 o'clock this morning. This event is of more interest to the exclusive riding set of Lake Forest than any other feature of the Labor day schedule and all of the Hunt club members who are back from summer holidays will be on hand for it.

Austin H. Niblack is master of hounds and Ralph Hines is president of the club. Among the members expected to hunt this morning are Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Noble Brandon Judah, John T. Pirie Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George Corson Ellis, and David Adler.

This afternoon the north shore polo fans will be out to see the championship polo game between the Onwentsia and Fort Sheridan teams for the supremacy of the north shore. The game will begin at 4:30 o'clock on the Army field.

Boat Races at Lake Geneva.

At Lake Geneva this afternoon there will be sailboat racing for the John J. Mitchell trophy in the class C boats and for the Charles H. Wacker trophy in the class A boats.

William Edwards in O Me O Mi III. won the class C race yesterday for the Leiter trophy. The Ralph N. Isham trophy for the class E winner went to Porter Brother in Rokniben IV.

Many of the Lake Geneva colonists will go over to Elkhorn today for the opening of the Elkhorn county fair, which always attracts Chicago summer visitors frors nearby resorts. Frederick Countiss has two of his horses entered, and a number of the young people from Lake Geneva will motor to Elkhorn not only for the horse show but for all the other attractions of an old fashioned country fair.

The horse show which was to have been held yesterday in the riding ring on the Dunham estate at Wayne has been postponed for a week or possibly two weeks. Joy Morton, the leading spirit of the show, has been out of town and is expected to return today.

The show was postponed from an early August date originally in order that Mrs. Wirth S. Dunham might be present. Mrs. Dunham returned to Wayne last week after traveling abroad for more than a year. Miss Jane Dunham, who accompanied her mother, remained in the east after their arrival in New York for a visit with some friends and is expected to be back within a few days.

Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Litsinger, who is to make her debut this fall, will return on Friday from a motor trip in the east. For the last 10 days they have been the house guests of Mrs. J. T. H. Mitchell and her daughter, Miss Ann Mitchell, at Greenwich, Conn.

Last Wednesday Miss Mitchell gave a swimming party and buffet luncheon for Miss Litsinger at the Mitchells' outdoor pool and on Saturday she gave a small dinner for her.

The Death Watch

By Edgar Wallace

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Dunn of Scotland Yard is in pursuit of a band of thieves who some years before had robbed the Canadian Bank of Commerce in London. The robbers went to jail for the theft, but the loot was never recovered. Peter's buddy, Inspector Sam Allerway, was dismissed in disgrace, accused of taking a bribe from the head thief, and killed himself. Peter, the only bachelor in the service, kept right on working after he came into his title and fortune. It was his form of fun and he wanted to vindicate Allerway. The year after the robbers were released Peter, on a vacation, cruising on the Thames, recognizes a servant in a supposedly haunted house as one of the robbers. He stays to investigate. The house is owned by Mr. Hannay and is one of two identical villas lying side by side. Hannay's has been improved, while the other is deserted and decayed. Neither Hannay nor his daughter, Pat, believe the ghost stories, but the servants leave one by one. Pat has an unpleasant encounter with a huge, ugly new gardener and orders him dismissed. Mr. Hersoff, a scientist living in the neighborhood, is a guest of Hannay's. Peter meets Pat Hannay several times in the course of his investigation.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

A WHIRLWIND COURTSHIP.

Presently Pat came out, swept round the narrow drive near the garage into the road over which he was sitting. She was going slowly, which in a measure was an act of providence; for, when Peter called her by name in a loud whisper, she stopped the car and looked around, and, happily, stopped it right under the bough where he was sitting. She heard the thud as he struck the seat beside her, and looked round in amazement.

"Where did you come from?" she began.

"'Baby, dear,' you ought to say," said Peter. "And my answer is, 'Out of the everywhere into here.'"

"What are you doing here?" she demanded.

"Going for a ride," said Peter. "In America all the best gangsters take their friends for a ride."

She stopped under the bough where he was sitting.

"I'm not a gangster, and you're not my friend."

"Don't argue," said Peter Dunn. "Your father will come along in a minute and he'll ask me my intentions. Think how embarrassing that will be."

She sent the car along with a jerk.

"Why are those glasses round your neck?" she asked.

"The better to see you with, my dear." And when she shot an indignant glance at him: "A quotation from 'Red Riding Hood,'" he said gently. "Those glasses are for spying purposes. I've been spying on you."

She reached the secondary road and stopped the car.

"I've dropped my handkerchief. Will you get out?"

Peter shook his head with great calmness.

"I don't want you here," she said.

Peter nodded.

"I know that. If you did, the whole thing would be simple. I should go to the registrar and get a license."

She gasped.

"Have you any sense of decency?" she demanded.

Peter nodded.

"Yes; that is why I should get a license first."

Again she stopped the car.

"Get out," she said firmly, and this time she meant it.

Peter obeyed. She did not drive on.

"I want to ask you one question. Will you tell me what your name is and why you are here. Probably there is some special reason why it should be kept secret, and if there is I promise you I will tell nobody."

"My name is Peter Dunn," he said after a moment's consideration. "Until yesterday I was a sergeant in the criminal investigation department of Scotland Yard."

He saw her mouth and eyes open.

"Aren't you any more?" she asked.

"No; I'm an inspector. I was promoted this morning. They telephoned me—that is why my manner errs on the side of frivolity."

There was a long silence.

"Why do you come here? What is there for a Scotland Yard officer——"

"A lot of things," said Peter. "But I'll tell you the main thing that is keeping me hanging around here and making me keep this case all to myself. I have a personal interest in it—two personal interests: one, the reputation of a dear friend of mine who is dead."

"And the other?" she asked when he stopped.

"The other is you," he said simply. "I'm terribly sorry, but I've fallen in love with you."

His eyes looked at her straightly. He was telling the truth. She went red and white, and then:

"I'm sorry," she said.

"Are you telling the truth or a lie?" he demanded, the old smile in his eyes.

"I'm telling a lie," she said, and sent the car forward in six distinct, unworkmanlike jumps.

Peter was walking back the way he had come when he heard the hum of a car behind him, but did not turn round till she came abreast of him.

"I'll drive you back," she said.

"No, thank you," said Peter, simply. "I'd rather walk."

She looked at him with disapproval.

"It's a very long way," she began.

"You don't know where I'm going, so you can't say it's a long way or a short way."

"I don't like your manners."

"I've taken prizes for them," said Peter. "For the matter of that, I don't like your car. You've humiliated me."

She stared at him.

"Humiliated you? How?"

"I've told you I love you, and you haven't had the decency to fall out of the car into my arms."

She brought the car to a shuddering stop.

"Come here," she said. "You can kiss me—once."

He kissed her once, but it was a long once. . . .

Pat Hannay came back to the house. There was a look in her eyes that a wise woman could have interpreted. But there was nobody in Chesterford wiser than Joyce, the maid, and she at the moment was preoccupied.

Pat went up to her room, closed the door, took off her coat, and looked in the glass. There were some things which could not be believed. Some such thing had happened that day, and she could only look at herself in wonder. She found a difficulty in breathing normally, and the hands that tidied her hair were shaking.

She looked out of the window hoping that by some miracle he would be in sight. . . .

There was high book. He reached out to take it, but remembered her promise and drew back.

A detective officer . . . a policeman . . . how would Mr. Hannay, somebody very important "in the drapery," accept that devastating fact?

Mr. Hannay had ideas for her; looked as high as the house of lords; had confided to her his desire to found a loridly line with such assistance as she could offer.

Washington Society

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, who returned to her home here from Shenandoah, Pa., after a speechmaking tour, left this morning for her old home, Topeka, Kas. She will be joined in Chicago by her half-brother, Vice President Curtis, who has been visiting in Providence, R. I., with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Webster Knight II.

They will proceed to Topeka for the funeral services of the Vice President's brother-in-law, Jerome Colvin, who died suddenly yesterday afternoon. He was the husband of the only sister of the Vice President. Mrs. Gann being the daughter of the Vice President's father and second wife. Mr. and Mrs. Colvin have occupied the Topeka home of the Vice President ever since he came to the United States senate.

Assistant Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Joseph M. Dixon have had as their guests for ten days their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson Leach, and their two daughters, Carolyn and Nancy, who left today for New York to sail tomorrow for their home in Vienna. Dr. Leach is a member of the Rockefeller Foundation, with headquarters in Vienna.

List 3,000 Specimens, 19 Unknown Species in Expedition Report

A scientific report on the Kelley-Roosevelt and the Delacour Asiatic expeditions of the Field Museum of Natural History, published by Wilfred H. Osgood, curator of zoölogy, lists 3,000 specimens and 19 hitherto unknown species or sub-species of animals.

The expeditions, to Indo-China and contiguous territory, were conducted by the late William V. Kelley of Chicago, Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. and his brother Kermit, and by Jean Delacour, noted zoölogist of France. One of the new species, a muntjak or tropical deer, has been named "Muntiacus Rooseveltorum" by Dr. Osgood in honor of the Roosevelts. The animal has two bulbous glands under its chin, which it used to spray scent upon the leaves among which it is browsing.

Another important new species is a black and white monkey with a long bushy tail, which Dr. Osgood has named Delacour's langur.

Veterans of Easter Week Guests of Irish Societies

The United Irish Societies of Chicago held a reunion in the Normal park stadium, 61st street and Racine avenue, yesterday afternoon. Athletic events, music and dancing continued late into the night. A group of veterans of the rebellion of Easter week in 1916, who were exiled, were guests of the society, which was founded 64 years ago.

How a Sailor Halted Career of Helen Hayes

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 4.—Helen Hayes says it was a sailor whom she never met and whose name she does not know that kept her out of motion pictures for years. A number of years ago she made a film, "Weavers of Life," that was so bad that it was shelved after the preview.

At the preview she sat behind a sailor who during the whole showing kept moaning and covering his face with his hands, occasionally uttering howls of disgust and consternation as the picture progressed. "That's the worst picture I ever saw," he muttered as he got up out of his seat to leave, and poor cowering Helen heard it plainly. It took years to talk down that experience to herself.

A new style note from Travis Banton, now in Paris, is the news that the coq feather boas like that he created for Dietrich in "Shanghai Express" are all the rage there. Also —broadcloth is the select fabric for fall wear, especially in black. Starched chiffon is the pick for evening wear for debutantes.

Karl Freund, the cameraman who years ago photographed "The Golem" and more recently "Variety" and many other hits from the German studios with odd and interesting camera angles which revolutionized camera work here and abroad, will now be a director. His first assignment is with Boris Karloff in a story concerning a mummy that comes to life.

The most versatile acquisition made by a Hollywood studio in recent years probably is Capt. Jules A. Strasser, who was chief interpreter at Olympic village during the recent games.

A Fox studio executive visiting Olympic village met Capt. Strasser and was amazed at the captain's evident fluency in 27 languages — he speaks them all with the exception of Chinese.

So the captain, a native of Alsace-Lorraine, was signed by the studio in order to take advantage of his intimate knowledge on a million subjects and amazing lingual ability.

Possessor of the Victoria cross and other war decorations, Capt. Strasser commanded the American steamer Harvard and other boats during the world war. Two weeks before the armistice while carrying soldiers, ammunition and supplies across the English channel, the Harvard was torpedoed off Cape Gris Nez. The torpedo struck the boat only a glancing blow and Capt. Strasser was the only casualty. He suffered numerous wounds and the loss of an eye.

Mustered out of the navy in 1921, he was appointed port pilot in Los Angeles harbor and served until 1925 when a Standard Oil steamer he was piloting met with an unavoidable accident colliding with a drawbridge during a severe windstorm. During the investigation of the accident it was discovered that Capt. Strasser was minus the sight of one eye and he was relieved from duty.

Weldon Heyburn, Lenore Ulrich's former leading man who married Greta Nissen at Tia Juana early this year, is displaying a gift from Greta, a beautiful shiny new wrist watch as refutation of the stories that all ain't well between him and her.

Vina Delmar will leave Hollywood shortly for New York where she will make an effort to see a recently written play produced there. The author of "Bad Girl" has just finished an original screen story for James Dunne, "Bad Boy" who was lifted to the top of the heap in "Bad Girl."

Dewey Robinson was working in a picture at the Fox studio chiefly because of his size, which is six feet four, plus 250 pounds. Fortunately for Dewey he and a studio executive got hungry at the same time. The executive saw Robinson across the table. A test and contract for Dewey followed. Robinson formerly played in various New York shows.

Apparently there has been a whispering campaign going on against crab apples. When interrogated as to supply and demand of these hard hearted midget apples a fruit auctioneer cast his eyes skyward and breathed a prayer that he might be spared from worrying about any of the "nubbins" this year. A cynical agriculturist said that crabs were rather effective on stray dogs. And a housewife admitted that crab apples might make excellent eating, but that they didn't come with printed instructions and nobody seemed to know what to do with them.

The housewife was right. The rather adamant makeup of these smallest members of the apple clan has discouraged much experimenting into their possibilities. But, fortunately, lack of recipes does not mean lack of delicious openings for experiment. Because of the high percentage of pectin and their own distinctive, tangy flavor, crab apples are excellent combiners with other fruit juices for jellies. Spices and the crab apple flavor seem to have a special leaning toward each other, and preserves, marmalades, and spiced jelly all offer delicious accompaniments for the meat course or for hot biscuits at a cool fall breakfast.

The following recipes are a few of the most appealing, guaranteed to convert even an agricultural cynic and an auctioneer into crab apple enthusiasts:

SPICED CRAB APPLE PRESERVES.

4 pounds sugar.
3 ounces stick cinnamon.
Barely ripe crab apples.

Wash and cut out the blossom end of the crab apples, but leave on the stem. Boil the sugar and vinegar together with the cinnamon until reduced to a rich sirup. Drop in a dozen or so crab apples and let cook until tender. Skim out and place in sterile jars. Drop more crab apples into the sirup until the desired amount of preserves is cooked. Boil the sirup down somewhat and pour over the crab apples in the jars. Seal.

CRAB APPLE SHERBET.

4 cups water.
Grated rind of ½ orange.
Juice of 1 lemon.
2½ quarts sound crab apples.

Wash and cut the apples in quarters. Add a very little water and let simmer, covered, until quite tender. Turn into a jelly bag and drain. The final juice may be pressed out and reserved for fruit sauces. Now boil the sugar and water twenty minutes. Add the lemon juice and orange rind, and cool. Add two cups of the crab apple juice and freeze in a salt and ice churn.

CRAB APPLE TARTS.

Wash, core, and slice sufficient crab apples to fill the required number of pastry lined tart tins. The skins should be left on. Over each tart place dots of butter and sprinkle one-fourth cup of sugar. Bake with or without upper crusts in a hot oven [450 degrees F.] for the first ten minutes, then reduce heat slightly and bake twenty minutes longer. This pie may be made in one large pie tin with or without an upper crust. A somewhat longer time will be required to cook the apples through.

CRAB APPLE JELLY.

Select good, newly ripened crab apples, wash and quarter. Place the pieces in a kettle and add water till it can be seen through the top layer of apples. Cook until the apples are tender, then turn into a jelly bag and drain several hours. Boil the juice twelve minutes and measure. Add three cups of sugar to each pint of juice and boil three minutes longer, or until the sirup sheets off the edge of a spoon. Pour at once into clean hot jelly glasses and seal with hot paraffin.

CRAB APPLE GRAPE JAM.

Sugar.

Wash and core but do not peel the crab apples. Stew apples and grapes separately, each in a little water, until soft, then combine and press through a sieve. Add one cup of sugar and one-third teaspoon cinnamon for each pint of fruit pulp. Clove, allspice, etc., may be added if desired. Simmer the jam slowly until thick and ready to congeal.

Fellow Loves a Co-worker, but She Snubs Him

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am desperately in love with this girl. She has been very nice to me for the last ten months. We work in the same place.

"But for the last month she has been speaking to me in a very uncivil manner, which I cannot stand. I lose my temper with her, but am sorry afterwards. I do not want to leave the job at present with things as they are. But seeing her every day only makes matters worse for me. What would you advise? — B. J."

First, I would advise asking the girl to have luncheon with you one day and have it out about why she is irritable. There must be something bothering her. Perhaps you make your feelings too obvious for her comfort. Perhaps you embarrass her before the rest of the workers. It may be that you are too proprietary in your manner, which would irritate her. I am only guessing, of course. But there is something responsible for the changed manner.

It may be that she finds she does not care enough for you to encourage you further and takes this way of discouraging your attentions. I don't know. But you could find out by asking the girl frankly what is the matter—and if she feels differently toward you.

However, whatever her answer, it would be folly for you to give up a job at this stage of precarious business conditions. Whether the girl cares for you or not, you still have your living to make. And it is utterly ridiculous to abandon your chances for one who finds she is not in love with you. There are other girls in the world. You will get over the disappointment of this one. And there's no reason why you shouldn't go on working in the same place with the girl.

It may be some reason to which you are no party, at all. You can't force deep affection if the feeling isn't there. Nor is it anything to hold against yourself that the girl does not care, if such is the case. It just happens that way and you are not the first one to experience the pangs of an unrequited love. Only you have to act the man if you want to have some other girl's substitute interest.

This Woman Lost 45 Pounds of Fat

"Dear Sirs: For 3 months I've been using your salts and am very much pleased with results. I've lost 45 lbs., 6 inches in hips and bust measure. I've taken 3 bottles—one lasting 5 weeks. I had often tried to reduce by dieting but never could keep it up, but by cutting down and taking Kruschen I've had splendid results. I highly recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. Carl Wilson, Manton, Mich.

To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning. To hasten results go light on fatty meats, potatoes and pastries—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen—your health comes first—get it at any drug store in America. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

"Have a Heart" Day Tomorrow to Aid Charity

The little red hearts that for years have appeared on the streets of Chicago annually for the sake of dependent children, widows, and the aged will be sold again tomorrow. Forty institutions composing the Chicago Federated Charities will sell these herats on "Have a Heart" Tag day.

Girls and women will offer for sale the official tags with their "thank you" lettered on the back. The taggers will be stationed at various street corners over the city and each purchaser may give what he wishes for a tag.

Every penny contributed goes to the institutions, since the taggers are all volunteer workers. The boxes at the end of the day will be taken, unopened, to the First National bank where the contents will be counted through the courtesy of the officials.

The following institutions will share the proceeds of Tag day according to the amount taken in by the taggers for each organization:

American Ladies' Aid.

Remove Cause and Child Will Stop Bad Habits

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

There are little habits children get into without any obvious reason to which we object, more because they detract from their manners or appearance than on any behavior or moral grounds.

There's the little girl who twists a lock of hair, or the boy who endlessly smoothes back a curly mop that he's trying to straighten out; there's the child whose mouth drops open as a leftover after the tonsils or adenoids which caused it have been removed; there's the child who bites her fingernails and the child who seems to have forgotten the polite and sanitary way to clean his nose.

We've talked before about removing the reasons back of some habits, so today we'll just talk of dealing directly with the habit itself. This is sometimes necessary in addition to removing fundamental causes.

First, avoid all nagging, scolding and punishment. Get at the whole matter in a friendly way so that the child wants to stop it and will welcome your help. When a child is old enough for this you can accomplish a great deal by friendly, businesslike reminding and by gaining his coöperation.

Praise and encouragement are another means to your end. In our advice leaflet on the nail biting habit this looms large, and mothers have written many times to me of their success with this habit.

And a third thing is to remove physical causes. Take, for example, the many children who clean their noses in the way we all object to most strenuously. They often do so at first because their noses are uncomfortable. The secretion of the membrane dries and causes discomfort which a child tries to remove in an instinctive way. Besides seeing that a handkerchief is always at hand see that his nostrils are thoroughly but gently cleaned night and morning. Plain mineral oil or cold cream on absorbent cotton used in this way is excellent.

'Of Thee I Sing' to Open Here September 25

Select Cast for Satire on Politics.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"Of Thee I Sing," the song and dance satire on national politics which is generally regarded as the most famous show of the year, will arrive in Chicago Sunday night, Sept. 25. The Grand Opera house will be the scene of the engagement.

The cast that has been assembled to carry this brilliant piece of mockery on tour while the original production continues its Broadway run will have Oscar Shaw in the rôle of the President of the United States [elected on a platform of love], and Donald Meek as the Vice President who wanders through the story as the Forgotten Man. Harriette Lake, seen here in "Everybody's Welcome" last spring, will be the bride of the White House. Other principals will be Cecil Lean, Al Sexton, Paul Everton, Adrian Rosley, Audrey Christie, John Cherry, Francis Pierlot, William Pringle, Roberta Robinson, and Abe Reynolds.

This announcement conveys an impression that the Chicago interpretation of "Of Thee I Sing" will be completely up to the standard of the New York company. Oscar Shaw has been for years a first rate singing "juvenile" of the best musical comedy casts. Donald Meek is a droll actor of comic little Americans who is easily remembered by his performance of the downtrodden father in "The Potters." Cecil Lean has a Chicago tradition that dates back to the popularity of the musical shows of twenty years ago at the La Salle theater.

Jack Dempsey's current appearances on the vaudeville program at the Palace theater call for a footnote in the theatrical news although his activities are usually chronicled on the sports pages. The former heavyweight champion is acting, with creditable footwork and a friendly grin, in a one-act sketch written around his personality and achievements by Willard Mack. It bears the title of "A Roadside Razz," and permits Jack to gossip about his pugilistic history with a quaint old character who runs a rural filling station somewhere in the vicinity of Hollywood.

Jack, arrayed in snappy California gear, is at ease before the footlights and answers his cues audibly in the light, amiable tenor voice that is such a striking contrast to his professional reputation. He talks about his famous matches in a casual, wise-cracking way; and when asked about his plans for the future says that he is ready to meet Sharkey again, in the hope of regaining his old crown. Cinema glimpses of the critical rounds in his contests with Firpo, Tunney [second match] and Sharkey preface the sketch. The slow motion view of the "long count" should be useful for the debating societies that are still in session over this episode.

Patricia Collinge will have the important rôle of the sister-in-law in the cast of "Another Language" when that play begins its engagement at the Harris theater next Sunday night.

Nine Bands from Suburbs Appear at Lemont Festival

Nine bands from suburban communities near Chicago gathered yesterday at Lemont for the annual music festival sponsored by the Lemont municipal band. Those participating came from Clearing, Downers Grove, Hinsdale, Midlothian, Naperville, Libertyville, Orland and Joliet. The bands first competed as individuals and then were massed. Charles D. Nicholls, director of the Lemont band, was in general charge of the festival, which was attended by 6,000 auditors. The festival will continue this afternoon.

Fox Bedecked Coat in Highest Favor with Parisienne

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The fox-befurred coat triumphed in all the fashionable events of the last week of the Paris social season. Women, whom the dressmakers here have been educating away from this particular kind of wrap, have returned to their primitive love for the luxury of the fox bedecked coat.

No doubt about it, this kind of coat will continue to triumph all fall and winter and the Paris couturiers are, at the moment, racking their creative brains to devise ways and means of adding fox fur to the coat to make it look new and fresh.

The coats of this type are mostly in one color, that is to say the fur matches the color of the coat. Beige and gray coats trimmed with beige and gray fox are in the highest favor with the fashionable Parisienne.

Beige coats trimmed with blue fox are also distinguished, and the coat illustrated today is a beige cloth coat trimmed with three blue fox skins. This coat has a cape in front, which is attached to the under arm part of the sleeve in back, and two of the foxes border this cape, with the heads meeting the fox collar that is made of the third skin, at the neck in front.

The triangular double breasted closing of this coat, and its back belt are smart details.

Grimm Bats in Two Runs; Scores 3d.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Lon Warneke, ably abetted by his boss, Charley Grimm, and the rest of the Cub cast, yesterday achieved that golden goal of all pitchers, victory No. 20, when he held the world champion St. Louis Cardinals to three singles for a 3 to 0 shutout. More than 32,000 turned out to see the farewell tableau in the great Wrigley field carnival during which the league leaders won 18 out of 20 games.

Early in the contest it became apparent that Warneke was bent on getting his fourth shutout of the season and his second of the home stay. With goose eggs in prospect for the Cardinals, the only task was for the Cubs to get at least one run. It was in this production phase that Manager Grimm distinguished himself. His double with two out in the fourth scored Cuyler and Stephenson and he forthwith scored the third and last run of the afternoon on a single by Gabby Hartnett.

First in League to Reach 20.

Warneke is the first National league pitcher to reach 20 victories in two years. In 1930 Pat Malone and Remy Kremer had 20 at the end of the year and in 1929 Malone, with 22, was the only one in the 20 victory class. Since the Cubs have 24 more games to play, Lonnie has a chance to give National leaguers something to shoot at, ere the season ends.

Yesterday's win was made the more comforting by the posting of the Pirates-Red score which showed the Pittsburghers as winners of their eighth straight. There is, however, no objection to the continuance of the Pirate winning streak so long as the Cubs can keep in step with their present lead of seven games.

The Pirates, like the Cubs, must labor on eastern fields, beginning Wednesday. Today, while the Cubs are engaging the last place Reds in a double header in Cincinnati the Pirates will be fighting the Cardinals in a pair at Pittsburgh. The Cubs open in Boston with a double header and the Pirates on the same day will hook up with Brooklyn.

Only 30 Face Warneke.

But getting back to yesterday's cheerful doings: Only 30 batsmen, three more than the minimum, faced Warneke. Two of the three hits were made by Jimmy Wilson. The first hit off Lon was Wilson's single to left which led off the third inning. Wilson got to third on a sacrifice and an infield out, thus to become the only Cardinal who got as far as second.

The second hit was a single by Watkins, which fell just out of Cuyler's reach, with two out in the fourth, and the effort was canceled immediately after it was made because Watkins tried to steal second.

Strikes Out 6 Cardinals.

Those three hits formed the total threat, for the Cubs gave Lon errorless support, unless you want to mention that C. Wilson, first batter up in the contest, drew the only pass given by Warneke. And that pass was given grudgingly enough, after a count of three balls and two strikes.

Warneke at no time seemed to be bearing down especially, but he did enough whizzing to fan six—Bottomley twice, and C. Wilson, Martin, Johnson, and Collins once each.

One hit was knocked in the first three innings, a single with which J. Wilson led off the Cardinal third. Jimmy got to second on Johnson's sacrifice and to third while Herman was throwing out C. Wilson. His trip ended at third, for English threw out Medwick. In the same three innings Grimm was the only Cub to reach first. He was hit by a pitched ball with two out in the second inning.

Flashes Riot Sign.

Three hitless innings didn't set so well with the Cubs and Manager Grimm in the fourth flashed that old riot sign, making sure that he gave it to himself as well as his associates. With one down Cuyler smashed a grounder straight at Frisch, who fumbled just long enough for Kl to reach first. Cuyler and Stephenson put on

Dutra—In	445	343
Walsh—In	546	343

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Broad shouldered, 206 pound Olin Dutra of Santa Monica, Cal., the fellow who sent King Par into retirement during the last five days of the national professional golfers' tournament, is the new American professional champion.

OLIN DUTRA.

Dutra defeated Frank Walsh, Bryn Mawr Country club, Chicago, 4 and 3, this afternoon to win the 1932 title and with it $1,000 in cash. Walsh was enriched to the extent of $600.

The methodical Chicagoan gave Dutra a hand to hand battle through 18 holes of play, but the terrific pace set by the giant Californian was too much for Walsh after the morning round, and they reached the turn this afternoon with Walsh two down.

Dutra Plays Safe.

Dutra went three up at the 25th hole, increased his lead to four on the 30th and then played safe, halving the next two holes in par 3's and 4's and winning the match at the 33d, when he placed his first putt, from 20 feet out, at the edge of the cup.

Walsh, in a position where he could do no better than a half, stepped up to big Olin, wrung the champion's hand, and the match was over.

Dutra has shot sensational golf ever since the first round of the metropolitan open which he won three weeks ago and the north shore open, in which Dutra also triumphed.

There was no letup in his brilliant game from the outset of the P. G. A. tourney here. Dutra took medal honors with a 69—71—140 and then overwhelmed George M. Smith of Lake Forest, 9 and 8, in the first round of match play. He turned in a brilliant morning round of 33—34—67, one stroke over the course record.

23 Strokes Under Par.

Dutra followed this with an 18 hole card of 67, to eliminate Reggie Myles, Ashland, O., 5 and 3, and the next day he beat Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y., 5 and 4. Dutra's morning card was a 70, two under par. In the semi-finals yesterday Dutra whipped Ed Dudley, holder of the Keller course record, 2 and 2, with a medal card of 67 for the morning round. His total medal score for the five days of match play was 221 strokes, 23 under par.

Going out this morning, Dutra carded a 35. He came back in 36 for a medal score of 71, one under par. On the outward journey in the afternoon Dutra shot a great 33, three under par. The remaining six holes this afternoon were toured in par.

To reach the finals Walsh defeated Ted Longworth, Texarkana, Tex., 7 and 6; Gene Kunes, Hartford, Conn., 9 and 8; Bobby Cruickshank, Port Richmond, N. Y., 8 and 7, and Tom Creavy, the defending champion, of Albany, N. Y., 1 up in 38 holes.

Walsh Wins Fourth.

Although defeated for the championship, Walsh accomplished something that no other pro was able to do—get a lead over Dutra. The Chicagoan was 2 up on the Pacific coast player after six holes of play this morning.

They halved the first three, the 1st and 2nd in par 4s and the 3rd with birdie 4s, the result of fine putts. At the 4th, however, Walsh went one up, whistling a great tee shot onto the green 12 feet short and two putting for a par 3. Dutra missed his second putt by inches. It was the first time Dutra had trailed any of his opponents in five days of match play.

Walsh made it two up at the 6th, a brilliant tee shot placing his ball only six feet from the pin. With a piece of mud on the ball, Walsh studied the situation for a minute and then dropped it in for a birdie on the three par hole.

Dutra Takes Eighth.

After they halved the 7th in birdie 4s, Walsh began showing signs of

SOX LOSE, 7 TO 5, TO BROWNS, THEN COME BACK, 5 TO 1

Sullivan and Gregory Win Second Game.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Paul Gregory's pitching and Billy Sullivan's hitting gave the White Sox an even break in today's doubleheader with the Browns, enabling them to win the nightcap 5 to 1. St. Louis won the first game, 7 to 5.

Sullivan drove out four straight singles, then wound up with a home run over the right field pavilion in the ninth inning. Gregory, most promising of the freshman hurlers, held the Browns to six hits and had a shutout until the ninth inning when Goslin doubled, advanced on a passed ball and streaked home on an infield out.

The Sox hammered Sam Gray and Bob Cooney for sixteen hits. Red Kress, a St. Louis alumnus, again had a prominent hand in the proceedings, getting three singles.

Rookie Tires.

Fabian Kowalik, rookie right hander from San Antonio, made his debut in the first game, but was forced to quit in the seventh when he tired. Home runs led to his undoing, Goslin hitting one with no one on and Levey, one with one on. Kowalik allowed twelve hits.

The Sox missed numerous scoring opportunities, which permitted Bump Hadley a measure of revenge after being knocked out of the box yesterday.

FIRST GAME

Young Kowalik, a slim, wiry chap, was off to a wabbly start in the first game. With one out, Burns singled off the right field screen, but was out trying to reach second. Campbell was hit by a pitched ball and Goslin walked. Ferrell's double to center scored Campbell, but Kowalik slipped over a third strike on Melillo.

Singles by Levey and Hadley, with Garms' infield out, gave the Browns another run in the second inning, but the Sox rushed into the lead in their half of the third. Funk led off with a single to center and Hayes singled to left. Seeds beat out a hit to Hadley, and the bases were filled. Funk scored on Sullivan's fly to Campbell. Appling's single scored Hayes, but Seeds was out at third, Appling taking second. He scored on Hodapp's single.

The Browns went ahead by scoring once in the third and again in the fifth on Goslin's homer into the center field bleachers.

Kowalik Hits Double.

Kowalik helped tie the score in the sixth. Kress singled to left and stopped at third when the rookie hurler doubled down the right field foul line. He scored after Funk lifted to Garms. The Browns took a 4-4 lead in their half of the sixth when Scharein walked and Levey hit a homer over the right field pavilion.

Although Seeds and Sullivan singled and Appling walked to fill the bases, in the seventh, the Sox could score only one run. Seeds scored it, while Hodapp was hitting into a double play.

Kowalik departed in the seventh after Goslin doubled off the right field screen and scored on Melillo's hit to center, making the score 7 to 5. Gallivan finished the inning, but gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth. Chamberlain pitched the eighth inning.

SECOND GAME

Meanwhile, Gregory was tantalizing the Browns. He dodged trouble in the fourth inning when Levey grounded out to Sullivan with three runners on and two out. Garms doubled in the eighth with one out, went to third on Kress' wild throw, but was stranded there.

After wasting two hits in the fourth and one in the fifth, which was Still-

TALKING IT OVER.

BY ARCH WARD.

Prosperity must be just around the corner. If you don't believe it, drop into the athletic office at the University of Notre Dame and ask to see their figures on 1932 football estimates.

J. Arthur Haley, whose job is to convince half a million fans every fall that their seats are on the 50 yard line, predicts that this season will match any of its predecessors in total attendance.

This is the way he thinks the turnstiles will spin:

Southern California	105,000
Army	80,000
Navy	80,000
Pittsburgh	65,000
Northwestern	53,000
Kansas	35,000
Carnegie Tech	20,000
Drake	15,000
Haskell	15,000
Total	488,000

If the first five games draw as well as Mr. Haley anticipates, they will be sellouts. With the exception of the contest with the Navy, there probably will be little difficulty in reaching that goal.

The Navy game, scheduled for South Bend where it probably would attract less than 35,000, was transferred to Cleveland's new municipal stadium at the request of Mayor Miller, a Notre Dame alumnus, and civic organizations. Applications for tickets indicate a capacity crowd.

Two new opponents appear on the schedule—Kansas and Haskell. The contract with Kansas calls for two games, at Lawrence this year and at South Bend in 1933. Relations with Haskell end after this year's engagement, which was a "friendship match" arranged by the late Knute Rockne and Lone Star Dietz, coach of the Indians. The card which Jess Harper, athletic director, has booked for 1933 leaves no room for Haskell or Drake.

The demand for tickets to Notre Dame games is particularly interesting in view of opinions widely circulated a year ago that support of the team would wane with Rockne no longer at the helm.

So much for the thousands who will attend Notre Dame games. But what kind of a team will they have to shout about? Let the coach, Heartley Anderson, give you his appraisal. Mr. Anderson speaking:

"We look for a better balanced eleven than we had last year. We have more reserve material and more experienced players. Our biggest loss, of course, is Marchmont Schwartz. Backfield men like Schwartz come along only every few years. I see no man on the squad who can be expected to measure up to his caliber. In almost every other position I feel we are equally as strong as last season."

Anderson will be assisted in the development of the team by three members of the 1931 squad, Schwartz, Yarr and Hoffman, and Ike Voedisch, who has been on the staff since 1927.

Anderson is counting on improvement in Brancheau, Melinkovich and Koken to offset the loss of Schwartz.

One of the Notre Dame back fields probably will line up with Jaskwhich at quarter back; Lukats and Brancheau at half backs and Banas at full back. Another will find Vejar, who showed the coaches in spring practice that he has learned to block, at quarter back; Koken and Sheketski at half backs, and Melinkovich at full back.

If this combination doesn't suit you, make your own selections and send them to Coach Anderson. He probably can take care of everybody.

MURCIE CAPTURES $2,000 CHANTILLY FEATURE RACE

CHANTILLY, France, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Jean Prat's Murcie, a 4 year old, won the featured Prix de Chantilly at 3,100 meters today and earned the major share of a purse of 50,000 francs, about $2,000.

Marigny and Blitzalia ran a dead heat for second place, two and one-half lengths behind the leader. Le Firmament was fourth. Murcie paid 3 to 1 in the betting.

ATTENDANCE AT CUB GAMES NEAR 1,000,000 MARK

Last Home Stand Sets a New Record.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

If the Reconstruction Finance board finds itself in need of funds, the Cub officials might oblige with a few extra dollars. They will be well supplied by the time the current mad dash for a National league pennant is concluded. The home paid attendance for the fourth consecutive year promises to run beyond the million mark, all because of the Cubs' belated spurt which turned an ordinary season into one of almost top notch proportions.

Up to late in July the cash customers at Wrigley field had fallen off about 20 per cent from the figures for the same period during the 1931 race. Cold weather last spring, and actual rain or threatening clouds on numerous Sundays, more than a lack of interest or the so-called depression, conspired to cut down the gate. The change for the better set in July 24 when the Pirates, then in first place and acting much like eventual league champions, came here for a double header. In excess of 45,000 contributed cash that day. The pass gate patrons swelled that day's figure to almost 48,000. From then on business flourished at a rate that has made less fortunate club owners water at the mouth.

Record for Home Stay.

From the opening of the home stay, which ended yesterday, the daily figures were seldom under 10,000. Frequently midweek games attracted more than 25,000. The Sunday turnouts were enormous, even though one Sabbath was cut from a possible 40,000 to 25,000, because of inclement weather. The upshot of this sustained patronage, aided of course by the fourteen game winning streak and hair raising finishes almost daily, was a new record for one home stay. From Aug. 16 up to and including yester-

What Must Cubs Do to Clinch Flag? It Depends on Pirates

There seem to be a lot of folks in Chicago who don't know much about baseball mathematics. This assumption is based mostly on the frequent asking of the question, "When can the Cubs clinch the pennant?"

The stock answer, "It all depends upon how fast the Cubs win and the Pirates lose," appears to mystify the questioners. They seem to think the matter should be settled with a proclamation by Commissioner K. M. Landis.

The standing this morning is:

Cubs	78	52	.600
Pirates	72	60	.545

The Cubs, to complete the schedule of 154 games, have 24 more games to play and the Pirates have 22.

If the Cubs finish the season with approximately the same ratio of wins to losses they have maintained since the season opened on April 12—three wins to every two defeats—they would finish with 14 more wins and 10 more losses, taking an extra loss to make things come out even.

Cubs	92	62	.597

To beat out the Cubs the Pirates would have to win 21 out of their remaining 22 games.

Suppose the Cubs win half of their remaining games, for a percentage showing 100 points under their season pace to date. Then their final standing will be:

Cubs	90	64	.584

Cubs	84	70	.545

In this event, which is quite unthinkable, the Pirates to win would have to play much better than .500 ball—they would have to win 13 while losing nine.

If the Cubs lose all of their remaining games the Pirates will have to win seven to grab the pennant.

HANDICAP STARS CLASH TODAY AT LINCOLN FIELDS

BY FRENCH LANE.

There isn't any reason for the regulars of the western turf to hang their heads in shame this year when their thoroughbred racing steeds are compared with the fashionable horses from the east.

We haven't an Equipoise out this way, but take the next eight or ten ranking performers in the older handicap division and you'll find that the majority of them hail from the west. Among the 3 year olds there is a western fellow dashing along into the fall season which may wind up the year as the best of his age in the country.

His name is Gallant Sir. The older western handicap stars that have more than held their own with the easterners this year are Plucky Play, Charleigh, Playdale, and My Dandy.

Meet at Lincoln Fields Today.

There is a race out at Lincoln Fields today—the $2,500 Labor Day handicap—which brings most of these stylish western performers into action. All except Plucky Play will be in the parade to the post and the pink silks he usually sports will be carried by his stable companion, Gallant Sir.

The Labor Day handicap, which is at one mile, is going to prove a lot of things and it should result in one of the great races of the year around Chicago.

Will Charleigh, which was a selling plater two months ago, continue to dash along ahead of the stake stars and win a place right at the top of the handicap division?

How About Playdale?

Will Playdale proceed along the merry path he has been traveling since Tom Taggart's French Lick Springs stable got him last June, and will he also move into the select handicap ranks?

Can Gallant Sir, with all the worst of it as far as the weights are concerned, beat these older stars as handily as he trounced the speed phantom, Hygro, at Hawthorne last week?

Can old My Dandy keep going on and on forever and can the once fleet and game Jimmy Moran come back to the races after a layoff of six months and take his place among the leading westerners? Can Evergold or Cathop, two of our second flight 3 year olds, trim the whole flock of them?

Charleigh Is Favorite.

Very few folks were willing to try to answer any of these questions last night. It made the Labor Day handicap a real puzzler. The overnight betting indicated that most folks think Charleigh will win, for he ruled as the favorite. Gallant Sir was a red hot second choice.

If Gallant Sir should gallop to victory it will make it a banner season for Norman W. Church's Northway stable of Los Angeles. Plucky Play's Hawthorne cup victory demonstrated that he is the best of the older western horses. Now if Gallant Sir today whips the same fellows Plucky Play did in the cup the Northway stable can boast not only the leading older horse but also the best 3 year old in the west.

The holiday program at Lincoln Fields is attractive and well balanced. The leading western sprinters come together in the Toilers purse at 6 furlongs, some leading 2 year olds meet in the third race at the same route, and a band of topnotchers will fight it out in the Kensington purse, for which Col. E. R. Bradley's Broad Meadows was the early favorite.

For several seasons the Labor day crowd at Lincoln Fields has been one of the largest race gatherings of the year in Chicago. It usually has passed 25,000 and the track officials believe it may be larger than ever this year with admission prices cut in half.

EIGHT 2 YEAR OLDS NAMED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 4.—A band of eight 2 year olds were named overnight to meet in the best race on the Labor day turf program at the Exposition Park track tomorrow.

Platinum Blonde owned by Mrs. S. H. Fairbanks of Boston, narrowly beaten in her last start at Hawthorne, was the favorite with Knowledge, a son of Dunlin, which races for K. N. Gilpin of Virginia, the second choice. Two Chicago youngsters also came in for considerable backing. Concisus which races for Mrs. Val Crane and Crystal Belle from the stable of Harry Herendeen.

Expect Large Crowd.

Concisus and Crystal Belle are homebreds from thoroughbred stables located in the Fox River valley not many miles from the Exposition Park track.

There are seven other races on the holiday program and plans were going forward to entertain a large crowd. E. F. Carruthers, general manager of the Aurora Jockey club, believe the attendance may reach 20,000 tomorrow, a mark set at spring Decoration day meeting a few seasons ago.

Jockey Willie Todd piloted three winners home on the opening day. He showed fine saddle skill in all his engagements and his mounts are likely to be heavily backed throughout the season.

Shipments of Horses Arrive.

Several shipments of horses reached the Aurora track today most of them coming from the Windsor course in Canada and from Bainbridge Park in Ohio. These newcomers will begin going into action tomorrow afternoon and on Tuesday. There are about 35 riders in the Aurora jockey colony.

Post time for the first race tomorrow will be 2:30 o'clock.

Payseur, New Purple Golf Coach, Back from Tourney

Ted Payseur, recently appointed golf coach at Northwestern, returned to Evanston yesterday from Dubuque, Ia., where he competed in the Iowa open championship. He finished third in the tourney and second among the pros, having a 72 hole total of 303. Payseur, who has been assistant basketball coach at Northwestern for the last five years, will take over the golf team in addition to his other duties at the opening of the fall term.

Woods and Waters By Bob Becker

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rapid City, Black Hills, S. D., Sept. 4.—Whenever a fisherman wants to vary his day's program there is nothing like taking a day hunting dinosaurs, three toed horses, oreodons, and a flock of other curious beasts that used to live five or ten million years ago and now can be bagged with a shovel and a whisk broom.

We tried that kind of "hunting" yesterday in this amazing corner of South Dakota when we spent a day in the famous Bad Lands about 90 miles southeast of this city. Once the bottom of a huge salt water sea in which strange prehistoric beasts lived the Bad Lands today present a scenic treat that shouldn't be missed by any one who gets in this part of the country. The old sea bed has been carved into pinnacles, spires, domes, canyons, buttes, and plateaus.

In making a quick jump from the northern hills to this section around Rapid City and the Bad Lands we made a side trip to the little town of Terryville. This mining town hanging by its eyebrows on the top of a steep and beautiful canyon behind the bustling city of Lead had no fishing to offer us. But who can resist the urge to go back to one's birthplace and see how the old home town looks, especially when you can't remember the place when you left it? So we climbed the steep road from Central City, once a boom town in the placer gold days, looked into the stamp mill with its deafening ore crushers, inspected some of the funny little houses that cling tenaciously to the canyon walls and then we headed for the southern hills.

The first order of business called for a trip into the famous badlands, not only because of their unique and dazzling beauty but because it looks as if Uncle Sam were about to take over many miles of the area for a national

With R. L. Bronson, secretary of the chamber of commerce, as our guide we landed in the heart of the noted Sheep mountain section of the badlands around 10:30 a. m. and at 10:35 we had a violent attack of fossil fever, which makes a fellow want to scramble through the hills looking for the skull of a dinosaur, the shell of a 10,000,000 year old turtle, or other little known animal which used to live out here.

We had a little luck with the fossil turtles, but the most interesting discovery of the day was a new highway right through the most stunning part of the badlands, and the fact that these badlands [which are anything but bad for the tourist] have a little midwestern and eastern atmosphere due to the presence of Dr. Ira Edwards of the Milwaukee museum and the recent visit of Dr. Glenn Jepson, geologist of Princeton university.

Of course these scientists were intent on the discovery of fossils. Dr. Edwards was working on a flat horned titanothere, a whopping big prehistoric animal that none of us modern hunters would have cared to encounter if we could have gone hunting millions of years ago. As for that new road through the badlands, just jot this down if you are coming west. From Kodaka on route 16 to Scenic pass, to Big Foot pass, Dillon pass, and then back on 16. This scenic highway isn't completed, but should be this fall.

Yesterday we got a real thrill when we watched a road crew work the road through the beautiful badlands pinnacles where the motorist will soon be able to drive into a tunnel beneath a stunning wall of eroded spires.

Dutra won the 8th after Walsh pitched his second into a sand trap on the left and then sent his third into the trap on the other side of the green. Walsh also dubbed his fourth and conceded the hole. A half, in par 4s, on the 9th and they rounded the turn with Walsh one up. Walsh's medal card was 34, two under par, and Olin had a 35.

Walsh won the 11th with another birdie, a 3, to go two up again. Frank narrowly missed an eagle on the hole. His second shot, with plenty of backspin, stopped two feet from the pin and then rolled back to the edge of the cup.

Dutra won the 12th. Walsh was on in three but his second putt hit Dutra's ball. They halved the next two in par 3s and 4s.

All Square, Three to Go.

Dutra squared the match at the 15th, winning it with a par 3 after missing a birdie on a 40 foot putt by six inches. Dutra also took the next hole with a fine recovery after both were in the rough with tee shots. Walsh's second was short, however, and Dutra was one up. Walsh came back to win the 17th and even the match with a beautiful second shot which was on, 15 feet from the pin, after his drive had landed on the tee of the 18th hole. He took two putts for a par 4. Dutra took 5, missing a half when his first putt, five feet from the pin, rolled over the cup.

Both scored birdie 4s on the long 18th hole, despite trouble. Dutra was in the rough, on edge of a sand trap with his drive and Frank's second found the rough to right of fairway.

Walsh Drives Out on 19th.

An unfortunate break lost Walsh the 19th. His tee shot was out of bounds and the Chicagoan started from the tee again, losing one stroke. His next shot was in a trap, but a sensational recovery placed his ball 35 feet from the pin and an equally sensational putt gave him a 5. Dutra had a par 4.

Dutra had to drop a 10 foot putt to halve the next hole in par 4, after sending his second into a trap. They halved the 21st and 22d in par figures. Walsh lost a chance to square it on the 22d when he missed a 4 foot putt for a birdie 2.

The big Californian made it 2 up on the 24th, a great tee shot reaching the green, 10 feet from the pin. Dutra sank the putt for a birdie 2. Walsh was short with his drive and took a par 3.

This Is Real Golf!

Both shot great golf on the 25th and 26th, scoring birdie 4s on the former and birdie 3s on the latter. Dutra missed an eagle by two feet on the 25th when his 30 foot putt rolled over the cup. Walsh dropped a 6 footer for his 4. Olin canned a 15 foot putt for his 3 on the 26th, while Walsh's fine chip shot left him only a 3 footer. They halved the 27th in par 4s and rounded the turn with Dutra 2 up.

Dutra's outward journey was made in 33, three under par, and Walsh's in 35.

Walsh was in trouble on the 28th and lost the hole after getting into a trap and taking three more strokes to get on for a 5, while Olin got his par 4. They halved the next in par 4 and Dutra was 3 up, with 7 to play.

Dutra Goes 4 Up.

Dutra widened the gap at the 30th to four up, winning it when Walsh teed into the rough, took three more to get on, and two-putted from four feet out. Dutra was in trouble also, his second going into the rough, but a nice recovery left him 15 feet from the pin. He two putted for a par 5. They halved the 31st in par 3s.

They halved the 32d and the match was dormie. Dutra was four up and four to play. They halved the next hole, ending the match in a victory for Dutra, 4 and 3.

OAK BROOK POLO TEAM DEFEATS SOLDIERS, 18 TO 7

Oak Brook's No. 1 polo team kept its season's winning streak intact yesterday by defeating the 6th Corps Area quartet, 18 to 7, at Oak Brook. James Hannah with nine goals led Oak Brook's attack. The teams, picked from three clubs, will play this afternoon.

Oak Brook's No. 2 quartet defeated Fort Sheridan, 11 to 5. Col. Hunter's four goals led the winners' attack while Capt. C. B. Cole scored three goals for the Soldiers. The championship of the north shore district will be decided this afternoon when Onwentsia meets Fort Sheridan in the final game of a series of five at Fort Sheridan.

Scores from Chicago Golf Courses

AFTER an absence of several years, Doug Tweedie regained the club championship at the Glen Oak Country club yesterday by defeating Bob Kevil, 1 up, in the final match. He was forced to sink a long putt for a birdie three on the 38th green before winning, however. They finished the morning round with a 74 for Kevil and 77 for Tweedie. Bob had a 78 in the afternoon and Doug a 76. They halved the first extra hole in 5s, and Tweedie won the next one and the match with his birdie while Kevil was getting a par four. In the class match play against par, Walter Corbley finished 1 up in class A, C. E. Rowe, 1 up in class B, Joseph Harmon, 3 up in class C, and E. C. Bowman, 2 up in class D.

ACACIA.

Low gross and low net winners in the ball sweepstakes were: Class A—Dan Griffin, 78, and Percy Collins, 83—5—78; class B—George Voss Jr., 90, and C. M. Phelsan, 91—17—74; class C—O. L. Tingblad, 93, and A. Morton, 94—19—75, and class D—Ed Krouse, 108, and H. W. Borchers, 111—26—85. Jerry Olson, with a net of 237, and G. M. Hamilton, with 243, were the leaders in the 54 hole event.

COLUMBIAN.

In the first round play for the club championship, Dr. J. F. Oates defeated Mark Devine, 4 and 3; J. Lichter defeated Dr. A. N. Even, 5 and 4; Dr. R. E. Dyer defeated L. J. Fohr, 2 and 1, and J. Feeney won from K. Brannock by default.

EDGEWOOD VALLEY.

Fred Gariepy turned in an upset by defeating Frank Justin, 1 up, in a semi-final. Gariepy will meet Harry Rautenbusch in the final. Among the events on today's holiday program are low gross and low net at 36 and 18 holes for all classes, a mixed foursome event, and the qualifying round for the September tournament, in which sixteen will qualify.

EUCLID HILLS.

Earl Sutton won the Richard De Koker trophy with a card of 85—13—72. Art Reed captured the Dr. C. A. Lante trophy by defeating Art Newman, 4 and 3, and Jack Brambach was a semi-final winner over Jack Devereux, 3 and 2, in the semi-finals for the President's cup.

MARQUETTE PARK.

Peter Chaloupka won the Boniatti trophy by defeating Tom Purtell, 7 and 6, in the final. Pete finished out the round and collected himself a hole in one on the 157 yard seventeenth.

MIDDLEBROOK.

Vincent Tracy won the class C championship by defeating A. P. Bronson, 1 up, in 37 holes. Blind bogey winners included Ken S. Ozilvie, 83—10—73; Mrs. K. S. Ozilvie, 98—25—73; William Whitney, 92—19—73; J. Stewart Reid, 91—18—73; Dr. John W. H. Pollard, 87—14—73, and C. A. McCreary, 95—22—73. Dr. Pollard, Dr. James Keith, M. L. Hampton, and A. W. Clark comprised the winning low net foursome with a score of 299. Hampton won low net for the day with a card of 85—17—68, which reverted to par 71. Bill Jordan won low gross with a 78.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

In the semifinal play for the club championship over Nos. 3 and 4 courses, Walter Crowdus, six times titleholder, defeated C. H. Smith, 4 and 3, and J. D. Harris won from O. I. Lewis, 6 and 5. Crowdus and Harris will meet in a 36 hole match today over Nos. 1 and 4 courses. J. N. O'Brien and Elmer F. Smith were semifinal victors in the play for the Sports and Pastimes trophy, the former defeating W. W. Tenney, 3 and 2, while the latter won from Dr. G. H. Maxwell, 4 and 2. Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Ryan won the Benedict trophy by defeating Dr. and Mrs. F. P. Hammond, 2 and 1, in the final. Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Carey won the mixed foursome event on the No. 2 course with 91—15—76. H. K. Shaw and Miss Thelma Roach were second with 93—15—78. Dr. A. F. Henning won the class A medal play event on No. 1 with 77—6—71. W. L. O'Brien Jr. was the winner in class B with 86—14—72.

BUNKER HILL.

Leading qualifiers in the trials for the club championships were Eugene Rappaport, 74, and E. A. Murray, 76, in class A, and M. L. Wolff, 88, and W. Bracken, 88, in class B. Blind bogey leaders included C. M. Patterson, 100—14—86; J. V. Conrad, 86—0—86; E. H. Sloan, 102—15—87, and W. W. McGhee, 81 plus 6—87.

SOMEDY SETS BIKE RECORD IN 25 MILE RACE

The 25 mile bicycle speed record was broken yesterday when Ed Somedy of Henry playground defeated a field of 75 riders in an open race at Humboldt park. Somedy's time of 57 minutes 34.1 seconds was 1 minute and 9 seconds faster than the record set by Al Klingbeil of South Chicago recently.

Second place went to Harold Ade, member of the American Olympic team, who finished only 8 feet behind the winner. Frank LeMajeur was third, with Klingbeil fourth and Wally Vertenten fifth.

Fred Guth, state champion, and Jerry Rodman, south park titleholder, set the pace, but tired and finished eighth and eleventh, respectively. Guth scored 20 points to beat Rodman for the lap prize.

Monroe Nolen, Belgian-American club, beat Klingbeil in the 21-5 mile class A race. Vertenten defeated Guth in the class B event, and Henry Sima beat Andy Engelhardt in the class C feature. The novice race was won by A. Walsh, who defeated Wilbur Casper. Harold Ade was third.

This afternoon the Amateur Bicycle League of America will present a three hour team race at the park's inner track, in which 28 of Chicago's leading amateurs will compete. A five mile open race and an old timers' event complete the program.

Bagheera Sets Michigan City Yacht Record

Michigan City, Ind., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The black hulled Bagheera, owned and sailed by Robert Benedict, regarded as one of the best skippers on the great lakes, rode across the line first today in the Jackson Park Yacht club's twenty-ninth annual Michigan City race. Benedict and Bagheera did more than reach port first, however, for in addition to winning the first leg on the Commodore F. H. Noble trophy, the big schooner set a new record for the run from Chicago to Michigan City.

Bagheera's time for the journey was three hours 20 minutes and 27 seconds, breaking the former mark of 3:25:02, hung up by the yawl Priscilla in 1919. The sloop Flight, under the guidance of Fran Byrne, made the second best time, turning the course in 3:31:17.

Aside from the fast times made by Bagheera and Flight, the feature of the race was the close finish between the O'Rourke brothers' Intruder and Princess, newly crowned club champion, owned by Ed Jedzry-Kowski and Carl Kallgren. Princess, which had won nine straight races prior to today, including the long haul to Mackinac Island and the Bennett trophy, was defeated by Intruder by only one second.

Bryce Hess of the Jackson park club sailed his yawl Beaver to victory in the cruiser C class, defeating Commodore J. W. Lowell's Osprey of the Columbia Yacht club, with Sea Call third and Voyageur fourth. Springtime, sailed by Gus Nylund of the Columbia Yacht club, won the Sewanhaka time prize from Dr. Francis Yager's Columbia. Seeboomook was third and Nip-n-Tuck fourth.

Bert Williamson's Edith III. took the cruiser B class prize by finishing sixteen minutes ahead of Audax, with Victory and Ann following. Dr. Marie Ortmeyer's yawl Patsy was an easy winner in the universal yawl division.

Don Repairs Boat; Races Wood Today

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Having directed more than 24 hours of labor on his disabled challenger, Miss England III., Kaye Don, British speedboat pilot, announced tonight that he and his craft were ready to meet Gar Wood and his Miss America X. in the second heat of the Harmsworth trophy race.

Wood took the opening heat Saturday after trailing Don for four laps of the 35 mile course. Don later explained his challenger had begun to ship a huge volume of water and that one of his engines went out of commission.

Unless weather conditions necessitate a postponement the second heat will

PIRATES' FOUR RUNS IN THIRD BEAT REDS, 5 TO 2, FOR EIGHTH STRAIGHT

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The Pirates bid farewell to Cincinnati for the season today by defeating the Reds, 5 to 2, for their eighth straight victory.

Pittsburgh scored four runs in the third inning with three bunched singles, a base on balls and a triple, driving Larry Benton from the mound. Benny Frey replaced Benton and allowed only three more hits.

The Reds were held in check by Chagnon until the sixth, when Herman sent a triple through Comorosky, and Hafey and Lombardi singled and Morrissey doubled, driving in two runs. Score:

DODGERS WHIP GIANTS, 3-2.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Southpaw William Watson Clark survived a determined ninth inning rally today and the Dodgers defeated the Giants, 3 to 2, to earn an even break in the two game series.

Frank O'Doul's homer, following Stripp's single in the first, gave Brooklyn a two run start off Fred Fitzsimmons. The Dodgers scored again in the third. Clark pitched shutout ball to the ninth, when Chick Fullis' triple and Critz's single brought one run, and a hit by Terry and a passed ball let another score. With the tying run on second, Clark retired the last three men on flies. Score:

BRAVES BEAT PHILS, 6 TO 5.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 4.—(AP)—A double by Bob Holland, recruit left fielder, with the bases full and two out scored two runs in the last of the ninth to give the Braves a 6 to 5 victory over the Phillies today.

The hit was made off Phil Collins, who came to the mound after Holley walked Maranville to start the last inning. Cantwell, who pitched the ninth for the Braves, got credit for the win. Pinky Whitney hit a home run in the eighth. Scores:

Yankees Whip Red Sox, 8-2; Rout Welch

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—After a wild start, Danny MacFayden settled down and held his former team, the Boston Red Sox, to five hits and gave the Yankees an 8 to 2 victory today.

Johnny Welch proved troublesome for four innings, but the Yanks took the lead with three runs in the fifth and drove him from the hill in the seventh. MacFayden helped his own cause along with two hits and three runs. Roy Johnson hit a homer for the Sox. Score:

DICK TRACY—Stoned

the hit and run play and executed the maneuver in excellent detail. Ki started for second with Johnson's windup and when Frisch ran toward second to cover, Stevie hit the ball right through the spot vacated by Frisch for the first hit off Johnson. Cuyler easily made third on the single.

It appeared, however, that this excellent technique might not be rewarded in a scoring way when Moore fanned for the second out. However, the rejoicing was all the greater when Grimm followed this bogging down with an immense double to the corner of the left center field stand, which scored both Ki and Stevie. Then Charley came home on Hartnett's single to center. Gabby tried to get to second on the throw to the plate but was out, Martin to J. Wilson to Frisch.

Warneke Gets a Hit.

Warneke led off the fifth with the fourth of the seven hits the Cubs made and eventually got to third. In the sixth Moore was hit by a pitched ball and went to third on Grimm's single to deep center. Then Grimm and Hartnett went down in a double play, C. Wilson to Frisch to Bottomley.

Koenig led off the seventh with a single to run his hitting sequence to 14 straight games, but later was trapped trying to reach third on a tap by Herman. Cuyler got the last hit with one out in the eighth, but never got past first.

Burleigh Grimes and Charley Root are scheduled to pitch the double header for the Cubs in Cincinnati today. The arduous time the Reds have had in Pittsburgh makes their selections uncertain.

Billy Herman was stopped yesterday after hitting in eleven straight games, leaving Koenig's run of 14 games the only sizable streak to be watched.

The Cubs are hoping for snappy routines in the two games today. They have to be in the diner bound for Boston by 6:22.

Warneke's last shutout prior to yesterday was scored against the Phillies on Aug. 21. That day he won, 2 to 0, holding the majors' best hitting team to four singles.

There was no question about any of Warneke's half dozen strikeouts. The first five victims went down swinging and the sixth, C. Wilson in the ninth, made no holler when the third one was called on him.

Warneke didn't make his fielding support work hard. The only thing that looked the least difficult was Martin's bouncer in the fifth. Woody English had to leap to get it.

O'CONNELL WINS MATCHES IN TWO TENNIS TOURNEYS

Frank O'Connell, former Big Ten tennis champion, scored victories in Chicago's two Labor day tennis tournaments yesterday to reach the quarter-final round at Park Ridge and the semi-finals at Hamilton park.

O'Connell, who is seeded in the top position in the Park Ridge Tennis club's meet, played there during the morning session, trouncing David Krieger, 6-1, 6-3. O'Connell then hurried to the south side, where he defeated Bill Parkhill in straight sets, 6-0, 7-5.

The three other remaining players of the original field of 64 in the Hamilton park meet are Ed and Charles Lejeck and Scott Rexinger. Rexinger, former Chicago university star, was pushed yesterday by Gerson Faden, but finally triumphed, 6-3, 8-6.

At Park Ridge, Ed Shoaff, who is ranked directly below O'Connell in the tournament draw, was forced to flash brilliant tennis to subdue Lester Gilbert, 6-3, 10-8. José Alonso, once a member of the Spanish Davis cup team, was almost eliminated when Ross Moon, a youthful high school player from the Oak Park Tennis club, pushed the score to 7-5, 4-6, 6-1.

Other than these contests, however, play at Park Ridge moved smoothly for the seeded players and all advanced without an upset.

LINCOLN PARK EIGHT WINS IN QUINCY REGATTA

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The South Side Boat club crews of Quincy won four of the five regular rowing events in the invitational regatta held on the Mississippi river here this afternoon. Quincy oarsmen rowed to victory in the four oared shell, the single scull, the barge, and doubles.

Lincoln Park of Chicago won the eight oared shell race, the closing event of the program. Quincy added another victory in the singles race for coxswains when Russ Mutz finished first and Junior Milgrim, also of Quincy, second, with George Hedge of Central, St. Louis, third. The four, single, double, and eight oared races were rowed over a three-quarter mile course and the barge over a half mile. All races rowed upstream.

Sox Lose, 7-5, Then Wallop Browns, 5 to 1

van's third, the Sox collected their third run in the sixth. Hodapp dropped a hit into left and Kress beat out a roller to Levey. When Levey threw the ball past first Hodapp went to third, whence he counted on Grube's fly.

Browns Get One.

Sullivan's fourth straight single to right in the seventh was wasted. It came with two out. Two errors by Gray presented the Sox with their fourth run in the eighth. Kress singled and Grube hit to Gray, who threw the ball into center field, Kress going to third. Gray then booted Gregory's sacrifice hit, Kress scoring and Gregory reaching first. Then came Sullivan's homer in the ninth as a closing Sox flourish.

Goslin's double, a pased ball and an infield out in the ninth spoiled Gregory's chances for his first big league shutout.

MARK PLACKY WINS TWO RACES AT ROBY TRACK

Mark Placky of Milwaukee drove to victory in two races and captured second place in two others in the five race program at the Roby speedway yesterday.

About 5,000 watched the card of five races, 2,000 of whom broke down the fence to gain admission.

A five mile straw hat derby will feature the card of five auto races today at the Evanston Motor speedway, Lincoln and Devon avenues. Stock car and race car events are also on the program.

The first race will start at 3 p. m.

Sox Come Home Today to Tackle Detroit Twice

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The Sox left for home tonight and will play two games against the Tigers at Comiskey park tomorrow. Tuesday and Wednesday are off days, after which Boston leads eastern clubs into Chicago for the last time this year. Jones and Gaston are the probable pitchers tomorrow.

Today's games were witnessed by one of the smallest crowds in St. Louis baseball history. There were less than 2,000 in the stands.

Gray got a lucky assist in the fourth inning when Hodapp's drive bounced off his shins straight into Melillo's hands. Melillo tossed out the runner.

Sullivan's four straight singles in the second game were drives into short right field. His ninth inning homer was his first of the season.

WHEAT TRAILS STOCKS, COTTON IN WEEK'S RISE

Prices End Higher After Slump.

Leading commodity and security markets, including the New York and Chicago stock exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade, will be closed today, Labor day. Banks will also be closed. Trading will be resumed in all markets tomorrow.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Stocks and cotton made good advances last week, while grain markets fluctuated irregularly. Wheat, although active, excited and sharply higher at times, failed to present the same buoyancy as other commodities.

There was a break of 5½c from the top on Monday to the low on Friday, with a recovery of almost 1c on Saturday. The trade was full of rumors about the future, bringing increased buying support and continuance of the advance in grains, cotton, etc.

Wheat needs more buying support if prices are to rise rapidly, but interests credited with the bullish leadership apparently are not uneasy. There were indications at the close Saturday that markets are to do better.

Chicago Wheat Higher.

The close on wheat in Chicago was at gains of ⅝@1c, while Winnipeg advanced 1⅛@1⅝c and Liverpool 1⅛@1¼c for the week. The situation in the American northwest and in Canada are somewhat different. Farmers in Canada are selling wheat freely, despite the low price. The Alberta pool has agreed to pay 35c a bu at Vancouver for No. 1 northern wheat as the first installment. Farmers in Minnesota and the Dakotas are holding their grains, although the movement during the week was liberal. It would be no surprise to see another increase in the visible supply. In the southwest the movement remains light and the railroads in that section have handled only about 50 per cent as much wheat as they did in the same period last year, which is in line with the comparative size of the crop.

Canada is doing a big export business, with sales of spring wheat last week estimated at more than 5,000,000 bu. There were also indications at the close of bids for American hard winters being close to an export level. Millers are taking liberal supplies of hard winters, which are more difficult to get.

Foreign Markets Stronger.

Foreign conditions present a more bullish situation. Latest reports from Russia confirm previous advices of a shorter spring wheat crop and poor conditions, owing to recent rains, may suggest Russia will not be a large exporter. This, if true, will be an important factor later. Rumania's wheat crop is short and an increased consumption of corn there is predicted. Instead of France having a big crop and an exportable surplus, its position has been reversed.

Should prices of wheat in the United States be held up above an export basis during the next four months, it is likely that Canada and the southern hemisphere will supply the bulk of Europe's requirements. The question confronting the trade is: Will accidents happen to the southern hemisphere crops, reducing their production so that the United States will be called on to make up the deficit in production in other countries.

Many traders expect the future course of prices to be irregularly higher, but they believe that it will take constant buying to keep grain in line with the upward tendency in other commodities. Closing prices on September wheat were 54c, December 58 @58¼c, May 62⅞@63c. Open interest in September was greatly reduced by heavy deliveries of cash grain. Prices for the week follow:

	September Old.	December.	May.
Monday	52¾-54¼	57 -58¼	61⅝-63¾
Tuesday	53⅞-55⅝	57⅞-59⅝	62⅛-63⅝

Two Sided Market in Corn.

Corn traders regard the market as a more two-sided affair than in recent years. There are a few who strongly favor an advance, believing that all bearish conditions have been discounted. Receipts are heavy, but the bulk of the corn was previously hedged by sales of futures. Stocks in Chicago are 7,062,666 bu compared with 6,622,000 bu last year. Consumption by industries for the week was reduced owing to the Labor day holiday. Crop reports are favorable and the government returns are expected to show about as much as a month ago. All September deliveries were well cared for. At the close September was 30¾@30⅞c, December, 32⅝@33⅛c; May, 36⅛@35¼c. Many in the trade expect that September, December and May will go in to carrying charge difference in a short time. The close was ⅝c lower to ¼c higher for the week. Prices follow:

	September.	December.	May.
Monday	30⅞-32⅛	33¼-35¼	37⅝-39⅞

See Prospect of Increased Steel Backlog

The iron and steel industry moved into the Labor day period with a decline of only one point in the steel making rate, slightly more substantial backing for the recent improvement in sentiment and a further wide advance in scrap prices, the magazine Steel reports.

Pointing out that Labor day has been generally appraised as a springboard for fall recovery, the magazine in its weekly trade review said: "Inquiry was broader and bookings were somewhat heavier in most districts last week, an encouraging phase being their diffusion.

"Many consumers indicate they contemplate buying for stock shortly and for the first time in months mills visualize the accumulation of backlogs.

Try Stimulants.

"Various efforts to stimulate railroad buying, notably financing by supply interests, are expected to yield orders. Leading manufacturers of automobiles are pricing fourth-quarter steel and after Sept. 15 the movement of material to Detroit for fabrication in October will expand.

"Over the iron and steel industry hangs an atmosphere of expectancy. Recent generalizations by important executives that improved business approaches are accepted as surface indications of quiet negotiations for substantial needs.

"The possibility is strong steel production in the week ended Sept. 10, which includes Labor day, may develop a slight gain over the 13-14 per cent rate of the week ended Sept. 3.

Sees Losses Recouped.

"Enough capacity is scheduled for lighting at Youngstown Sept. 6 to put the steel rate there up from 13 per cent to 20. At Cleveland the restoration of open hearths cold since July 4 indicates a rise from 14½ per cent to 25. Whatever slight loss occurs in other districts from the Monday shutdown should be speedily recouped.

"The strain of improved demand runs through all districts. In the south, miscellaneous requirements for wire and other products from agricultural areas are reported increasing. Both Pittsburgh and Chicago note modest expansion in small orders for bars. Shipments of Chicago wire mills were larger in August than in July."

ARKANSAS ROAD BONDS.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 24.—A clipping from a recent issue of your paper, dated St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 19, has just been brought to my attention.

When our refunding law was passed, it became necessary to have a test case in the Supreme court to approve the exact form of the bonds. This delayed the printing of the bonds. We are just now beginning to receive some of the bonds.

It is a big undertaking to refund a large amount of small independent issues of old road district bonds. These bonds originally were not issued by the state. There are all sorts of dates and maturities and the coupons of the revenue bonds have to mature at the same time the coupons of the old road district bonds mature. The legislature made no appropriation for extra help to carry out this work, so the treasurer's office is compelled to do it with the limited force we have. Great care has to be exercised in this refunding operation to know that the old road bonds that are being refunded are the valid bonds of the respective districts.

The state, as it refunds these old road bonds, pays the interest on the old road bond that matured on or before Sept. 1 prior to refunding. The state will refund these bonds just as fast as the work can be done properly and all obligations incident thereto will be cared for.

ROY N. LEONARD,
Treasurer, State of Arkansas.

INSULL AND THE BANKERS.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—In 1930 I bought a $1,000 debenture of Insull Utility Investments with some money that my mother asked me to invest for her.

The debenture now is selling for only about $30 and I am told that all the assets which were behind the bonds are now held by the banks as collateral for loans. Why did the banks lend money to Insull on such terms when they knew that the stocks he pledged were supposed to secure the debentures which had been sold to the public?

It seems only just to me that the banks turn over such collateral to the receivers to be applied equally in paying off the obligations of the company.

What were the banks thinking of when they financed Insull in his operations? Why did not some of the other directors of his companies try to stop him?

JOHN ANDERSON.

Bright Spots in Day's Business News

Charles Town, W. Va., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The Viscose company's plant at Nitro, near here, will reopen in a few days and employ about 200 men, said W. A. B. Vivian, general manager. The McNicol Pottery company at Clarksburg has resumed operations with 50 men.

Commenting on the 73 per cent advance in the bids market, the Harvard Society of Economic Research says the commodity, since 1890, had been a faithful and dependable forecast of general business recovery.

The New York Federal Reserve bank Saturday reported a gain in gold stocks through a net decrease in earmarked metal for foreign account totaling $4,631,000. In addition the bank received $12,000 in gold from Mexico.

Two hundred men have gone to work at a tobacco stemmery and redrying plant at Goldsboro, N. C. and several hundred more are to go to work in a few days at another plant there. The operations will continue until February. Other hundreds are employed at other plants including cotton mills.

Last week's sharp advance in quotations for steel scrap is believed by many in Wall street to foreshadow the long awaited upturn in the steel industry.

CHICAGO TRADE GAINS REPORTED IN MANY FIELDS

Further improvements in many lines of business corresponding with the general revival noticeable all over the country, indications of prices again moving forward in commodities, steady gains in wholesale merchandising and reports of slight improvements in the building figures of the past month, characterized the past week in Chicago, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Wholesale houses continued to find better business. Advance sales of merchandise by traveling men on the road have been increased, the gain for the week being 15 per cent over last year, on top of the similar gain in the previous week. Buying of general merchandise by local wholesalers and retailers has been stimulated by advance in prices in many lines, with prospects of further upturns certain for early autumn. Retail sales of seasonal goods have also enlarged to some extent.

Chicago's August construction figures, made public during the past week, made a slight increase in total costs over the preceding month, but showed a drop in number of actual permits issued. There were forty permits for August as compared with forty-six taken out during July, but during the past month there were thirty-one thousands of dollars more in actual cost of construction.

Another sign of reviving business was seen in the report that out of town inquiries received for products manufactured in the Chicago district have jumped more than 35 per cent during the past three weeks. The outside interest in local activity corresponds with actual reports from local concerns.

More Information Needed.

I am very anxious to be able to straighten up my affairs to prevent the loss of the home of my father and mother. The rural district in which we are located has been rather hard hit by the closing of several banks, making money very scarce here. My professional collections have been very meager to aid at this time. The problem facing the writer is to raise $4,900, of which I am only able to raise about $2,000. My parents own a ten room house with twenty acres of ground. Paid to date on same, $2,300. Invested in improvements only, $4,000. The writer would very deeply appreciate any information or help given which will aid in preventing the loss of the home of my dear parents. Thanking you in advance for any help or suggestions. DR. W. A.

We must have full particulars, such as amount of first mortgage, second mortgage, date due, amount of delinquent taxes and interest, as well as name of mortgage company or bank to enable us to give you an intelligent reply. We are holding your correspondence for this information.

Not Altogether Hopeless.

I don't suppose there is anything anybody can do for me. I own a five room brick bungalow purchased in 1927 for $5,500 with $900 cash. Today my balance is $3,200. I owe two monthly payments of $33 each, and my unpaid taxes amount to $88. I have been out of work for three months and I am afraid I will lose my home. The mortgage company has offered to give me free rent for twelve months if I will quitclaim to them. Can you help me in any way?—S. V.

Like the majority of problems today, it seems hopeless; however, we suggest in addition to the twelve months' lease you secure what is known as a "lease with option to purchase." In that case, should you find work during the period of your lease you have the privilege to exercise the option and continue paying for your home. Of course the amount of delinquent taxes and unpaid interest would be included in the purchase price mentioned in the lease with option to purchase. Your sincerity and desire to keep your home should be appreciated by the bank or individual holding the mortgage on your home.

Faces Loss of Vacant.

In September, 1928, I purchased a five room shingle house on a 100 foot lot for $3,800; several months later I purchased the adjoining 100 foot lot with no improvements for $700. Up to the present time the payments on my house are paid to date. However, I am seven months behind on the vacant lot adjoining and still owe $390 and interest. The subdivider will not credit my equity in the vacant property on my home and I hate to lose the money I have paid in. Please let me hear from you.—J. K.

The company you are dealing with no doubt has a specific policy in handling delinquent accounts and you will just have to work out the best deal you can with them. Just the other day we learned of a progressive subdivider and a builder who in cases concerning delinquent vacant have a policy whereby they offer the owner a "certificate of credit" for the amount of his equity. This "certificate of credit" can be applied on the purchase of any vacant property the company offers for sale at any future time. In your case the amount would be $310. This method of procedure on defaulted vacant sounds reasonable, providing the subdividing company is a reputable concern and in good standing.

SEES CHICAGO AS IMPORTANT WORLD SEAPORT

"The completion of the Illinois waterway, now announced for the middle of October, should eventually result in Chicago becoming one of the important seaports of the world," says an article by Samuel M. Hastings, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, in the September issue of Cherry Circle, published by the Chicago Athletic association.

"The completion of this project will be of direct benefit not only to Chicago but to every resident of the Mississippi valley—manufacturers, farmers, merchants, miners, employers, employés, and citizens generally," Mr. Hastings says. "Illinois and other industrial states will recover much of the business they have lost since construction of the Panama canal, which now gives eastern manufacturers tremendous advantages in freight rates to the Pacific coast, South America, and the orient by all water routes."

Several Big Companies to Act on Dividend This Week

RAIL INTEREST OF 31 MILLIONS MET BY LOANS

Credit Corp. Tells of Operations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 4.—From the time it began operations in January, to Sept. 1, the Railroad Credit corporation made $30,987,199 available to railroads for the meeting of interest payments, according to the monthly report of the organization to the interstate commerce commission. The report shows also that, while the corporation found it necessary at one time to borrow a maximum of $16,064,942 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, these government loans had been reduced to $2,170,500 on Sept. 1.

Repayment of the government loans were made from $31,075,145 received in the first six months of the year, including $5,040,935 in June, from the proceeds of the freight surcharges that took effect on Jan. 4, the government loans were contracted in anticipation of these receipts.

54 Carriers Apply.

The Railroad Credit corporation was formed by the railroads to distribute the surcharge proceeds in the form of loans to enable railroads to meet interest obligations. Its president is E. G. Buckland, chairman of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

Since its formation, the Railroad Credit corporation has received applications from fifty-four railroads for loans amounting to $39,076,457, but of this total $52,002,782 was withdrawn from the docket "as representing requests beyond the scope of the plan of funds which could be secured from other sources," remarks Mr. Buckland in a letter to the chief executives of the railroads participating in the plan.

The difference of $37,073,675 between the foregoing figures is represented by the $36,737,199 loans made or authorized and $6,136,476 deferred items. The $30,987,199 total is in turn represented by $26,647,959 of loans actually made and of $4,239,240 of loans authorized.

Loans Reduced.

Mr. Buckland's statement shows also that the repayment of $1,065,250 of loans reduced the amount outstanding on the corporation's balance sheet under this leading to $25,582,709 on Aug. 31.

Railroad Bond Prices Rise as Traffic Gains

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Trading in speculative loans dominated the bond market during the last week. Railroads, especially, steamed ahead after some brief lay overs for profit taking.

Renewed interest in the low priced carriers was attributed partly to reports of an upturn in freight car loadings. These figures, for the week ending Aug. 27, showed an increase of 19,331 over the previous period.

Reasons for Rail Advance.

Sponsors of the rails also were encouraged by the firmness of commodities; the belief that, with the help of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, major receiverships would be avoided; activities in completing the eastern four system consolidation; and plans for seeking a basic wage reduction.

The heaviest turnovers and the widest fluctuations were noted in Allegheny corporation 5s, Baltimore and Ohio 4½s of 1933 and 1960, St. Paul 5s and adjustment 5s, Chicago and Northwestern 4½s, all the Missouri Pacific 5s, Nickel Plate 6s and Frisco 4½s.

There were few important changes in the higher grade loans. Most of them were steady, although a number showed an inclination to ease moderately.

Utilities Are Erratic.

American Telephone issues held their position, but those of International Telephone, Postal Telegraph, and Western Union had their ups and downs. There were a few industrial specialties, such as Gulf States Steel 5½s and Remington Rand 5½s, that were in unusual demand at times.

The United States government section was generally dull. Followers of the federals were waiting for the treasury to announce its new financing program for Sept. 15. It was variously reported that notes and certificates aggregating more than $1,000,000,000 would be offered, largely for refunding purposes. Liberty first 4¼s became active late in the week when it was rumored they would not be called for redemption this month.

The foreign group was somewhat mixed. The Germans improved when the international banks renewed the $90,000,000 Reichsbank credit. The Italians also firmed, as did the Argentines and Australians. Japanese issues continued rather heavy, due to uncertainties of the political and economic situation in Nippon.

New York Bank Stocks Up Sharply from Year's Lows

As a result of the further advance in New York City bank stocks last week, the aggregate value of 17 leading issues now exceeds $2,000,000,000 for the first time since last November, according to Holt, Rose & Troster. As of May 31 last, the low point of the depression, these issues had an aggregate value of $929,895,000.

TRADE INDICES GIVE EVIDENCE OF EXPANSION

Strengthen Hope of Turning Point.

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Signs of expanding business during the last week, leading up to Labor day, served to boost optimism.

A sharp gain in freight car loadings and preparations for quickening operations in steel and other industries after the holiday strengthened the hope that Labor day may mark an important turning point, and rising security and commodity markets in the last half of the week instilled further cheer into business sentiment.

The gain in freight car loadings as reported for the week ended Aug. 27 amounted to 19,331 cars over the previous week. A sharp increase in that week is a normal seasonal experience and, on a percentage basis, the increase this time was fully up to the seasonal normal, in contrast to a disappointingly small gain in the like period of last year.

More Electricity Sold.

Electric power production, as reported for the same week, showed a slight increase, and while it was barely up to the gain expected in normal times, it was the first time that week had experienced a gain since 1929. Compared to last year, total kilowatt hours were off 12.3 per cent, against 12.9 per cent a week previously. Some shoe factories were placed on full time production, here and there railroads recalled shop workers, or train crews, and textiles were still a distinctly bright spot, with both production and prices making further gains.

Possibly the brightest spots on the horizon were indications of early improvement in steel operations, which have been lagging dismally with production near the extreme low point of the entire depression at 13 per cent of capacity during the past week. But steel scrap prices, that traditional barometer of waning or ebbing forces at work in the basic industry, firmed appreciably. The Annalist average of daily quotations of heavy melting steel scrap in the Pittsburgh district advanced to $9.58 a ton. The week before the average had been $8.25 in Youngstown, advances on Friday carried scrap prices up 75 cents to $1.50 a ton for various classes.

Better Days for Steel.

In usually well informed steel trade circles the belief was expressed that Myron C. Taylor's recent encouraging statement might soon win the confirmation of actual performance. The United States Steel corporation's chairman said that buying, in his opinion, "could not be long deferred." And last week there were authorities within the industry who were willing to forecast that steel production before the end of the coming week might reach 19 per cent.

The unfilled tonnage statement of United States Steel, which will be issued on Sept. 10, is expected by some authorities to show, for the first time in nearly a year and a half, an increase of 150,000 tons. This calculation, it was held by some people in the trade, might be a little sanguine, but there was unmistakable promise of some improvement in orders.

The automobile industry, which has been sleepily leading a hand-to-mouth existence, stirred slightly. It was reported that some makers experienced a fairly brisk improvement in orders in the last half of August. It was believed possible that this upward move might increase the final figures for the month to as large a total as reported for July and possibly greater. If so, this would be contrary to seasonal trend.

South's Condition Better.

In the south, where "cotton is king," there was gratification over the sharp upward whirl of cotton prices. Live stock, food products, and grain prices also moved forward with their resulting increases in farmer purchasing power, and the wholesale commodity price index of the Annalist advanced to its highest point of the year. The gain was a notable performance and carried the index to a point where it is now about midway between the bottom point touched last June and the level where it rested one year ago, before its sharp downward sweep which carried some commodities to their lowest levels in history.

Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance.

As a policyholder of Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company of Springfield, Mass., I would like information relative to the standing of the company.—O. T.

Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company has been in business for eighty-one years. It is purely mutual.

Growth has been steady over a long period of time. Insurance in force at the end of 1901 was $33,376,000; at the end of 1910, $163,167,000; 1920, $726,743,000; 1930, 2 billion 97 million dollars; and at the close of 1931, 2 billion 159 million dollars.

Policyholders' surplus is regarded as sufficient for all contingencies and the reserve basis is strong. The expense rate is low and the mortality rate is favorable.

In 1931 income was $108,336,000, and disbursements, including $18,797,000 dividends to policyholders, were $73,500,000.

Of $338,367,000 invested assets, 2.7 per cent was in real estate, 43.6 per cent in mortgage loans, 17.1 per cent in policy loans, and 30.6 per cent in bonds (amortized value). The company also had $43,000 invested in public utility preferred stocks and $107,000 (both June 30, 1931, values) in public utility common stock.

The company is licensed to do business in all states of the United States except Arkansas, Arizona, Idaho, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, and Wyoming.

It has an excellent reputation.

Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

I am writing to you for information on Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s, due 1943.—A. O. C.

Gross revenues increased steadily for the ten years through 1930. In the first half of 1932 they were $34,326,000, against $37,305,000 in the corresponding 1931 period. Fixed charges were earned 2.35 times, against 3.16 times in the first six months of 1931.

Gross income in 1931 was $73,839,060, against $75,621,000 in 1930, $72,578,000 in 1929, and $66,772,000 in 1928. Fixed charges were earned 2.84 times in 1931, 2.71 times in 1930, 3.19 times in 1929, and 3.33 times in 1928.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $9,463,000 and current liabilities were $11,156,000. Funded debt was $97,272,000.

The $35,000,000 first 5s, due 1948, are secured equally with the $50,000,000 5s, due 1960, by a first mortgage on all properties of the company, subject to divisional liens. Both issues are sound.

AGRICULTURAL PRICES IN LEADING COUNTRIES

Prices of agricultural products in various countries have averaged low from the first quarter of 1929 as presented by the International Institute of Agriculture in percentages. In the United States the drop was 57.2; in Canada 49.12, Argentina 43.4, Netherlands 45.4, Poland 36.3, Hungary 32.8, Italy 34.6, Germany 29.6, England 20.8 per cent. A feature of the reductions is that the greatest losses were in the United States.

PROVISION PRICES LOWER

Liquidation by holders of lard and bellies was sufficient at times to keep prices irregularly lower, in the face of a good average cash trade, and fair absorption by packers and warehouse interests. Lard and dry salted meats are passing into consumption more readily than last year, while hams and shoulders met a reduced buying. Stocks of lard and meats throughout the west decreased heavily during the last month, and hog prices held up fairly. At the close lard was 10@15c lower and bellies off only 5c, as compared with the previous week. Prices for the week follow:
